TO ALFRED TENNYSON POET LAUREATE

This book in its progress has recalled often to my memory a man with whose friendship we were once honoured, to whom no region of English Literature was unfamiliar, and who, whilst rich in all the noble gifts of Nature, was most eminently distinguished by the noblest and the rarest,—just judgement and high-hearted patriotism. It would have been hence a peculiar pleasure and pride to dedicate what I have endeavoured to make a true national Anthology of three centuries to Henry Hallam. But he is beyond the reach of any human tokens of love and reverence; and I desire therefore to place before it a name united with his by associations which, whilst Poetry retains her hold on the minds of Englishmen, are not likely to be forgotten.

Your encouragement, given while traversing the wild scenery of Treryn Dinas, led me to begin the work; and it has been completed under your advice and assistance. For the favour now asked

I have thus a second reason: and to this I may add, the homage which is your right as Poet, and the gratitude due to a Friend, whose regard I rate at no common value.

Permit me then to inscribe to yourself a book which, I hope, may be found by many a lifelong fountain of innocent and exalted pleasure; a source of animation to friends when they meet; and able to sweeten solitude itself with best society, —with the companionship of the wise and the good, with the beauty which the eye cannot see, and the music only heard in silence. If this Collection proves a storehouse of delight to Labour and to Poverty,—if it teaches those indifferent to the Poets to love them, and those who love them to love them more, the aim and the desire entertained in framing it will be fully accomplished.

PREFACE

This little Collection differs, it is believed, from others in the attempt made to include in it all the best original Lyrical pieces and Songs in our language, by writers not living,—and none beside the best. Many familiar verses will hence be met with; many also which should be familiar:—the Editor will regard as his fittest readers those who love Poetry so well, that he can offer them nothing not already known and valued.

The Editor is acquainted with no strict and exhaustive definition of Lyrical Poetry: but he has found the task of practical decision increase in clearness and in facility as he advanced with the work. whilst keeping in view a few simple principles. Lyrical has been here held essentially to imply that each Poem shall turn on some single thought, feeling, or situation. In accordance with this, descriptive, and didactic poems,unless accompanied by rapidity of movement, brevity, and the colouring of human passion,have been excluded. Humorous poetry, except in the very unfrequent instances where a truly poetical tone pervades the whole, with what is strictly personal, occasional, and religious, has been considered foreign to the idea of the book. Blank verse and the ten-syllable couplet, with all pieces markedly dramatic, have been rejected as alien from what is commonly understood by Song, and rarely conforming to Lyrical conditions in treatment. But it is not anticipated, nor is it possible, that all readers shall think the line accurately drawn. Some poems, as Grav's 'Elegy,' the 'Allegro' and 'Penseroso,' Wordsworth's 'Puth' or Campbell's 'Lord Ullin,' might be claimed with perhaps equal justice for a narrative or descriptive selection: whilst with reference especially to Ballads and Sonnets, the Editor can only state that he has taken his utmost pains to decide without caprice or partiality.

This also is all he can plead in regard to a point even more liable to question; -what degree of merit should give rank among the Best. That a Poem shall be worthy of the writer's genius,—that it shall reach a perfection commensurate with its aim.—that we should require finish in proportion to brevity,—that passion, colour, and originality cannot atone for serious imperfections in clearness. unity, or truth,—that a few good lines do not make a good poem,—that popular estimate is serviceable as a guidepost more than as a compass.—above all, that Excellence should be looked for rather in the Whole than in the Parts,—such and other such canons have been always steadily regarded. may however add that the pieces chosen, and a far larger number rejected, have been carefully and repeatedly considered; and that he has been aided throughout by two friends of independent and exercised judgement, besides the distinguished person addressed in the Dedication. It is hoped that by this procedure the volume has been freed from that onesidedness which must be et individual decisions:—but for the final choice the Editor is alone responsible.

It would obviously have been invidious to apply the standard aimed at in this Collection to the Living. Nor, even in the cases where this might be done without offence, does it appear wise to attempt to anticipate the verdict of the Future on our contemporaries. Should the book last, poems by Tennyson, Bryant, Clare, Lowell, and others, will no doubt claim and obtain their place among the best. But the Editor trusts that this will be effected by other hands, and in days far distant.

Chalmers' vast collection, with the whole works of all accessible poets not contained in it, and the best Anthologies of different periods, have been twice systematically read through: and it is hence improbable that any omissions which may be regretted are due to oversight. The poems are printed entire, except in a very few instances (specified in the notes) where a stanza has been omitted. The omissions have been risked only when the piece could be thus brought to a closer lyrical unity: and, as essentially opposed to this unity, extracts, obviously such, are excluded. In regard to the text, the purpose of the book has appeared to justify the choice of the most poetical version, wherever more than one exists: and much labour has been given to present each poem, in disposition, spelling, and punctuation, to the greatest advantage.

For the permission under which the copyright pieces are inserted, thanks are due to the respective Proprietors, without whose liberal concurrence the scheme of the collection would have been defeated.

In the arrangement, the most poetically-effective order has been attempted. The English mind has passed through phases of thought and cultivation so various and so opposed during these three centuries of Poetry, that a rapid passage between Old and New, like rapid alteration of the eye's focus in looking at the landscape, will always be wearisome and hurtful to the sense of Beauty. The poems have been therefore distributed into Books corresponding, I to the ninety years closing about 1616, II thence to 1700, III to 1800, IV to the half-century just ended. Or, looking at the Poets who more or less give each portion its distinctive character, they might be called the Books of Shakespeare, Milton, Gray, and Wordsworth. The volume, in this respect, so far as the limitations of its range allow, accurately reflects the natural growth and evolution of our Poetry. A rigidly chronological sequence, however, rather fits a collection aiming at instruction than at pleasure, and the Wisdom which comes through Pleasure:—within each book the pieces have therefore been arranged in gradations of feeling or subject. The development of the symphonies of Mozart and Beethoven has been here thought of as a model, and nothing placed without careful consideration. And it is hoped that the contents of this Anthology will thus be found to present a certain unity, 'as episodes,' in the noble language of Shelley, 'to that great Poem which all poets, like the co-operating thoughts of one great mind, have built up since the beginning of the world.'

As he closes his long survey, the Editor trusts he may add without egotism, that he has found the vague general verdict of popular Fame more just than those have thought, who, with too severe a criticism, would confine judgements on Poetry to ' the selected few of many generations.' Not many appear to have gained reputation without some gift or performance that, in due degree, deserved it: and if no verses by certain writers who show less strength than sweetness, or more thought than mastery in expression, are printed in this volume, it should not be imagined that they have been excluded without much hesitation and regret.far less that they have been slighted. Throughout this vast and pathetic array of Singers now silent, few have been honoured with the name Poet, and have not possessed a skill in words, a sympathy with beauty, a tenderness of feeling, or seriousness in reflection, which render their works, although never perhaps attaining that loftier and finer excellence here required.—better worth reading than much of what fills the scanty hours that most men spare for self-improvement, or for pleasure in any of its more elevated and permanent forms.— And if this be true of even mediocre poetry, for how much more are we indebted to the best! Like the fabled fountain of the Azores, but with a more various power, the magic of this Art can confer on each period of life its appropriate blessing: on early years Experience, on maturity Calm, on age Youthfulness. Poetry gives treasures 'more golden than gold,' leading us in higher and healthier ways than those of the world, and interpreting to us the lessons of Nature. But she speaks best for herself. Her true accents, if the plan has been executed with success, may be heard throughout the following pages:—wherever the Poets of England are honoured, wherever the dominant language of the world is spoken, it is hoped that they will find fit audience.

NOTE

Samuel Rogers, who died in 1855, was the last poet included in The Golden Treasury. In this reprint additional poems are given representing the latter half of the nineteenth century. None but Mr. Palgrave could have grouped the newer poems in 'the most poetically-effective order,' as he conceived it, so they have been added in the chronological order of their authors. A few dates in the original selection have been corrected. With regard to copyright poems, Messrs. William Blackwood & Sons have kindly permitted the inclusion of George Eliot's 'O may I join the choir invisible'; Messrs. George Bell & Sons, Mr. Coventry Patmore's 'The Toys'; Messrs. Chatto & Windus, Mr. Arthur O'Shaughnessy's ode; and Mrs. Henley and Mr. Nutt, Mr. W. E. Henley's 'Out of the night that covers me.'

Advantage has been taken of a new impression to include four of Mr. Swinburne's poems, by the kind permission of Mr. Theodore Watts-Dunton.

SPRING

Spring, the sweet Spring, is the year's pleasant king,

Then blooms each thing, then maids dance in a ring, Cold doth not sting, the pretty birds do sing, Cuckoo, jug-jug, pu-we, to-witta-woo!

The palm and may make country houses gay, 5 Lambs frisk and play, the shepherds pipe all day, And we hear ay birds tune this merry lay, Cuckoo, jug-jug, pu-we, to-witta-woo!

The fields breathe sweet, the daisies kiss our feet,
Young lovers meet, old wives a-sunning sit,
In every street these tunes our ears do greet,
Cuckoo, jug-jug, pu-we, to-witta-woo!
Spring! the sweet Spring!

TIME AND LOVE

T

When I have seen by Time's fell hand defaced The rich proud cost of out-worn buried age; When sometime lofty towers I see down-razed, And brass eternal slave to mortal rage;

When I have seen the hungry ocean gain
Advantage on the kingdom of the shore,
And the firm soil win of the watery main,
Increasing store with loss, and loss with store;

When I have seen such interchange of state,
Or state itself confounded to decay,
Ruin heth taught me thus to ruminate—
That Time will come and take my Love away:
This thought is read at the line of the state of th

—This thought is as a death, which cannot choose But weep to have that which it fears to lose.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

11

Since brass, nor stone, nor earth, nor boundless sea, But sad mortality o'ersways their power, How with this rage shall beauty hold a plea, Whose action is no stronger than a flower?

O how shall summer's honey breath hold out
Against the wreckful siege of battering days,
When rocks impregnable are not so stout
Nor gates of steel so strong, but time decays?

O fearful meditation! where, alack!

Shall Time's best jewel from Time's chest lie hid?

Or what strong hand can hold his swift foot back,

Or who his spoil of beauty can forbid?

O! none, unless this miracle have might, That in black ink my love may still shine bright.

W. SHAKESPEAPE.

THE PASSIONATE SHEPHERD TO HIS LOVE

Come live with me and be my Love, And we will all the pleasures prove That hills and valleys, dale and field, And all the craggy mountains yield.

There will we sit upon the rocks And see the shepherds feed their flocks, By shallow rivers, to whose falls Melodious birds sing madrigals.

There will I make thee beds of roses And a thousand fragrant posies, A cap of flowers, and a kirtle Embroider'd all with leaves of myrtle.

A gown made of the finest wool, Which from our pretty lambs we pull, Fair lined slippers for the cold, With buckles of the purest gold.

A belt of straw and ivy buds With coral clasps and amber studs: And if these pleasures may thee move, Come live with me and be my Love.

Thy silver dishes for thy meat As precious as the gods do eat, Shall on an ivory table be Prepared each day for thee and me.

The shepherd swains shall dance and sing 25 For thy delight each May-morning: If these delights thy mind may move, Then live with me and be my Love.

A MADRIGAL

Crabbed Age and Youth Cannot live together: Youth is full of pleasance, Age is full of care; Youth like summer morn, 5 Age like winter weather, Youth like summer brave. Age like winter bare: Youth is full of sport. Age's breath is short, 10 Youth is nimble, Age is lame: Youth is hot and bold, Age is weak and cold, Youth is wild, and Age is tame :-Age, I do abhor thee, 15 Youth, I do adore thee; O! my Love, my Love is young! Age, I do defy thee-O sweet shepherd, hie thee, For methinks thou stay'st too long. W. SHAKESPEARE.

Under the greenwood tree
Who loves to lie with me,
And turn his merry note
Unto the sweet bird's throat—
Come hither, come hither!
Here shall he see
No enemy
But winter and rough weather.

Who doth ambition shun And loves to live i' the sun,

10

Seeking the food he eats
And pleased with what he gets—
Come hither, come hither, come hither!
Here shall he see

15

But winter and rough weather.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

It was a lover and his lass
With a hey and a ho, and a hey-nonino 1
That o'er the green cornfield did pass
In the spring time, the only pretty ring time,
When birds do sing hey ding a ding ding: 5
Sweet lovers love the Spring.

Between the acres of the rye
These pretty country folks would lie:

This carol they began that hour, How that a life was but a flower:

10

And therefore take the present time
With a hey and a ho, and a hey-nonino!
For love is crownéd with the prime
In spring time, the only pretty ring time,
When birds do sing hey ding a ding ding:
Sweet lovers love the Spring.

PRESENT IN ABSENCE

Absence, hear thou my protestation Against thy strength, Distance, and length; Do what thou canst for alteration:

For hearts of truest mettle Absence doth join, and Time doth settle.

Who loves a mistress of such quality, He soon hath found Affection's ground Beyond time, place, and all mortality. To hearts that cannot vary

Absence is Present, Time doth tarry. By absence this good means I gain,

That I can catch her, Where none can watch her, In some close corner of my brain: There I embrace and kiss her: And so I both enjoy and miss her.

10

ABSENCE

Being your slave, what should I do but tend Upon the hours and times of your desire? I have no precious time at all to spend Nor services to do. till you require:

Nor dare I chide the world-without-end hour Whilst I, my sovereign, watch the clock for you, Nor think the bitterness of absence sour When you have bid your servant once adieu:

Nor dare I question with my jealous thought Where you may be, or your affairs suppose, But like a sad slave, stay and think of nought Save, where you are, how happy you make those :--

So true a fool is love, that in your will, Though you do anything, he thinks no ill.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

How like a winter hath my absence been From Thee, the pleasure of the fleeting year! What freezings have I felt, what dark days seen, What old December's bareness everywhere!

And yet this time removed was summer's time; 5
The teeming autumn, big with rich increase,
Bearing the wanton burden of the prime
Like widow'd wombs after their lords' decease:

Yet this abundant issue seem'd to me
But hope of orphans, and unfather'd fruit; 10
For summer and his pleasures wait on thee,
And, thou away, the very birds are mute;

Or if they sing, 'tis with so dull a cheer,
That leaves look pale, dreading the winter's near.
W. Shakespeare.

A CONSOLATION

When in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes
I all alone beweep my outcast state,
And trouble deaf heaven with my bootless cries,
And look upon myself, and curse my fate;

Wishing me like to one more rich in hope, 5
Featured like him, like him with friends possest,
Desiring this man's art, and that man's scope,
With what I most enjoy contented least;

Yet in these thoughts myself almost despising, Haply I think on Thee—and then my state, 10 Like to the lark at break of day arising From sullen earth, sings hymns at heaven's gate;

For thy sweet love remember'd such wealth brings, That then I scorn to change my state with kings.

W. SHAKESPEAME.

THE UNCHANGEABLE

O never say that I was false of heart,
Though absence seem'd my flame to qualify:
As easy might I from myself depart
As from my soul, which in thy breast doth lie;

That is my home of love; if I have ranged, Like him that travels, I return again, Just to the time, not with the time exchanged, So that myself bring water for my stain.

Never believe, though in my nature reign'd
All frailties that besiege all kinds of blood,
That it could so preposterously be stain'd
To leave for nothing all thy sum of good:
For nothing this wide universe I call,
Save thou, my rose: in it thou art my all.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

14

To me, fair Friend, you never can be old,
For as you were when first your eye I eyed
Such seems your beauty still. Three winters cold
Have from the forests shook three summers' pride;

Three beauteous springs to yellow autumn turn'd 5 In process of the seasons have I seen, Three April perfumes in three hot Junes burn'd, Since first I saw you fresh, which yet are green.

Ah! yet doth beauty, like a dial-hand, Steal from his figure, and no pace perceived; 10 So your sweet hue, which methinks still doth stand, Hath motion, and mine eye may be deceived:

For fear of which, hear this, thou age unbred,— Ere you were born, was beauty's summer dead.

Diaphenia like the daffadowndilly,
White as the sun, fair as the lily,
Heigh ho, how I do love thee!
I do love thee as my lambs
Are beloved of their dams;
How blest were I if thou would'st prove me.

Diaphenia like the spreading roses,
That in thy sweets all sweets encloses,
Fair sweet, how I do love thee!
I do love thee as each flower
Loves the sun's life-giving power;
For dead, thy breath to life might move me.

Diaphenia like to all things blesséd
When all thy praises are expresséd,
Dear joy, how I do love thee!
As the birds do love the spring,
Or the bees their careful king:
Then in requite, sweet virgin, love me!

Beauty sat bathing by a spring
Where fairest shades did hide her;
The winds blew calm, the birds did sing,
The cool streams ran beside l.er.
My wanton thoughts enticed mine eye
To see what was forbidden:
But better memory said, fie!
So vain desire was chidden:
Hey nonny nonny O!
Hey nonny nonny!
10

Into a slumber then I fell,
When fond imagination
Seem'd to see, but could not tell
Her feature or her fashion.
But ev'n as babes in dreams do smile,
And sometimes fall a-weeping,
So I awaked, as wise this while
As when I fell a-sleeping:
Hey nonny nonny O!
Hey nonny nonny!

TO HIS LOVE

Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?

Thou art more lovely and more temperate:
Rough winds do shake the darling buds of May,
And summer's lease hath all too short a date:

Sometime too hot the eye of heaven shines,
And often is his gold complexion dimm'd:
And every fair from fair sometime declines,
By chance, or nature's changing course, untrumm'd.

But thy eternal summer shall not fade Nor lose possession of that fair thou owest; Nor shall death brag thou wanderest in his shade, When in eternal lines to time thou growest:

So long as men can breathe, or eyes can see, So long lives this, and this gives life to thee.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

TO HIS LOVE

When in the chronicle of wasted time I see descriptions of the fairest wights, And beauty making beautiful old rhyme In praise of ladies dead, and lovely knights:

Then in the blazon of sweet beauty's best Of hand, of foot, of lip, of eye, of brow, I see their antique pen would have exprest Ev'n such a beauty as you master now.

So all their praises are but prophecies Of this our time, all you prefiguring; 10 And, for they look'd but with divining eyes, They had not skill enough your worth to sing:

For we, which now behold these present days, Have eyes to wonder, but lack tongues to praise.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

LOVE'S PERJURIES

On a day, alack the day! Love, whose month is ever May, Spied a blossom passing fair Playing in the wanton air: Through the velvet leaves the wind, All unseen, 'gan passage find;

A SUPPLICATION

Forget not yet the tried intent
Of such a truth as I have meant;
My great travail so gladly spent,
Forget not yet!

Forget not yet when first began
The weary life ye know, since whan
The suit, the service none tell can;
Forget not yet

Forget not yet the great assays,
The cruel wrong, the scornful ways,
The painful patience in delays,

The which so long hath thee so loved,
Whose steadfast faith yet never moved—

TO AURORA

O if thou knew'st how thou thyself dost harm, And dost prejudge thy bliss, and spoil my rest; Then thou would'st melt the ice out of thy breast And thy relenting heart would kindly warm.

O if thy pride did not our joys controul, 5
What world of loving wonders should'st thou see!
For ir I saw thee once transform'd in me,
Then in thy bosom I would pour my soul;

Then all my thoughts should in thy visage shine, And if that aught mischanced thou should'st not moan 10

Nor bear the burthen of thy griefs alone; No, I would have my share in what were thine:

And whilst we thus should make our sorrows one, This happy harmony would make them none.

W. ALEXANDER, EARL OF STERLINE.

TRUE LOVE

Let me not to the marriage of true minds Admit impediments. Love is not love Which alters when it alteration finds, Or pends with the remover to remove:—

O no! it is an ever-fixéd mark 5
That looks on tempests, and is never shaken;
It is the star to every wandering bark,
Whose worth's unknown, although his height be taken.

Love's not Time's fool, though rosy lips and cheeks Within his bending sickle's compass come; 10 Love alters not with his brief hours and weeks, But bears it out ev'n to the edge of doom:—

If this be error, and upon me proved, I never writ, nor no man ever loved.

24

A DITTY

My true-love hath my heart, and I have his,
By just exchange one for another given:
I hold his dear, and mine he cannot miss,
There never was a better bargain driven:
My true-love hath my heart, and I have his. 5

It is heart in me keeps him and me in one,
My heart in him his thoughts and senses guides:
Ite loves my heart, for once it was his own,
I cherish his because in me it bides:
My true-love hath my heart, and I have his.
SIR P. SIDNEY.

LOVE'S OMNIPRESENCE

Were I as base as is the lowly plain,
And you, my Love, as high as heaven above,
Yet should the thoughts of me your humble swain
Ascend to heaven, in honour of my Love.

Were I as high as heaven above the plain,
And you, my Love, as humble and as low
As are the deepest bottoms of the main,
Whareso'er you were, with you my love should go.

Were you the earth, dear Love, and I the skies, My love should shine on you like to the sun, 10 And look upon you with ten thousand eyes Till heaven wax'd blind, and till the world were done.

Whereso'er I am, below, or else above you, Whereso'er you are, my heart shall truly love you.

J. SYLVESTER.

CARPE DIEM

O Mistress mine, where are you roaming? O stay and hear! your true-love's coming That can sing both high and low; Trip no further, pretty sweeting, Journeys end in lovers' meeting—

Every wise man's son doth know.

What is love? 'tis not hereafter;
Present mirth hath present laughter;
What's to come is still unsure:
In delay there lies no plenty,—
Then come kiss me, Sweet-and-twenty,
Youth's a stuff will not endure.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

WINTER

When icicles hang by the wall
And Dick the shepherd blows his nail,
And Tom bears logs into the hall,
And milk comes frozen home in pail;
When blood is nipt, and ways be foul,
Then nightly sings the staring owl
Tuwhoo!
Tuwhit! tuwhoo! A merry note!
While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.

When all aloud the wind doth blow,
And coughing drowns the parson's saw,
And birds sit brooding in the snow,
And Marian's nose looks red and raw;
When roasted crabs hiss in the bowl—
Then nightly sings the staring owl

Tuwhoo!
Tuwhit! tuwhoo! A merry note!
While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.

W. Shakespeare.

28

That time of year thou may'st in me behold When yellow leaves, or none, or few, do hang Upon those boughs which shake against the cold, Bare ruin'd choirs, where late the sweet birds sang.

In me thou see'st the twilight of such day
As after sunset fadeth in the west,
Which by and by black night doth take away,
Death's second self, that seals up all in rest.

In me thou see'st the glowing of such fire,
That on the ashes of his youth doth lie 10
As the death-bed whereon it must expire,
Consumed with that which it was nourish'd by:

-This thou perceiv'st, which makes thy love more strong,

To love that well which thou must leave ere long.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

REMEMBRANCE

When to the sessions of sweet silent thought
I summon up remembrance of things past,
I sigh the lack of many a thing I sought,
And with old woes new wail my dear time's waste;

Then can I drown an eye, unused to flow,
For precious friends hid in death's dateless night,
And weep afresh love's long-since-cancell'd woe,
And moan the expense of many a vanish'd sight.

Then can I grieve at grievances foregone, And heavily from woe to woe tell o'er The sad account of fore-bemoanéd moan, Which I new pay as if not paid before:

10

—But if the while I think on thee, dear friend, All losses are restored, and sorrows end.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

REVOLUTIONS

Like as the waves make towards the pebbled shore, So do our minutes hasten to their end; Each changing place with that which goes before, In sequent toil all forwards do contend.

Nativity, once in the main of light,
Crawls to maturity, wherewith being crown'd,
Crooked eclipses 'gainst his glory fight,
And Time that gave doth now his gift confound.

Time doth transfix the flourish set on youth,
And delves the parallels in beauty's brow; 10
Feeds on the rarities of nature's truth,
And nothing stands but for his scythe to mow:

And yet, to times in hope, my verse shall stand Praising thy worth, despite his cruel hand.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

Farewell! thou art too dear for my possessing, And like enough thou know'st thy estimate:
•The charter of thy worth gives thee releasing; My bonds in thee are all determinate.

For how do I hold thee but by thy granting?
And for that riches where is my deserving?
The cause of this fair gift in me is wanting,
And so my patent back again is swerving.

Thyself thou gav'st, thy own worth then not knowing,

Or me, to whom thou gav'st it, clse mistaking;
So thy great gift, upon misprision growing,

Comes home again, on better judgement making.

Thus have I had thee as a dream doth flatter; In sleep, a king; but waking, no such matter.

W. Shakespeare.

THE LIFE WITHOUT PASSION

They that have power to hurt, and will do none, That do not do the thing they most do show, Who, moving others, are themselves as stone, Unmovéd, cold, and to temptation slow,—

They rightly do inherit Heaven's graces,
And husband nature's riches from expense;
They are the lords and owners of their faces,
Others, but stewards of their excellence.

The summer's flower is to the summer sweet,
Though to itself it only live and die;
But if that flower with base infection meet,
The basest weed outbraves his dignity:

For sweetest things turn sourest by their deeds; Lilies that fester smell far worse than weeds.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

THE LOVER'S APPEAL

And wilt thou leave me thus?
Say nay! say nay! for shame!
To save thee from the blame
Or all my grief and grame.
And wilt thou leave me thus?
Say nay! say nay!

And wilt thou leave me thus,
That hath loved thee so long
In wealth and woe among?
And is thy heart so strong
As for to leave me thus?
Say nay! say nay!

And wilt thou leave me thus,
That hath given thee my heart
Never for to depart
Neither for pain nor smart?
And wilt thou leave me thus?
Say nay! say nay!

And wilt thou leave me thus,
And have no more pity
Of him that loveth thee?
Alas! thy cruelty!
And wilt thou leave me thus?
Say nay! say nay!

THE NIGHTINGALE

As it fell upon a day In the merry month of May, Sitting in a pleasant shade Which a grove of myrtles made,

Beasts did leap and birds did sing. 5 Trees did grow and plants did spring, Every thing did banish moan Save the Nightingale alone. She, poor bird, as all forlorn, Lean'd her breast up-till a thorn, 10 And there sung the dolefull'st ditty That to hear it was great pity. Fie. fie. fie. now would she cry: Tereu, tereu, by and by: That to hear her so complain 15 Scarce I could from tears refrain: For her griefs so lively shown Made me think upon mine own. -Ah, thought I, thou mourn'st in vain, None takes pity on thy pain: 20 Senseless trees, they cannot hear thee, Ruthless beasts, they will not cheer thee; King Pandion, he is dead, All thy friends are lapp'd in lead: All thy fellow birds do sing 25 Careless of thy sorrowing: Even so, poor bird, like thee None alive will pity me.

35

Care-charmer Sleep, son of the sable Night, Brother to Death, in silent darkness born, Relieve my languish, and restore the light; With dark forgetting of my care return.

And let the day be time enough to mourn
The shipwreck of my ill-adventured youth:
Let waking eyes suffice to wail their scorn,
Without the torment of the night's untruth.

Cease, dreams, the images of day-desires, To model forth the passions of the morrow;

Never let rising Sun approve you liars
To add more grief to aggravate my sorrow:
Still let me sleep, embracing clouds in vain,
And never wake to feel the day's disdain.

S. DANIEL.

26

MADRIGAL

Take, O take those lips away
That so sweetly were forsworn,
And those eyes, the break of day,
Lights that do mislead the morn:
But my kisses bring again,

Bring again—
Seals of love, but seal'd in vain,
Seal'd in vain!

W. SHAKESPEARE.

37

LOVE'S FAREWELL

Since there's no help, come let us kiss and part,— Nay I have done, you get no more of me; And I am glad, yea, glad with all my heart, That thus so cleanly I myself can free;

Shake hands for ever, cancel all our vows, And when we meet at any time again, Be it not seen in either of our brows That we one jot of former love retain.

Now at the last gasp of love's latest breath, When, his pulse failing, passion speechless lies, 10 When faith is kneeling by his bed of death, And innocence is closing up his eyes,

-Now if thou would'st, when all have given him over,

From death to life thou might'st him yet recover!

M. DRAYLON.

TO HIS LUTE

My lute, be as thou wert when thou didst grow
With thy green mother in some shady grove,
When immelodious winds but made thee move,
And birds their ramage did on thee bestow.

Since that dear Voice which did thy sounds approve, 5

Which wont in such harmonious strains to flow, Is reft from Earth to tune those spheres above, What art thou but a harbinger of woe?

Thy pleasing notes be pleasing notes no more, But orphans' wailings to the fainting ear; 10 Each stroke a sigh, each sound draws forth a tear:

For which be silent as in woods before:
Or if that any hand to touch thee deign,
Like widow'd turtle still her loss complain.

W. DRUMMOND.

39

BLIND LOVE

O me! what eyes hath love put in my head
Which have no correspondence with true sight:
Or if they have, where is my judgement fled
That censures falsely what they see aright?
If that be fair whereon my false eyes dote,
What means the world to say it is not so?
If it be not, then love doth well denote
Love's eye is not so true as all men's: No,
How can it? O how can love's eye be true,
That is so vex'd with watching and with tears?
No marvel then though I mistake my view:
The sun itself sees not till heaven clears.
O cunning Love! with tears thou keep'st me blind,
Lest eyes well-seeing thy foul faults should find!

W. SHAKESPEARE.

THE UNFAITHFUL SHEPHERDESS

While that the sun with his beams hot
Scorchéd the fruits in vale and mountain,
Philon the shepherd, late forgot,
Sitting beside a crystal fountain,
In shadow of a green oak tree
Upon his pipe this song play'd he:
Adieu Love, adieu Love, untrue Love,
Untrue Love, untrue Love, adieu Love;
Your mind is light, soon lost for new love.

So long as I was in your sight
I was your heart, your soul, and treasure;
And evermore you sobb'd and sigh'd
Burning in flames beyond all measure:
—Three days endured your love to me,
And it was lost in other three!
Adieu Love, adieu Love, untrue Love,
Untrue Love, untrue Love,
Your mind is light, soon lost for new love.

Another Shepherd you did see
To whom your heart was soon enchained;
Full soon your love was leapt from me,
Full soon my place he had obtained.
Soon came a third, your love to win,
And we were out and he was in.
Adieu Love, adieu Love, untrue Love,
Untrue Love, untrue Love,
Your mind is light, soon lost for new love.

Sure you have made me passing glad
That you your mind so soon removéd,
Before that I the leisure had
To choose you for my best belovéd:

For all your love was past and done Two days before it was begun:— Adieu Love, adieu Love, untrue Love, Untrue Love, untrue Love, adieu Love; Your mind is light, soon lost for new love.

A RENUNCIATION

If women could be fair, and yet not fond,
Or that their love were firm, not fickle still,
I would not marvel that they make men bond
By service long to purchase their good will;
But when I see how frail those creatures are,
I muse that men forget themselves so far.

To mark the choice they make, and how they change, How oft from Phoebus they do flee to Pan; Unsettled still, like haggards wild they range, These gentle birds that fly from man to man; 10 Who would not scorn and shake them from the fist, And let them fly, fair fools, which way they list?

Yet for disport we fawn and flatter both,

To pass the time when nothing else can please,
And train them to our lure with subtle oath,

Till, weary of their wiles, ourselves we ease;
And then we say when we their fancy try,
To play with fools, O what a fool was I!

E. VERE, EARL OF OXFORD.

Blow, blow, thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude;
Thy tooth is not so keen
Because thou art not seen,
Although thy breath be rude.

Heigh ho! sing heigh ho! unto the green holly:
Most friendship is feigning, most loving mere folly:
Then, heigh ho! the holly!
This life is most jolly.

Freeze, freeze, thou bitter sky,
That dost not bite so nigh
As benefits forgot:
Though thou the waters warp,
Thy sting is not so sharp
As friend remember'd not.

Heigh ho! sing heigh ho! unto the green holly:
Most friendship is feigning, most loving mere folly:
Then, heigh ho! the holly!
This life is most jolly.

MADRIGAL

My thoughts hold mortal strife
I do detest my life,
And with lamenting cries,
Peace to my soul to bring,
Oft call that prince which here doth monarchize: 5
—But he, grim grinning King,
Who caitiffs scorns, and doth the blest surprise,
Late having deck'd with beauty's rose his tomb,

Disdains to crop a weed and will not come.

W. DRIMMOND.

DIRGE OF LOVE

Come away, come away, Death, And in sad cypres let me be laid; Fly away, fly away, breath; I am slain by a fair cruel maid.

My shroud of white, stuck all with yew,	5
O prepare it!
My part of death, no one so true
Did share it.

Not a flower, not a flower sweet
On my black coffin let there be strown;
Not a friend, not a friend greet
My poor corpse, where my bones shall be thrown:
A thousand thousand sighs to save,
Lay me, O where

Sad true lover never find my grave, To weep there.

W. Shakespeare.

FIDELE

Fear no more the heat o' the sun
Nor the furious winter's rages;
Thou thy worldly task hast done,
Home art gone and ta'en thy wages:

Golden lads and girls all must,
As chimney-sweepers, come to dust.

Fear no more the frown o' the great,
Thou art past the tyrant's stroke;
Care no more to clothe and eat;
To thee the reed is as the oak:
The sceptre, learning, physic, must
All follow this, and come to dust.

Fear no more the lightning-flash
Nor the all-dreaded thunder-stone;
Fear not slander, censure rash;
Thou hast finish'd joy and moan:
All lovers young, all lovers must
Consign to thee, and come to dust.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

A SEA DIRGE

X

Full fathom five thy father lies:
Of his bones are coral made;
Those are pearls that were his eyes:
Nothing of him that doth fade
But doth suffer a sea-change
Into something rich and strange.
Sea-nymphs hourly ring his knell:
Hark! now I hear them,—
Ding, dong, bell.

W. Shakespeare.

47

A LAND DIRGE

Call for the robin-redbreast and the wren,
Since o'er shady groves they hover
And with leaves and flowers do cover
The friendless bodies of unburied men.
Call unto his funeral dole
The ant, the field-mouse, and the mole,
To rear him hillocks that shall keep him warm
And (when gay tombs are robb'd) sustain no harm;
But keep the wolf far thence, that's foe to men,
For with his nails he'll dig them up again.

J. Webster.

48

POST MORTEM

If thou survive my well-contented day When that churl Death my bones with dust shall cover,

And shalt by fortune once more re-survey
These poor rude lines of thy deceased lover;

Compare them with the bettering of the time,
And though they be outstripp'd by every pen,
Reserve them for my love, not for their rl.yme
Exceeded by the height of happier men.

O then vouchsafe me but this loving thought—
'Had my friend's muse grown with this growing age, 10

A dearer birth than this his love had brought To march in ranks of better equipage:

But since he died, and poets better prove, Theirs for their style I'll read, his for his love.'

W. SHAKESPEARE.

49

THE TRIUMPH OF DEATH

No longer mourn for me when I am dead
Than you shall hear the surly sullen bell
Give warning to the world, that I am fled
From this vile world, with vilest worms to dwell;
Nay, if you read this line, remember not
The hand that writ it; for I love you so,
That I in your sweet thoughts would be forgot
If thinking on me then should make you woe.

O if, I say, you look upon this verse

When I perhaps compounded am with clay, 10 Do not so much as my poor name rehearse, But let your love even with my life decay;

Lest the wise world should look into your moan, And mock you with me after I am gone.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

CUPID AND CAMPASPE

Cupid and my Campaspe play'd At cards for kisses; Cupid paid: He stakes his quiver, bow, and arrows, His mother's doves, and team of sparrows; Loses them too; then down he throws 5 The coral of his lip, the rose Growing on 's cheek (but none knows how); With these, the crystal of his brow. And then the dimple of his chin; All these did my Campaspe win: 10 At last he set her both his eyes— She won, and Cupid blind did rise. O Love! has she done this to thee? What shall, alas! become of me?

J. LYLY.

Pack, clouds, away, and welcome day,
With night we banish sorrow;
Sweet air blow soft, mount lark aloft
To give my Love good-morrow!
Wings from the wind to please her mind
Notes from the lark I'll borrow;
Bird prune thy wing, nightingale sing,
To give my Love good-morrow;
To give my Love good-morrow
Notes from them all I'll borrow.

Wake from thy nest, Robin-red-breast, Sing birds in every furrow; And from each bill, let music shrill Give my fair Love good-morrow! DDOTHALAMION

20

Calm was the day, and through the trembling air Sweet-breathing Zephyrus did softly play-A gentle spirit, that lightly did delay Hot Titan's beams, which then did glister fair; When I (whom sullen care. Through discontent of my long fruitless stay In princes' court, and expectation vain Of idle hopes, which still do fly away Like empty shadows, did afflict my brain) Walk'd forth to ease my pain 10 Along the shore of silver-streaming Thames; Whose rutty bank, the which his river hems, Was painted all with variable flowers. And all the meads adorn'd with dainty gems Fit to deck maidens' bowers, 15 And crown their paramours Against the bridal day, which is not long: Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song. There in a meadow by the river's side

A flock of nymphs I chanced to espy,
All lovely daughters of the flood thereby,
With goodly greenish locks all loose untied
As each had been a bride;

And each one had a little wicker basket Made of fine twigs, entrailéd curiously, In which they gather'd flowers to fill their flask And with fine fingers cropt full feateously The tender stalks on high.	25 e t ,
Of every sort which in that meadow grew They gather'd some; the violet, pallid blue, The little daisy that at evening closes, The virgin lily and the primrose true, With store of vermeil roses,	30
To deck their bridegrooms' posies Against the bridal day, which was not long: Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.	35
With that I saw two swans of goodly hue Come softly swimming down along the lee; Two fairer birds I yet did never see; The snow which doth the top of Pindus strow Did never whiter show, Nor Jove himself, when he a swan would be	40
For love of Leda, whiter did appear; Yet Leda was (they say) as white as he, Yet not so white as these, nor nothing near;	44
So purely white they were, That even the gentle stream, the which them ba Seem'd foul to them, and bade his billows spare
To wet their silken feathers, lest they might Soil their fair plumes with water not so fair, And mar their beauties bright, That shone as Heaven's light Against their bridal day, which was not long; Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.	50

Where off I gained gifts and goodly gross
Where oft I gained gifts and goodly grace

Of that great lord, which therein wont to dwell. Whose want too well now feels my friendless case; But ah! here fits not well Old woes, but joys, to tell

Against the bridal day, which is not long: Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

Yet therein now doth lodge a noble peer.

145 Great England's glory and the world's wide wonder.

Whose dreadful name late through all Spain did thunder,

And Hercules' two pillars standing near Did make to quake and fear:

Fair branch of honour, flower of chivalry! 150 That fillest England with thy triumphs' fame.

Joy have thou of thy noble victory,

And endless happiness of thine own name

That promiseth the same;

That through thy prowess and victorious arms 155 Thy country may be freed from foreign harms, And great Eliza's glorious name may ring

Through all the world, fill'd with thy wide alarms Which some brave Muse may sing

To ages following, 160

Upon the bridal day, which is not long: Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

From those high towers this noble lord issuing Like radiant Hesper, when his golden hair In th' ocean billows he hath bathéd fair. 165 Descended to the river's open viewing

With a great train ensuing.

Above the rest were goodly to be seen Two gentle knights of lovely face and feature, Beseeming well the bower of any queen, 170

With gifts of wit and ornaments of nature. Fit for so goodly stature,

That like the twins of Jove they seem'd in sight Which deck the baldric of the Heavens bright;

They two, forth pacing to the river's side, 175Received those two fair brides, their love's delight; Which, at th' appointed tide, Each one did make his bride Against their bridal day, which is not long: 179 Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song. E. Spenser. 54 THE HAPPY HEART Art thou poor, yet hast thou golden slumbers? O sweet content! Art thou rich, yet is thy mind perplexed? O punishment! Dost thou laugh to see how fools are vexed 5 To add to golden numbers, golden numbers? O sweet content! O sweet, O sweet content! Work apace, apace, apace; Honest labour bears a lovely face: Then hey nonny nonny, hey nonny nonny! 10 Canst drink the waters of the crispéd spring? O sweet content! Swimm'st thou in wealth, yet sink'st in thine own tears? O punishment! Then he that patiently want's burden bears 15 No burden bears, but is a king, a king! O sweet content! O sweet, O sweet content! Work apace, apace, apace; Honest labour bears a lovely face;

Then hey nonny nonny, hey nonny nonny!

T. Dekker.

This Life, which seems so fair,
Is like a bubble blown up in the air
By sporting children's breath,
Who chase it everywhere
And strive who can most motion it bequeath.
And though it sometime seem of its own might,

Like to an eye of gold, to be fix'd there,
And firm to hover in that empty height,
That only is because it is so light.
—But in that pomp it doth not long appear;
For, when 'tis most admired, in a thought,
Because it crst was nought, it turns to nought.

SOUL AND BODY

Poor Soul, the centre of my sinful earth, [Fool'd by] those rebel powers that thee array, Why dost thou pine within, and suffer dearth, Painting thy outward walls so costly gay?

Why so large cost, having so short a lease,
Dost thou upon thy fading mansion spend?
Shall worms, inheritors of this excess,
Eat up thy charge? is this thy body's end?

Then, Soul, live thou upon thy servant's loss,
And let that pine to aggravate thy store;
Buy terms divine in selling hours of dross;
Within be fed, without be rich no more:—

So shalt thou feed on death, that feeds on men, And death once dead, there's no more dying then.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

STRILL

MITE
The World's a bubble, and the Life of Man Less than a span: In his conception wretched, from the womb So to the tomb; Curst from the cradle, and brought up to years With cares and fears. Who then to frail mortality shall trust,
But limns the water, or but writes in dust
Yet since with sorrow here we live opprest, What life is best?  Country and the relationships of the backs.
Courts are but only superficial schools  To dandle fools:  The rural parts are turn'd into a den
Of savage men: And where's a city from all vice so free, But may be term'd the worst of all the three?
Domestic cares afflict the husband's bed, Or pains his head: Those that live single, take it for a curse,
Or do things worse: 20 Some would have children: those that have them moan
Or wish them gone: What is it, then, to have, or have no wife,
But single thraldom, or a double strife?
Our own affections still at home to please Is a disease:
To cross the sea to any foreign soil,  Perils and toil:
Wars with their noise affright us; when they cease, We are worse in peace;———————————————————————————————————
What then remains, but that we still should cry Not to be born, or, being born, to die?
LORD BACON.

THE LESSONS OF NATURE

Of this fair volume which we World do name
If we the sheets and leaves could turn with care,
Of Him who it corrects, and did it frame,

We clear might read the art and wisdom rare:

Find out His power which wildest powers doth tame, 5

His providence extending everywhere,

His justice which proud rebels doth not spare, In every page, no period of the same.

But silly we, like foolish children, rest

Well pleased with colour'd vellum, leaves of gold, Fair dangling ribbands, leaving what is best, 11 On the great Writer's sense ne'er taking hold;

Or if by chance we stay our minds on aught, It is some picture on the margin wrought.

W. DRUMMOND.

Doth then the world go thus, doth all thus move?
Is this the justice which on Earth we find?
Is this that firm decree which all both bind?
Are these your influences, Powers above?

Those souls which vice's moody mists most blind, Blind Fortune, blindly, most their friend doth prove; And they who thee, poor idol, Virtue! love, Ply like a feather toss'd by storm and wind.

Ah! if a Providence doth sway this all,
Why should best minds groan under most distress?

Or why should pride humility make thrall, And injuries the innocent oppress?

Heavens! hinder, stop this fate; or grant a time When good may have, as well as bad, their prime.

W. DRUMMONL.

THE WORLD'S WAY

Tired with all these, for restful death I cry—As, to behold desert a beggar born,
And needy nothing trimm'd in jollity,
And purest faith unhappily forsworn,

And gilded honour shamefully misplaced, And maiden virtue rudely strumpeted, And right perfection wrongfully disgraced, And strength by limping sway disabled,

And art made tongue-tied by authority,
And folly, doctor-like, controlling skill,
10
And simple truth miscall'd simplicity,
And captive Good attending captain Ill:—
—Tired with all these, from these would I be gone,
Save that, to die, I leave my Love alone.

W. SHAKESPEARE.

SAINT JOHN BAPTIST

The last and greatest Herald of Heaven's King Girt with rough skins, hies to the deserts wild, Among that savage brood the woods forth bring, Which he more harmless found than man, and mild.

His food was locusts, and what there doth spring, With honey that from virgin hives distill'd; Parch'd body, hollow eyes, some uncouth thing Made him appear, long since from earth exiled.

There burst he forth: 'All ye whose hopes rely
On God, with me amidst these deserts mourn,
Repent, repent, and from old errors turn!' 11

—Who listen'd to his voice, obey'd his cry?
Only the echoes, which he made relent,
Rung from their flinty caves, Repent! Repent!

W. DRUMMOND.

ODE ON THE

MORNING OF CHRIST'S NATIVITY

This is the month, and this the happy morn
Wherein the Son of Heaven's Eternal King
Of wedded maid and virgin mother born,
Our great redemption from above did bring;
For so the holy sages once did sing
That He our deadly forfeit should release,
And with His Father work us a perpetual peace.

That glorious Form, that Light unsufferable, And that far-beaming blaze of Majesty Wherewith He wont at Heaven's high counciltable

To sit the midst of Trinal Unity, He laid aside; and, here with us to be, Forsook the courts of everlasting day, And chose with us a darksome house of mortal clay.

Say, heavenly Muse, shall not thy sacred vein
Afford a present to the Infant God?

Hast thou no verse, no hymn, or solemn strain
To welcome Him to this His new abode,
Now while the heaven, by the sun's team untrod.

Hath took no print of the approaching light, 20 And all the spangled host keep watch in squadrons bright?

See how from far, upon the eastern road,
The star-led wizards haste with odours sweet:
O run, prevent them with thy humble ode
And lay it lowly at His blessed feet;
25

Have thou the honour first thy Lord to greet, And join thy voice unto the angel quire From out His secret altar touch'd with hallow'd fire.

THE HYMN

It was the winter wild While the heaven-born Child All meanly wrapt in the rude manger lies; Nature in awe to Him	30
Had doff'd her gaudy trim, With her great Master so to sympathize: It was no season then for her To wanton with the sun, her lusty paramour.	35
Only with speeches fair She woos the gentle air To hide her guilty front with innocent snow; And on her naked shame, Pollute with sinful blame, The saintly veil of maiden white to throw; Confounded, that her Maker's eyes Should look so near upon her foul deformities.	40
But He, her fears to cease, Sent down the meek-eyed Peace; She, crown'd with olive green, came softly slid Down through the turning sphere, His ready harbinger, With turtle wing the amorous clouds dividin And waving wide her myrtle wand, She strikes a universal peace through sea and lar	g; 51
No war, or battle's sound Was heard the world around:	**

No war, or Dattle's sound
Was heard the world around:
The idle spear and shield were high uphung; 55
The hookéd chariot stood
Unstain'd with hostile blood;
The trumpet spake not to the arméd throng;
And kings sat still with awful eye,
As if they surely knew their sovran Lord was Ly. 60

But peaceful was the night
Wherein the Prince of Light
His reign of peace upon the earth began:
The winds, with wonder whist,
Smoothly the waters kist, 65
Whispering new joys to the mild ocean—
Who now hath quite forgot to rave,
While birds of calm sit brooding on the charméd wave.
The stars, with deep amaze,
Stand fix'd in steadfast gaze, 70
Bending one way their precious influence;
And will not take their flight
For all the morning light,
Or Lucifer that often warn'd them thence;
But in their glimmering orbs did glow 75
Until their Lord Himself bespake, and bid them go.
And though the shady gloom
Had given day her room,
The sun himself withheld his wonted speed,
And hid his head for shame, 80 As his inferior flame
The new-enlighten'd world no more should need:
The new-emignion a world no more should need:
He saw a greater Sun appear
Than his bright throne or burning axletree could bear.
bear.
The shepherds on the lawn 85
Or cre the point of dawn
Sate simply chatting in a rustic row;
Full little thought they than
That the mighty Pan
Was kindly come to live with them below; 90
Perhaps their loves, or else their sheep
Was all that did their silly thoughts so busy keep.
When such music sweet
Their hearts and ears did greet
As never was by mortal finger strook—
Divinely-warbled voice

Answering the stringéd noise,

As all their souls in blissful rapture took:
The air, such pleasure loth to lose,
With thousand echoes still prolongs each heavenly close.
Nature that heard such sound
Beneath the hollow round
Of Cynthia's seat the airy region thrilling,
Now was almost won
And that her reign had here its last fulfilling;
She knew such harmony alone
Could hold all heaven and earth in happier union.
At last surrounds their sight
A globe of circular light,
That with long beams the shamefaced night
array'd;
The helméd Cherubim
And sworded Seraphim
Are seen in glittering ranks with wings display'd,
Harping in loud and solemn quire 115
With unexpressive notes, to Heaven's new-born Heir.
Const
Such music (as 'tis said)
Before was never made
But when of old the sons of morning sung,
While the Creator great 120
His constellations set
And the well-balanced world on hinges hung;
And cast the dark foundations deep,
And bid the weltering waves their oozy channel keep.
Ring out, ye crystal spheres! 125
Once bless our human ears,
If ye have power to touch our senses so;
And let your silver chime
Move in melodious time;
And let the bass of heaven's deep organ blow;

And with your ninefold harmony Make up full consort to the angelic symphony.	131
For if such holy song,
Enwrap our fancy long,
Time will run back, and fetch the age of gold
And speckled vanity	136
Will sicken soon and die,	100
And leprous sin will melt from earthly mould
And Hell itself will pass away,	•
And hen usen win pass away, And leave her dolorous mansions to the peering d
And leave her dolorous mansions to the peering d	ay.
Yea, Truth and Justice then	141
Will down return to men,
Orb'd in a rainbow; and, like glories wearing	g,
Mercy will sit between
Throned in celestial sheen,	145
With radiant feet the tissued clouds do	wn steering;
And Heaven, as at some festival,
Will open wide the gates of her high palace hal	1.
But wisest Fate says No;
This must not yet be so;	150
The Babe yet lies in smiling infancy	100
That on the bitter cross
Must redeem our loss;
So both Himself and us to glorify:
Yet first, to those yehain'd in sleep	155
The wakeful trump of doom must thunder throu
the deep,	-6
• *
With such a horrid clang
As on mount Sinai rang	4
While the red fire and smouldering clouds of	HIT-
brake:	160
The aged Earth aghast With terror of that blast	100
Shall from the surface to the centre shake,
When, at the world's last session,
The dreadful Judge in middle air shall spread	Hie
throne.	TTIO
ULLUIIC.

And then at last our bliss	165
Full and perfect is,
But now begins; for from this happy day
The old Dragon under ground,
In straiter limits bound,
Not half so far casts his usurpéd sway;	170
And, wroth to see his kingdom fail,
Swinges the scaly horror of his folded tail.
The oracles are dumb;
No voice or hideous hum
Runs through the archéd roof in words deceiv	ing:
Apollo from his shrine	176
Can no more divine,	110
With hollow shriek the steep of Delphos leavi	ina •
No nightly trance or breathed spell	mg .
Inspires the pale avad priest from the prophetic	0011
Inspires the pale-eyed priest from the prophetic
The lonely mountains o'er	181
And the resounding shore
A voice of weeping heard, and loud lament	;
From haunted spring and dale
Edged with poplar pale	185
The parting Genius is with sighing sent;
With flower-inwoven tresses torn
The nymphs in twilight shade of tangled thic	kets mourn.
In consecrated earth
And on the holy hearth	190
The Lars and Lemures moan with midn	ight plaint;
In urns, and altars round
A drear and dying sound
Affrights the Flamens at their service quair	ıt •
And the chill marble seems to sweat,	195
While each peculiar Power forgoes his wonted

Peor and Baalim
Forsake their temples dim,
With that twice-batter'd god of Palestine;	(MAXII)
And mooned Ashtaroth	200
Heaven's queen and mother both,

Now sits not girt with tapers' holy shine; The Lybic Hammon shrinks his horn, In vain the Tyrian maids their wounded Thammourn.	nuz
And sullen Moloch, fled,	205
Hath left in shadows dread	_00
His burning idol all of blackest hue;
In vain with cymbals' ring
They call the grisly king,	010
In dismal dance about the furnace blue;	210
The brutish gods of Nile as fast,
Isis, and Orus, and the dog Anubis, haste.
Nor is Osiris seen
In Memphian grove, or green,
Trampling the unshower'd grass with low loud:	215
Nor can he be at rest	210
Within his sacred chest;
Nought but profoundest hell can be his shro	ud :
In vain with timbrell'd anthems dark	,
The sable-stoléd sorcerers bear his worshipt ar	k.
He feels from Juda's land	221
The dreaded infant's hand;
The rays of Bethlehem blind his dusky eyn	;
Nor all the gods beside
Longer dare abide,	225
Not Typhon huge ending in snaky twine:
Our Babe, to show his Godhead true, Can in His swaddling bands control the dam	ná4
crew.	пеа
So, when the sun in bed Curtain'd with cloudy red	230
Pillows his chin upon an orient wave,	200
The flocking shadows pale
Troop to the infernal jail,
Each fetter'd ghost slips to his several grave	;
And the yellow-skirted fays	235
Fly after the night-steeds, leaving their moon-lo	•••ed maze.

MILTON

But see, the Virgin blest
Hath laid her Babe to rest;
Time is, our tedious song should here have ending:
Heaven's youngest-teeméd star 240
Hath fix'd her polish'd car,
Her sleeping Lord with hand-maid lamp attending:
And all about the courtly stable
Bright-harness'd angels sit in order serviceable.

SONG FOR SAINT CECILIA'S DAY, 1687
From Harmony, from heavenly Harmony
This universal frame began:
When Nature underneath a heap
Of jarring atoms lay
And could not heave her head, 5
The tuneful voice was heard from high
Arise, ye more than dead!
Then cold, and hot, and moist, and dry
In order to their stations leap,
And Music's power obey.
From harmony, from heavenly harmony
This universal frame began:
From harmony to harmony
Through all the compass of the notes it ran,
The diapason closing full in Man. 15
What passion cannot Music raise and quell?
When Jubal struck the chorded shell
His listening brethren stood around,
And, wondering, on their faces fell
To worship that celestial sound. 20
Less than a god they thought there could not dwell
Within the hollow of that shell
That spoke so sweetly and so well.  What passion cannot Music raise and quell?

The trumpet's loud clangor Excites us to arms, With shrill notes of anger And mortal alarms. The double double beat Of the thundering drum Cries ' Hark! the foes come; Charge, charge, 'tis too late to retreat!'	25 30
The soft complaining flute In dying notes discovers The woes of hopeless lovers, Whose dirge is whisper'd by the warbling lute.	35
Sharp violins proclaim Their jealous pangs and desperation, Fury, frantic indignation, Depth of pains, and height of passion For the fair disdainful dame.	40
But oh! what art can teach, What human voice can reach The sacred organ's praise? Notes inspiring holy love, Notes that wing their heavenly ways To mend the choirs above.	45
Orpheus could lead the savage race, And trees unrooted left their place Sequacious of the lyre: But bright Cecilia raised the wonder higher: When to her Organ vocal breath was given, An Angel heard, and straight appear'd— Mistaking Earth for Heaven!	50
Grand Chorus
As from the power of sacred lays The spheres began to move, And sung the great Creator's praise To all the blest above;	55

So when the last and dreadful hour This crumbling pageant shall devour The trumpet shall be heard on high, The dead shall live, the living die, And Music shall untune the sky.

ON THE LATE MASSACRE IN PIEDMONT

Avenge, O Lord! Thy slaughter'd Saints, whose bones

Lie scatter'd on the Alpine mountains cold; Even them who kept Thy truth so pure of old, When all our fathers worshipt stocks and stones,

Forget not: in Thy book record their groans 5 Who were Thy sheep, and in their ancient fold Slain by the bloody Piemontese, that roll'd Mother with infant down the rocks. Their moans

The vales redoubled to the hills, and they
To Heaven. Their martyr'd blood and ashes sow
O'er all the Italian fields, where still doth sway

The triple tyrant: that from these may grow A hundred-fold, who, having learnt Thy way, Early may fly the Babylonian woe.

HORATIAN ODE UPON CROMWELL'S RETURN FROM IRELAND

The forward youth that would appear, Must now forsake his Muses dear, Nor in the shadows sing His numbers languishing.

'Tis time to leave the books in dust, And oil th' unuséd armour's rust, Removing from the wall The corslet of the hall.

So restless Cromwell could not cease In the inglorious arts of peace, But through adventurous war Urged his active star	10
And like the three-fork'd lightning, first Breaking the clouds where it was nurst, Did thorough his own side His fiery way divide	15
(For 'tis all one to courage high The emulous, or enemy, And with such, to enclose Is more than to oppose,)	20
Then burning through the an he went And palaces and temples rent, And Caesar's head at last Did through his laurels blast.
'Tis madness to resist or blame The face of angry heaven's flame, And if we would speak true, Much to the man is due	25
Who, from his private gaidens, where He lived reservéd and austere (As if his highest plot To plant the bergamot),	30
Could by industrious valour climb To ruin the great work of Time, And cast the Kingdoms old Into another mould,	35
Though Justice against Fate complain, And plead the ancient Rights in vain— But those do hold or break As men are strong or weak	40
Nature, that hateth emptiness, Allows of penetration less, And therefore must make room Where greater spirits come

MARVELL 53 What field of all the Civil War 45 Where his were not the deepest scar? And Hampton shows what part He had of wiser art. Where, twining subtle fears with hope, He wove a net of such a scope 50 That Charles himself might chase To Carisbrook's narrow case. That thence the Royal actor borne The tragic scaffold might adorn While round the armed bands 55 Did clap their bloody hands, He nothing common did or mean Upon that memorable scene. But with his keener eye The axe's edge did try, 60 Nor call'd the Gods, with vulgar spite. To vindicate his helpless right. But bow'd his comely head Down, as upon a bed —This was that memorable hour 65 Which first assured the forced power So when they did design The Capitol's first line, A Bleeding Head, where they begun, Did fright the architects to run, 70 And yet in that the State Foresaw its happy fate! And now the Irish are ashamed To see themselves in one year tamed So much one man can do 75 That does both act and know They can affirm his praises best,

And have, though overcome, confest How good he is, how just And fit for highest trust,

Nor yet grown stiffer with command, But still in the Republic's hand— How fit he is to sway That can so well obey!—
He to the Commons' feet presents A Kingdom for his first year's rents, And (what he may) forbears His fame, to make it theirs:	85
And has his sword and spoils ungirt To lay them at the Public's skirt. So when the falcon high Falls heavy from the sky,	90
She, having kill'd, no more does search But on the next green bough to percl., Where, when he first does lure, The falconer has her sure.	95
—What may not then our Isle presume While victory his crest does plume? What may not others fear If thus he crowns each year?	100
As Caesar he, ere long, to Gaul, To Italy an Hannibal, And to all states not free Shall climacteric be.
The Pict no shelter now shall find Within his parti-colour'd mind, But from this valour sad, Shrink underneath the plaid—	105
Happy, if in the tufted brake The English hunter him mistake, Nor lay his hounds in near The Caledonian deer.	110
But thou, the War's and Fortune's son, March indefatigably on; And for the last effect Still keep the sword erect:	115

Besides the force it has to fright The spirits of the shady night, The same arts that did gain A power, must it maintain.

LYCIDAS

Elegy on a Friend drowned in the Irish Channel Yet once more, O ye laurels, and once more Ye myrtles brown, with ivy never sere, I come to pluck your berries harsh and crude, And with forced fingers rude Shatter your leaves before the mellowing year. 5 Bitter constraint, and sad occasion dear Compels me to disturb your season due: For Lycidas is dead, dead ere his prime, Young Lycidas, and hath not left his peer: Who would not sing for Lycidas? he knew Himself to sing, and build the lofty rhyme. He must not float upon his watery bier Unwept, and welter to the parching wind, Without the meed of some melodious tear.

Begin then, Sisters of the sacred well 15 That from beneath the seat of Jove doth spring, Begin, and somewhat loudly sweep the string. Hence with denial vain and coy excuse: So may some gentle Muse With lucky words favour my destined urn: 20 And as he passes, turn And bid fair peace be to my sable shroud.

For we were nursed upon the self-same hill, Fed the same flock by fountain, shade, and rill. Together both, cre the high lawns appear'd 25 Under the opening eve-lids of the morn, We drove a-field, and both together heard What time the gray-fly winds her sultry horn, Battening our flocks with the fresh dews of night, Oft till the star, that rose at evening bright, 30 Toward heaven's descent had sloped his westering wheel.

Meanwhile the rural ditties were not mute, Temper'd to the oaten flute; Rough Satyrs danced, and Fauns with cloven heel From the glad sound would not be absent long; And old Damoetas loved to hear our song.

But O the heavy change, now thou art gone,
Now thou art gone, and never must return!
Thee, Shepherd, thee the woods, and desert caves,
With wild thyme and the gadding vine o'ergrown,
And all their echoes, mourn:

The willows and the hazel copses green
Shall now no more be seen
Fanning their joyous leaves to thy soft lays.
As killing as the canker to the rose,
Or taint-worm to the weanling herds that graze,
Or frost to flowers, that their gay wardrobe wear
When first the white-thorn blows;
Such, Lycidas, thy loss to shepherd's ear.

Where were ye, Nymphs, when the remorseless deep 50

Closed o'er the head of your loved Lycidas?
For neither were ye playing on the steep
Where your old bards, the famous Druids, lie,
Nor on the shaggy top of Mona high,
Nor yet where Deva spreads her wizard stream:
Ay me! I fondly dream—
58
Had ye been there—for what could that have done?
What could the Muse herself that Orpheus bore,
The Muse herself, for her enchanting son,
Whom universal nature did lament,
When by the rout that made the hideous roar
His gory visage down the stream was sent,
Down the swift Hebrus to the Lesbian shore?

Alas! what boots it with uncessant care
To tend the homely, slighted, shepherd's trade
And strictly meditate the thankless Muse?
66
Were it not better done, as others use,

To sport with Amaryllis in the shade. Or with the tangles of Neaera's hair? 69 Fame is the spur that the clear spirit doth raise (That last infirmity of noble mind) To scorn delights, and live laborious days; But the fair guerdon when we hope to find, And think to burst out into sudden blaze. 74 Comes the blind Fury with the abhorréd shears And slits the thin-spun life. 'But not the praise' Phoebus replied, and touch'd my trembling ears; 'Fame is no plant that grows on mortal soil, Nor in the glistering foil 79 Set off to the world, nor in broad rumour lies: But lives and spreads aloft by those pure eyes And perfect witness of all-judging Jove; As he pronounces lastly on each deed, Of so much fame in heaven expect thy meed.' 84

O fountain Arethuse, and thou honour'd flood Smooth-sliding Mincius, crown'd with vocal reeds, That strain I heard was of a higher mood: But now my oat proceeds, And listens to the herald of the sea That came in Neptune's plea; 90 He ask'd the waves, and ask'd the felon winds, What hard mishap hath doom'd this gentle swain? And question'd every gust of rugged wings That blows from off each beaked promontory: They knew not of his story; 95 And sage Hippotades their answer brings, That not a blast was from his dungeon stray'd; The air was calm, and on the level brine Sleek Panope with all her sisters play'd. It was that fatal and perfidious bark 100 Built in the eclipse, and rigg'd with curses dark, That sunk so low that sacred head of thine.

Next Camus, reverend sire, went footing slow, His mantle hairy, and his bonnet sedge, Inwrought with figures dim, and on the edge 105 Like to that sanguine flower inscribed with woe: 'Ah! who hath reft,' quoth he, 'my dearest pledge? Last came, and last did go

The pilot of the Galilean lake:

Two massy keys he bore of metals twain 110 (The golden opes, the iron shuts amain); He shook his mitred locks, and stern bespake:

'How well could I have spared for thee, young swain,

Enow of such as for their bellies' sake Creep and intrude and climb into the fold! 115 Of other care they little reckoning make Than how to scramble at the shearers' feast. And shove away the worthy bidden guest. Blind mouths! that scarce themselves know how to hold

A sheep-hook, or have learn'd aught else the least That to the faithful herdman's art belongs! What recks it them? What need they? are sped:

And when they list, their lean and flashy songs Grate on their scrannel pipes of wretched straw; The hungry sheep look up, and are not fed, 125 But swoln with wind and the rank mist they draw Rot inwardly, and foul contagion spread: Besides what the grim wolf with privy paw Daily devours apace, and nothing said: -But that two-handed engine at the door 130 Stands ready to smite once, and smite no more.'

Return, Alpheus, the dread voice is past That shrunk thy streams: return. Sicilian Muse. And call the vales, and bid them hither cast Their bells and flowerets of a thousand hues. 135 Ye valleys low, where the mild whispers use Of shades, and wanton winds, and gushing brooks, On whose fresh lap the swart star sparely looks, Throw hither all your quaint enamell'd eyes That on the green turf suck the honey'd showers And purple all the ground with vernal flowers.

Bring the rathe primrose that forsaken dies, The tufted crow-toe, and pale jessamine, The white pink, and the pansy freak'd with jet, The glowing violet, The musk-rose, and the well-attired woodbine, With cowslips wan that hang the pensive head, And every flower that sad embroidery wears: Bid amarantus all his beauty shed, And daffadillies fill their cups with tears 150 To strew the laureat hearse where Lycid lies. For, so to interpose a little ease, Let our frail thoughts dally with false surmise; Ay me! whilst thee the shores and sounding seas Wash far away,—where'er thy bones are hurl'd, Whether beyond the stormy Hebrides 156 Where thou perhaps, under the whelming tide, Visitest the bottom of the monstrous world: Or whether thou, to our moist vows denied, Sleep'st by the fable of Bellerus old. 160 Where the great Vision of the guarded mount Looks toward Namancos and Bayona's hold, -Look homeward, Angel, now, and melt with ruth: —And, O ye dolphins, waft the hapless youth!

Weep no more, woeful shepherds, weep no more, 165

For Lycidas, your sorrow, is not dead, Sunk though he be beneath the watery floor; So sinks the day-star in the ocean-bed, And yet anon repairs his drooping head And tricks his beams, and with new-spangled ore Flames in the forehead of the morning sky: 171

So Lycidas sunk low, but mounted high Through the dear might of Him that walk'd the waves; Where, other groves and other streams along,

Where, other groves and other streams along, With nectar pure his oozy locks he laves, 175 And hears the unexpressive nuptial song In the blest kingdoms meek of joy and love. There entertain him all the saints above
In solemn troops, and sweet societies,
That sing, and singing in their glory move,
And wipe the tears for ever from his eyes.
Now, Lycidas, the shepherds weep no more;
Henceforth thou art the Genius of the shore
In thy large recompense, and shalt be good
To all that wander in that perilous flood.

Thus sang the uncouth swain to theoaks and rills, While the still morn went out with sandals grey; He touch'd the tender stops of various quills, With eager thought warbling his Doric lay: And now the sun had stretch'd out all the hills, And now was dropt into the western bay: 191 At last he rose, and twitch'd his mantle blue: To-morrow to fresh woods, and pastures new.

ON THE TOMBS IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY

Mortality, behold and fear, What a change of flesh is here! Think how many royal bones Sleep within these heaps of stones; Here they lie, had realms and lands, 5 Who now want strength to stir their hands, Where from their pulpits scal'd with dust They preach, 'In greatness is no trust.' Here's an acre sown indeed With the richest royallest seed 10 That the earth did e'er suck in Since the first man died for sin: Here the bones of birth have cried 'Though gods they were, as men they died!' Here are sands, ignoble things, 15 Dropt from the ruin'd sides of kings: Here's a world of pomp and state Buried in dust, once dead by fate.

THE LAST CONQUEROR

Victorious men of earth, no more Proclaim how wide your empires are; Though you bind-in every shore, And your triumphs reach as far

As night or day,

Yet you, proud monarchs, must obey And mingle with forgotten ashes, when Death calls ye to the crowd of common men.

Devouring Famine, Plague, and War,
Each able to undo mankind, 10
Death's servile emissaries are;
Nor to these alone confined,
He hath at will
More quaint and subtle ways to kill;
A smile on king on he will was the out.

A smile or kiss, as he will use the art, 15 Shall have the cunning skill to break a heart.

DEATH THE LEVELLER

The glories of our blood and state
Are shadows, not substantial things;
There is no armour against fate;
Death lays his iey hand on kings:

Sceptre and Crown Must tumble down,

And in the dust be equal made With the poor crooked seythe and spade.

Some men with swords may reap the field,
And plant fresh laurels where they kill:
But their strong nerves at last must yield;
They tame but one another still:

Early or late They stoop to fate,

And must give up their murmuring breath When they, pale captives, creep to death. 15

20

The garlands wither on your brow;
Then boast no more your mighty deeds;

Upon Death's purple altar now

See where the victor-victim bleeds:

Your heads must come To the cold tomb:

Only the actions of the just

Smell sweet, and blossom in their dust.

WHEN THE ASSAULT WAS INTENDED TO THE CITY

Captain, or Colonel, or Knight in arms, Whose chance on these defenceless doors may seize,

If deed of honour did thee ever please, Guard them, and him within protect from harms.

He can requite thee; for he knows the charms
That call fame on such gentle acts as these,
And he can spread thy name o'er lands and seas,
Whatever clime the sun's bright circle warms.

Lift not thy spear against the Muses' bower:
The great Emathian conqueror bid spare
The house of Pindarus, when temple and tower

Went to the ground: and the repeated air Of sad Electra's poet had the power To save the Athenian walls from ruin bare.

J. MILTON.

ON HIS BLINDNESS

When I consider how my light is spent
Ere half my days, in this dark world and wide,
And that one talent which is death to hide
Lodged with me useless, though my soul more bent

To serve therewith my Maker, and present
My true account, lest He returning chide,—
Doth God exact day-labour, light denied?
I fondly ask:—But Patience, to prevent

That murmur, soon replies; God doth not need Either man's work, or His own gifts: who best Bear His mild yoke, they serve Him best: His state

Is kingly; thousands at His bidding speed
And post o'er land and ocean without rest:—
They also serve who only stand and wait.

CHARACTER OF A HAPPY LIFE

How happy is he born or taught That serveth not another's will; Whose armour is his honest thought, And silly truth his highest skill!

Whose passions not his masters are,
Whose soul is still prepared for death;
Untied unto the world with care
Of princely love or vulgar breath;

Who hath his life from rumours freed,
Whose conscience is his strong retreat;
Whose state can neither flatterers feed,
Nor ruin make accusers great:

Who envieth none whom chance doth raise Or vice; who never understood How deepest wounds are given with praise; Nor rules of state, but rules of good:

, 14

Who God doth late and early pray More of his grace than gifts to lend; Who entertains the harmless day With a well-chosen book or friend;

20

—This man is free from servile bands Of hope to rise, or fear to fall; Lord of himself, though not of lands; And having nothing, he hath all.

SIR H. WOTTON.

73

THE NOBLE NATURE

It is not growing like a tree
In bulk, doth make Man better be;
Or standing long an oak, three hundred year,
To fall a log at last, dry, bald, and sere:

A lily of a day Is fairer far in May,

Although it fall and die that night; It was the plant and flower of Light. In small proportions we just beauties see; And in short measures life may perfect be.

B. Jonson.

74

THE GIFTS OF GOD

When God at first made Man, Having a glass of blessings standing by; Let us (said He) pour on him all we can: Let the world's riches, which disperséd lie Contract into a span. 5

So strength first made a way;
Then beauty flow'd, then wisdom, honour, pleasure:
When almost all was out, God made a stay,
Perceiving that alone, of all His treasure,
Rest in the bottom lay.

For if I should (said He)
Bestow this jewel also on my creature,
He would adore my gifts instead of me,
And rest in Nature, not the God of Nature:
So both should losers be.

Yet let him keep the rest,
But keep them with repining restlessness:
Let him be rich and weary, that at least,
If goodness lead him not, yet weariness
May toss him to my breast.

G. Herbert.

THE RETREAT

Happy those early days, when I Shined in my Angel-infancy! Before I understood this place Appointed for my second race, Or taught my soul to fancy aught 5 But a white, celestial thought; When yet I had not walk'd above A mile or two from my first Love. And looking back, at that short space Could see a glimpse of His bright face; 10 When on some gilded cloud or flower My gazing soul would dwell an hour, And in those weaker glories spy Some shadows of eternity: Before I taught my tongue to wound 15 My conscience with a sinful sound, Or had the black art to dispense A several sin to every sense,

But felt through all this fleshly dress Bright shoots of everlastingness.

O how I long to travel back,
And tread again that ancient track!
That I might once more reach that plain,
Where first I left my glorious train;
From whence th' enlighten'd spirit sees
That shady City of Palm trees!
But ah! my soul with too much stay
Is drunk, and staggers in the way:—
Some men a forward motion love,
But I by backward steps would move;
And when this dust falls to the urn,
In that state I came, return.

H. VAUGHAN.

TO MR. LAWRENCE

Lawrence, of virtuous father virtuous son,
Now that the fields are dank and ways are mire,
Where shall we sometimes meet, and by the fire
Help waste a sullen day, what may be won

From the hard season gaining? Time will run
On smoother, till Favonius re-inspire
The frozen earth, and clothe in fresh attire
The lily and rose, that neither sow'd nor spun.

What neat repast shall feast us, light and choice, Of Attic taste, with wine, whence we may rise To hear the lute well touch'd, or artful voice

Warble immortal notes and Tuscan air? He who of those delights can judge, and spare To interpose them oft, is not unwise.

J. MILTON.

TO CYRIACK SKINNER

Cyriack, whose grandsire, on the royal bench Of British Themis, with no mean applause Pronounced, and in his volumes taught, our laws, Which others at their bar so often wrench;

To-day deep thoughts resolve with me to drench In mirth, that after no repenting draws; Let Euclid rest, and Archimedes pause, And what the Swede intend, and what the French.

To measure life learn thou betimes, and know 9
Toward solid good what leads the nearest way;
For other things mild Heaven a time ordains,

And disapproves that care, though wise in show,
That with superfluous burden loads the day,
And, when God sends a cheerful hour, refrains.

HYMN TO DIANA

Queen and Huntress, chaste and fair, Now the sun is laid to sleep, Seated in thy silver chair State in wonted manner keep: Hesperus entreats thy light, Goddess excellently bright.

Earth, let not thy envious shade
Dare itself to interpose;
Cynthia's shining orb was made
Heaven to clear when day did close:
Bless us then with wished sight,
Goddess excellently bright.

Lay thy bow of pearl apart
And thy crystal-shining quiver;
Give unto the flying hart	15
Space to breathe, how short soever:
Thou that mak'st a day of night,
Goddess excellently bright!
B. Jonson.

WISHES FOR THE SUPPOSED MISTRESS

Whoe'er she be, That not impossible She That shall command my heart and me;
Where'er she lie, Lock'd up from mortal eye In shady leaves of destiny :	5
Till that ripe birth Of studied Fate stand forth, And teach her fair steps tread our earth;
Till that divine Idea take a shrine Of crystal flesh, through which to shine:	10
—Meet you her, my Wishes, Bespeak her to my blisses, And be ye call'd, my absent kisses.	15
I wish her beauty That owes not all its duty To gaudy tire, or glist'ring shoe-tie:
Something more than Taffata or tissue can, Or rampant feather, or rich fan.	20
A face that's best By its own beauty drest, And can alone commend the rest:

CR.	Δ	c	н	Λ	w

A foco modo un	25
A face made up Out of no other shop	20
Than what Nature's white hand sets ope.
Sidneian showers
Of sweet discourse, whose powers
Can crown old Winter's head with flower	s.
Whate'er delight	31
Can make day's forehead bright
Or give down to the wings of night.
Soft silken hours,
Open suns, shady bowers;	35

Days, that need borrow
No part of their good morrow
From a fore-spent night of sorrow:

Days, that in spite	40
Of darkness, by the light
Of a clear mind are day all night.
Life, that dares send
A challenge to his end,	44
And when it comes, say, Welcome, frien	d.
I wish her store
Of worth may leave her poor
Of wishes; and I wish—no more.
-Now, if Time knows
That Her, whose radiant brows	50
Weave them a garland of my vows;
Her that dares be
What these lines wish to see:
I seek no further, it is She.
'Tis She, and here	55
Lo! I unclothe and clear
My wishes' cloudy character.
Such worth as this is
Shall fix my flying wishes,	ac
And determine them to kisses.	60

Let her full glory,
My fancies, fly before ye;
Be ye my fictions:—but her story.

THE GREAT ADVENTURER

Over the mountains
And over the waves,
Under the fountains
And under the graves;
Under floods that are deepest,
Which Neptune obey;
Over rocks that are steepest
Love will find out the way.

Where there is no place
For the glow-worm to lie;
Where there is no space
For receipt of a fly;
Where the midge dares not venture
Lest herself fast she lay;
If love come, he will enter
And soon find out his way.

You may esteem him
A child for his might;
Or you may deem him
A coward from his flight;
But if she whom love doth honour
Be conceal'd from the day,
Set a thousand guards upon her,
Love will find out the way.

Some think to lose him
By having him confined;
And some do suppose him,
Poor thing, to be blind;

		SIR	C.	SED	LE	$\mathbf{Y}$
But	if	ne'er	so	close	ye	wall	him,

CHILD AND MAIDEN
Ah, Chloris! that I now could sit As unconcern'd as when Your infant beauty could beget No pleasure, nor no pain! When I the dawn used to admire, And praised the coming day, I little thought the growing fire Must take my rest away.	5
Your charms in harmless childhood lay Like metals in the mine;	10

My passion with your beauty grew, And Cupid at my heart, Still as his mother favour'd you, Threw a new flaming dart:

Age from no face took more away Than youth conceal'd in thine. But as your charms insensibly To their perfection prest, Fond love as unperceived did fly,

And in my bosom rest.

COUNSEL TO GIRLS

Gather ye rose-buds while ye may, Old Time is still a-flying: And this same flower that smiles to-day, To-morrow will be dying.

The glorious Lamp of Heaven, the Sun,
The higher he's a-getting
The sooner will his race be run,
And nearer he's to setting.

That age is best which is the first,
When youth and blood are warmer;
But being spent, the worse, and worst
Times, still succeed the former.

Then be not coy, but use your time;
And while ye may, go marry:
For having lost but once your prime,
You may for ever tarry.

TO LUCASTA, ON GOING TO THE WARS

Tell me not, Sweet, I am unkind That from the nunnery Of thy chaste breast and quiet mind To war and arms I fly.

True, a new mistress now I chase,
The first foe in the field;
And with a stronger faith embrace
A sword, a horse, a shield.

ELIZABETH OF BOHEMIA

You meaner beauties of the night, That poorly satisfy our eyes More by your number than your light, You common people of the skies, What are you, when the Moon shall rise?

You curious chanters of the wood
That warble forth dame Nature's lays,
Thinking your passions understood
By your weak accents; what's your praise
When Philomel her voice shall raise?

You violets that first appear,
By your pure purple mantles known
Like the proud virgins of the year,
As if the spring were all your own,—
What are you, when the Rose is blown?

15

So when my Mistress shall be seen
In form and beauty of her mind,
By virtue first, then choice, a Queen,
Tell me, if she were not design'd
Th' eclipse and glory of her kind?

TO THE LADY MARGARET LEY

Daughter to that good Earl, once President Of England's Council and her Treasury, Who lived in both, unstain'd with gold or fee, And left them both, more in himself content,

Till the sad breaking of that Parliament Broke him, as that dishonest victory At Chaeronea, fatal to liberty, Kill'd with report that old man eloquent;—

Though later born than to have known the days Wherein your father flourish'd, yet by you, Madam, methinks I see him living yet;

So well your words his noble virtues praise, That all both judge you to relate them true, And to possess them, honour'd Margaret.

THE LOVELINESS OF LOVE

It is not Beauty I demand, A crystal brow, the moon's despair, Nor the snow's daughter, a white hand, Nor mermaid's yellow pride of hair:

Tell me not of your starry eyes,
Your lips that seem on roses fed,
Your breasts, where Cupid trembling lies
Nor sleeps for kissing of his bed:—

A bloomy pair of vermeil cheeks
Like Hebe's in her ruddiest hours,
A breath that softer music speaks
Than summer winds a-wooing flowers,

DARLEY 75

These are but gauds: nay, what are lips? Coral beneath the ocean-stream, Whose brink when your adventurer sips Full oft he perisheth on them.	15
And what are cheeks, but ensigns oft That wave hot youth to fields of blood? Did Helen's breast, though ne'er so soft, Do Greece or Ilium any good?	20
Eyes can with baleful ardour burn; Poison can breath, that erst perfumed; There's many a white hand holds an urn With lovers' hearts to dust consumed.
For crystal brows—there's nought within; They are but empty cells for pride; He who the Syren's hair would win Is mostly strangled in the tide.	25
Give me, instead of Beauty's bust, A tender heart, a loyal mind Which with temptation I could trust, Yet never link'd with error find,—	30
One in whose gentle bosom I Could pour my secret heart of woes, Like the care-burthen'd honey-fly That hides his murmurs in the rose,—	35
My earthly Comforter! whose love So indefeasible might be That, when my spirit won above, Hers could not stay, for sympathy.	40
G. DARLEY.

THE TRUE BEAUTY

He that loves a rosy cheek Or a coral lip admires, Or from star-like eyes doth seek Fuel to maintain his fires; As old Time makes these decay, So his flames must waste away.

But a smooth and steadfast mind,
Gentle thoughts, and calm desires,
Hearts with equal love combined,
Kindle never-dying fires:—
Where these are not, I despise
Lovely cheeks or lips or eyes.

TO DIANEME

Sweet, be not proud of those two eyes Which starlike sparkle in their skies; Nor be you proud, that you can see All hearts your captives; yours yet free: Be you not proud of that rich hair Which wantons with the lovesick air; Whenas that ruby which you wear, Sunk from the tip of your soft ear, Will last to be a precious stone When all your world of beauty's gone.

R. HERRICK.

Go, lovely Rose!
Tell her, that wastes her time and me,
That now she knows,
When I resemble her to thee,
How sweet and fair she seems to be.

Tell her that's young
And shuns to have her graces spied,
That hadst thou sprung
In deserts, where no men abide,
Thou must have uncommended died.

10

20

Small is the worth
Of beauty from the light retired:
Bid her come forth,
Suffer herself to be desired,
And not blush so to be admired.

Then die! that she The common fate of all things rare May read in thee: How small a part of time they share That are so wondrous sweet and fair!

TO CELIA

Drink to me only with thine eyes, And I will pledge with mine; Or leave a kiss but in the cup And I'll not look for wine. The thirst that from the soul doth rise 5 Doth ask a drink divine; But might I of Jove's nectar sup. I would not change for thine.

I sent thee late a rosy wreath, Not so much honouring thee 10 As giving it a hope that there It could not wither'd be: But thou thereon didst only breathe And sent'st it back to me; Since when it grows, and smells, I swear, Not of itself but thee!

B. JONSON.

CHERRY-RIPE

Those cherries fairly do enclose
Of orient pearl a double row,
Which when her lovely laughter shows,
They look like rose-buds fill'd with snow: 10
Yet them nor peer nor prince can buy,
Till 'Cherry-Ripe' themselves do cry.

Her eyes like angels watch them still;
Her brows like bended bows do stand,
Threat'ning with piercing frowns to kill
All that attempt with eye or hand
Those sacred cherries to come nigh,
—Till 'Cherry-Ripe' themselves do cry!

THE POETRY OF DRESS

A sweet disorder in the dress
Kindles in clothes a wantonness:—
A lawn about the shoulders thrown
Into a fine distractión,—
An erring lace, which here and there
Enthrals the crimson stomacher —
A cuff neglectful, and thereby
Ribbands to flow confusedly,—
A winning wave, deserving note,
In the tempestuous petticoat,—
A careless shoe-string, in whose tie
I see a wild civility,—
Do more bewitch me, than when art
Is too precise in every part.

ON A GIRDLE

That which her slender waist confined Shall now my joyful temples bind: No monarch but would give his crown His arms might do what this has done.

It was my Heaven's extremest sphere, The pale which held that lovely deer: My joy, my grief, my hope, my love Did all within this circle move. A narrow compass! and yet there Dwelt all that's good, and all that's fair: 10 Give me but what this ribband bound, Take all the rest the Sun goes round.

TO ANTHEA WHO MAY COMMAND HIM ANY THING

Bid me to live, and I will live Thy Protestant to be: Or bid me love, and I will give A loving heart to thee.

A heart as soft, a heart as kind,
A heart as sound and free
As in the whole world thou canst find,
That heart I'll give to thee.

Bid that heart stay, and it will stay,
To honour thy decree:
Or bid it languish quite away,
And 't shall do so for thee.

Bid me to weep, and I will weep
While I have eyes to see:
And, having none, yet I will keep
A heart to weep for thee.

Bid me despair, and I'll despair Under that cypress tree: Or bid me die, and I will dare E'en Death, to die for thee.

Thou art my life, my love, my heart,
The very eyes of me,
And hast command of every part,
To live and die for thee.

97

Love not me for comely grace,
For my pleasing eye or face,
Nor for any outward part,
No, nor for my constant heart,—
For those may fail, or turn to ill,
So thou and I shall sever:
Keep therefore a true woman's eye,
And love me still, but know not why—
So hast thou the same reason still
To doat upon me ever!

ANON.

98

Not, Celia, that I juster am
Or better than the rest;
For I would change each hour, like them,
Were not my heart at rest.

But I am tied to very thee
By every thought I have;
Thy face I only care to see,
Thy heart I only crave.

All that in woman is adored
In thy dear self I find—
For the whole sex can but afford
The handsome and the kind.

Why then should I seek further store,
And still make love anew?
When change itself can give no more,
'Tis easy to be true.

SIR C. SEDLEY.

TO ALTHEA FROM PRISON

When Love with unconfined wings Hovers within my gates, And my divine Althea brings To whisper at the grates; When I lie tangled in her hair And fetter'd to her eye, The Gods that wanton in the air Know no such liberty.	5
When flowing cups run swiftly round With no allaying Thames, Our careless heads with roses crown'd, Our hearts with loyal flames;	10
When thirsty grief in wine we steep, When healths and draughts go free— Fishes that tipple in the deep Know no such liberty.	15
When, like committed linnets, I With shriller throat shall sing The sweetness, mercy, majesty And glories of my King; When I shall voice aloud how good He is, how great should be, Enlargéd winds, that curl the flood, Know no such liberty.	20
Stone walls do not a prison make,	2 5
Nor iron bars a cage; Minds innocent and quiet take That for an hermitage: If I have freedom in my love And in my soul am free, Angels alone, that soar above, Enjoy such liberty.	30

TO LUCASTA, ON GOING BEYOND THE SEAS

If to be absent were to be
Away from thee;
Or that when I am gone
You or I were alone;
Then, my Lucasta, might I crave
Pity from blustering wind, or swallowing wave.

Though seas and land betwixt us both,
Our faith and troth,
Like separated souls,
All time and space controls:
Above the highest sphere we meet

Above the highest sphere we meet Unseen, unknown, and greet as Angels greet.

So then we do anticipate
Our after-fate,
And are alive i' the skies,
If thus our lips and eyes
Can speak like spirits unconfined
In Heaven, their earthy bodies left behind.

ENCOURAGEMENTS TO A LOVER

Why so pale and wan, fond lover?
Prythee, why so pale?
Will, when looking well can't move her,
Looking ill prevail?
Prythee, why so pale?

Why so dull and mute, young sinner? Prythee, why so mute? Will, when speaking well can't win her, Saying nothing do't? Prythee, why so mute?	10
Quit, quit, for shame! this will not move, This cannot take her; If of herself she will not love, Nothing can make her: The devil take her! SIR J. SUCKLING.	15

A SUPPLICATION
Awake, awake, my Lyre! And tell thy silent master's humble tale In sounds that may prevail; Sounds that gentle thoughts inspire: Though so exalted she And I so lowly be, Tell her, such different notes make all thy harmon	5 ny.
Hark! how the strings awake: And, though the moving hand approach not no Themselves with awful fear A kind of numerous trembling make. Now all thy forces try; Now all thy charms apply; Revenge upon her car the conquests of her eye	10
Weak Lyre! thy virtue sure Is useless here, since thou art only found To cure, but not to wound, And she to wound, but not to cure. Too weak too wilt thou prove	15

THE MANLY HEART

Shall I, wasting in despair,
Die because a woman's fair?
Or make pale my cheeks with care
'Cause another's rosy are ?
Be she fairer than the day
Or the flowery meads in May—
If she think not well of me,
What care I how fair she be?

Shall my silly heart be pined
'Cause I see a woman kind;	10
Or a well disposéd nature
Joinéd with a lovely feature?
Be she meeker, kinder, than
Turtle-dove or pelican,
If she be not so to me.	15

If she	be not so to me,
What	care I how kind she be?

Shall a woman's virtues move
Me to perish for her love?
Or her well-deservings known
Make me quite forget mine own?
Be she with that goodness blest
Which may merit name of Best;
If she be not such to me,
What care I how good she be?

'Cause her fortune seems too high, Shall I play the fool and die?	25
She that bears a noble mind
If not outward helps she find,
Thinks what with them he would do
That without them dares her woo;	30
And unless that mind I see,
What care I how great she be?
Great or good, or kind or fair,
I will ne'er the more despair;
If she love me, this believe,	35
I will die ere she shall grieve;
If she slight me when I woo,
I can scorn and let her go;
For if she be not for me,
What care I for whom she be?	40
G. WITHER.

MELANCHOLY

Hence, all you vain delights, As short as are the nights Wherein you spend your folly: There's nought in this life sweet. If man were wise to see't, 5 But only melancholy, O sweetest melancholy! Welcome, folded arms, and fixéd eyes, A sigh that piercing mortifies, A look that's fasten'd to the ground, 10 A tongue chain'd up without a sound! Fountain heads and pathless groves, Places which pale passion loves! Moonlight walks, when all the fowls Are warmly housed, save bats and owls! 15 A midnight bell, a parting groan— These are the sounds we feed upon; Then stretch our bones in a still gloomy valley; Nothing's so dainty sweet as lovely melancholy.

J. Fletcher.

TO A LOCK OF HAIR

Thy hue, dear pledge, is pure and bright As in that well-remember'd night When first thy mystic braid was wove, And first my Agnes whisper'd love.

Since then how often hast thou prest 5 The torrid zone of this wild breast. Whose wrath and hate have sworn to dwell With the first sin that peopled hell; A breast whose blood 's a troubled ocean, Each throb the earthquake's wild commotion! 10 O if such clime thou canst endure Yet keep thy hue unstain'd and pure, What conquest o'er each erring thought Of that fierce realm had Agnes wrought! I had not wander'd far and wide 15 With such an angel for my guide; Nor heaven nor earth could then reprove me If she had lived, and lived to love me.

Not then this world's wild joys had been
To me one savage hunting scene,
My sole delight the headlong race
And frantic hurry of the chase;
To start, pursue, and bring to bay,
Rush in, drag down, and rend my prey,
Then—from the carcass turn awa!
Mine ireful mood had sweetness tamed,
And soothed each wound which pride inflamed:
Yes, God and man might now approve me
If thou hadst lived, and lived to love me!

SIR W. SCOTT.

THE FORSAKEN BRIDE
O waly waly up the bank, And waly waly down the brae, And waly waly yon burn-side Where I and my Love wont to gae! I leant my back unto an aik, I thought it was a trusty tree; But first it bow'd, and syne it brak, Sae my true Love did lichtly me.	5
O waly waly, but love be bonny A little time while it is new; But when 'tis auld, it waxeth cauld And fades awa' like morning dew.	10
O wherefore should I busk my head? Or wherefore should I kame my hair?	15
Now Arthur-seat sall be my bed; The sheets shall ne'er be 'fil'd by me; Saint Anton's well sall be my drink, Since my true Love has forsaken me. Marti'mas wind, when wilt thou blaw And shake the green leaves aff the tree? O gentle Death, when wilt thou come? For of my life I am wearée.	20
	25
Nor blawing snaw's inclemencie; 'Tis not sic cauld that makes me cry, But my Love's heart grown cauld to me. When we came in by Glasgow town We were a comely sight to see; My Love was clad in the black velvét, And I myself in cramasie.	30

But had I wist, before I kist,
That love had been sae ill to win;
I had lockt my heart in a case of gowd	35
And pinn'd it with a siller pin.
And, O! if my young babe were born,
And set upon the nurse's knee,
And I mysell were dead and gane,
For a maid again I'll never be.	40

FAIR HELEN

I wish I were where Helen lies; Night and day on me she cries; O that I were where Helen lies On fair Kirconnell lea!

Curst be the heart that thought the thought,
And curst the hand that fired the shot,
When in my arms burd Helen dropt,
And died to succour me!

O think na but my heart was sair When my Love dropt down and spak nae mair! I laid her down wi' meikle care On fair Kirconnell lea.

As I went down the water-side,
None but my foe to be my guide,
None but my foe to be my guide,
On fair Kirconnell lea;

I lighted down my sword to draw,
I hackéd him in pieces sma',
I hackéd him in pieces sma',
For her sake that died for me.

20

O Helen fair, beyond compare!
I'll make a garland of thy hair
Shall bind my heart for evermair
Until the day I die.

Night and day on me she cries; Out of my bed she bids me rise, Says, 'Haste and come to me!' O Helen fair! O Helen chaste! If I were with thee, I were blest, Where thou lies low and takes thy rest On fair Kirconnell lea. I wish my grave were growing green, A winding-sheet drawn ower my cen, And I in Helen's arms lying, On fair Kirconnell lea. I wish I were where Helen lies; Night and day on me she cries; And I am weary of the skies, Since my Love died for me.  108 THE TWA CORBIES  As I was walking all alane I heard twa corbies making a mane; The tane unto the t'other say, 'Where sall we gang and dine to-day?' #### TO BLOSSOMS

Fair pledges of a fruitful tree,
Why do ye fall so fast?
Your date is not so past,
But you may stay yet here awhile
To blush and gently smile,
And go at last.

What, were ye born to be
An hour or half's delight,
And so to bid good-night?
"I'was pity Nature brought ye forth
Merely to show your worth,
And lose you quite.

But you are lovely leaves, where we May read how soon things have Their end, though ne'er so brave:

And after they have shown their pride Like you awhile, they glide Into the grave.

TO DAFFODILS

Fair Daffodils, we weep to see You haste away so soon: As yet the early-rising Sun Has not attain'd his noon.

Stay, stay, Until the hasting day	5
Has run
But to the even-song;
And, having pray'd together, we Will go with you along.	10
viii go www you wong.
We have short time to stay, as you,
We have as short a Spring;
As quick a growth to meet decay
As you, or any thing.
We die,	15
As your hours do, and dry Away
Like to the Summer's rain;
Or as the pearls of morning's dew,
Ne'er to be found again.	20
R. Herrick

THOUGHTS IN A GARDEN
How vainly men themselves amaze
To win the palm, the oak, or bays,
And their uncessant labours see
Crown'd from some single herb or tree,
Whose short and narrow-vergéd shade	5
Does prudently their toils upbraid;
While all the flowers and trees do close
To weave the garlands of repose.
Fair Quiet, have I found thee here,
And Innocence thy sister dear! Mistaken long, I sought you then	10
Mistaken long, I sought you then
In busy companies of men:
Your sacred plants, if here below,
Only among the plants will grow:
Society is all but rude	15
To this delicious solitude.

No white nor red was ever seen
So amorous as this lovely green.
Fond lovers, cruel as their flame,
Cut in these trees their mistress' name: 20
Little, alas, they know or heed
How far these beauties hers exceed!
Fair trees! wheres'e'er your barks I wound,
No name shall but your own be found.

When we have run our passions' heat	25
Love hither makes his best retreat:
The gods, that mortal beauty chase,
Still in a tree did end their race:
Apollo hunted Daphne so,
Only that she might laurel grow:	30
And Pan did after Syrinx speed
Not as a nymph, but for a reed.

What wondrous life in this I lead!
Ripe apples drop about my head;
The luscious clusters of the vine	35
Upon my mouth do crush their wine;
The nectarine and curious peach
Into my hands themselves do reach;
Stumbling on melons, as I pass,
Ensnared with flowers, I fall on grass.	40

Meanwhile the mind, from pleasure less, Withdraws into its happiness; The mind, that ocean where each kind Does straight its own resemblance find; Yet it creates, transcending these, Far other worlds, and other seas; Annihilating all that's made To a green thought in a green shade.

Here at the fountain's sliding foot
Or at some fruit-tree's mossy root,	50
Casting the body's vest aside,
My soul into the boughs does glide;

There, like a bird, it sits and sings, Then whets and combs its silver wings, And, till prepared for longer flight, Waves in its plumes the various light.	55
Such was that happy Garden-state While man there walk'd without a mate: After a place so pure and sweet, What other help could yet be meet! But 'twas beyond a mortal's share To wander solitary there: Two paradises 'twere in one, To live in Paradise alone.	60
How well the skilful gardener drew Of flowers and herbs this dial new! Where, from above, the milder sun Does through a fragrant zodiac run: And, as it works, th' industrious bee Computes its time as well as we. How could such sweet and wholesome hor	65 70
Be reckon'd, but with herbs and flowers!	YT.T.

But come, thou Goddess fair and free, In heaven yclep'd Euphrosyne,

And by men, heart-easing Mirth,
Whom lovely Venus at a birth
With two sister Graces more	15
To ivy-crownéd Bacchus bore:
Or whether (as some sager sing)
The frolic wind that breathes the spring,
Zephyr, with Aurora playing,
As he met her once a-Maying—	20
There on beds of violets blue
And fresh-blown roses wash'd in dew
Fill'd her with thee, a daughter fair,
So buxom, blithe, and debonair.
Haste thee, Nymph, and bring with thee
Jest, and youthful jollity,	26
Quips, and cranks, and wanton wiles,
Nods, and becks, and wreathed smiles,
Such as hang on Hebe's cheek,
And love to live in dimple sleek;	30
Sport that wrinkled Care derides,
And Laughter holding both his sides.
Come, and trip it as you go
On the light fantastic toe;
And in thy right hand lead with thee	35
The mountain nymph, sweet Liberty;
And if I give thee honour due,
Mirth, admit me of thy crew,
To live with her, and live with thee
In unreprovéd pleasures free;	40
To hear the lark begin his flight
And singing startle the dull night
From his watch-tower in the skies,
Till the dappled dawn doth rise;
Then to come, in spite of sorrow,	45
And at my window bid good-morrow
Through the sweetbriar, or the vine,
Or the twisted eglantine:
While the cock with lively din
Scatters the rear of darkness thin,	50
And to the stack, or the barn-door,
Stoutly struts his dames before:

Oft listening how the hounds and horn Cheerly rouse the slumbering morn,
From the side of some hoar hill,	55
Through the high wood echoing shrill.	•
Sometime walking, not unseen,
By hedge-row elms, on hillocks green,
Right against the eastern gate
Where the great Sun begins his state	60
Robed in flames and amber light,
The clouds in thousand liveries dight;
While the ploughman, near at hand,
Whistles o'er the furrow'd land,
And the milkmaid singeth blithe,	65
And the mower whets his scythe,
And every shepherd tells his tale
Under the hawthorn in the dale.
Straight mine eye hath caught new pleas	ures
Whilst the landscape round it measures;	70
Russet lawns, and fallows grey,
Where the nibbling flocks do stray;
Mountains, on whose barren breast
The labouring clouds do often rest;
Meadows trim with daisies pied,	75
Shallow brooks, and rivers wide;
Towers and battlements it sees
Bosom'd high in tufted trees,
Where perhaps some Beauty lies,
The Cynosure of neighbouring eyes.	80
Hard by, a cottage chimney smokes
From betwixt two aged oaks,
Where Corydon and Thyrsis, met,
Are at their savoury dinner set
Or herbs, and other country messes	85
Which the neat-handed Phillis dresses;
And then in haste her bower she leaves
With Thestylis to bind the sheaves;
Or, if the earlier season lead,
To the tann'd haycock in the mead.	90
Sometimes with secure delight
The upland hamlets will invite,

E

When the merry bells ring round,
And the jocund rebecks sound
To many a youth and many a maid,	95
Dancing in the chequer'd shade;
And young and old come forth to play
On a sunshine holy-day,
Till the live-long daylight fail:
Then to the spicy nut-brown ale,	100
With stories told of many a feat,
How Facry Mab the junkets eat;
She was pinch'd, and pull'd, she said;
And he, by Friar's lantern led;
Tells how the drudging Goblin sweat	105
To earn his cream-bowl duly set,
When in one night, ere glimpse of morn,
His shadowy flail hath thresh'd the corn
That ten day-labourers could not end;
Then lies him down the lubber fiend,	110
And, stretch'd out all the chimney's leng	th,
Basks at the fire his hairy strength;
And crop-full out of doors he flings,
Ere the first cock his matin rings.
Thus done the tales, to bed they ereep,	115
By whispering winds soon lull'd asleep.
Tower'd cities please us then
And the busy hum of men,
Where throngs of knights and barons bol	ld,
In weeds of peace high triumphs hold,	120
With store of ladies, whose bright eyes
Rain influence, and judge the prize
Of wit or arms, while both contend
To win her grace, whom all commend.
There let Hymen oft appear	125
In saffron robe, with taper clear,
And pomp, and feast, and revelry,
With mask, and antique pageantry;
Such sights as youthful poets dream
On summer eves by haunted stream.	130
Then to the well-trod stage anon,
If Jonson's learned sock be on,

Or sweetest Shakespeare, Fancy's child, Warble his native wood-notes wild. And ever against eating cares 135 Lap me in soft Lydian airs Married to immortal verse, Such as the meeting soul may pierce In notes, with many a winding bout Of linkéd sweetness long drawn out, 140 With wanton heed and giddy cunning, The melting voice through mazes running, Untwisting all the chains that tie The hidden soul of harmony; That Orpheus' self may heave his head 145 From golden slumber, on a bed Of heap'd Elysian flowers, and hear Such strains as would have won the ear Of Pluto, to have quite set free His half-regain'd Eurydice. 150

These delights if thou canst give, Mirth, with thee I mean to live.

IL PENSEROSO

Hence, vain deluding Jovs. The broad of Folly without father bred! How little you bestead Or fill the fixed mind with all your toys! Dwell in some idle brain. And fancies fond with gaudy shapes possess As thick and numberless As the gay motes that people the sunbeams, Or likest hovering dreams The fickle pensioners of Morpheus' train. 10

But hail, thou goddess sage and holy, Hail, divinest Melancholy!

Whose saintly visage is too bright
To hit the sense of human sight,
	15
O'erlaid with black, staid Wisdom's hue;
Black, but such as in esteem
Prince Memnon's sister might beseem,
Or that starr'd Ethiop queen that strove
	20
The sea-nymphs, and their powers offended	:
Yet thou art higher far descended:
Thee bright-hair'd Vesta, long of yore,
To solitary Saturn bore;
His daughter she; in Saturn's reign	25
Such mixture was not held a stain:
Oft in glimmering bowers and glades
He met her, and in secret shades
Of woody Ida's inmost grove,
Whilst yet there was no fear of Jove.	30
Come, pensive nun, devout and pure,
Sober, steadfast, and demure,
All in a robe of darkest grain
Flowing with majestic train,
And sable stole of cypres lawn	35
Over thy decent shoulders drawn
Come, but keep thy wonted state,
With even step, and musing gait,
And looks commercing with the skies,
Thy rapt soul sitting in thine eyes:	40
There, held in holy passion still,
Forget thyself to marble, till
With a sad leaden downward cast
Thou fix them on the earth as fast:	41
And join with thee calm Peace, and Quiet,
Spare Fast, that oft with gods doth diet,
And hears the Muses in a ring
Ay round about Jove's altar sing:
And add to these retired Leisure	49
That in trim gardens takes his pleasure :
But first, and chiefest, with thee bring
Him that you soars on golden wing

Guiding the fiery-wheeléd throne, The cherub Contemplatión; And the mute Silence hist along, 'Less Philomel will deign a song In her sweetest saddest plight,	55
Smoothing the rugged brow of Night, While Cynthia cheeks her dragon yoke Gently o'er the accustom'd oak.  —Sweet bird, that shunn'st the noise of fo Most musical, most melancholy!  Thee, chauntress, oft, the woods among	60 olly.
I woo, to hear thy even-song; And missing thee, I walk unseen On the dry smooth-shaven green, To behold the wandering Moon	65
Riding near her highest noon, Like one that had been led astray Through the heaven's wide pathless way, And oft, as if her head she bow'd, Stopping through a fleecy cloud.	70
Oft, on a plat of rising ground I hear the far-off curfeu sound Over some wide-water'd shore, Swinging slow with sullen roar: Or, if the air will not permit,	75
Some still removéd place will fit, Where glowing embers through the room Teach light to counterfeit a gloom; Far from all resort of mirth, Save the cricket on the hearth,	80
Or the bellman's drowsy charm To bless the doors from nightly harm. Or let my lamp at midnight hour Be seen in some high lonely tower, Where I may oft out-watch the Bear	85
With thrice-great Hermes, or unsphere The spirit of Plato, to unfold What worlds or what vast regions hold The immortal mind, that hath forsook Her mansion in this fleshly nook:	90

And of those demons that are found
In fire, air, flood, or under ground,
Whose power hath a true consent	95
With planet, or with element.
Sometime let gorgeous Tragedy
In scepter'd pall come sweeping by,
Presenting Thebes, or Pelops' line,
Or the tale of Troy divine;	100
Or what (though rare) of later age
Ennobled hath the buskin'd stage.
But, O sad Virgin, that thy power
Might raise Musaeus from his bower,
Or bid the soul of Orpheus sing	105
Such notes as, warbled to the string,
Drew iron tears down Pluto's check
And made Hell grant what Love did seek	!
Or call up him that left half-told
The story of Cambuscan bold,	110
Of Camball, and of Algarsife,
And who had Canacé to wife,
That own'd the virtuous ring and glass;
And of the wondrous horse of brass
On which the Tartar king did ride:	115
And if aught else great bards beside
In sage and solemn tunes have sung
Of turneys, and of trophies hung,
Of forests, and enchantments drear,	119
Where more is meant than meets the car.
Thus, Night, oft see me in thy pale care	er,
Till civil-suited Morn appear,	-
Not trick'd and frounced as she was wont
With the Attic Boy to hunt,
But kercheft in a comely cloud	125
While rocking winds are piping loud,
Or usher'd with a shower still,
When the gust hath blown his fill,
Ending on the rustling leaves
With minute drops from off the caves.	130
And when the sun begins to fling
His flaring beams, me, goddess, bring

To archéd walks of twilight groves,
And shadows brown, that Sylvan loves,
or princy or information outly	135
Where the rude axe, with heaved stroke,
Was never heard the nymphs to daunt
Or fright them from their hallow'd haunt.
There in close covert by some brook
Where no profaner eye may look,	140
Hide me from day's garish eye,
While the bee with honey'd thigh,
That at her flowery work doth sing,
And the waters murmuring,
With such consort as they keep	145
Entice the dewy-feather'd Sleep;
And let some strange mysterious dream
Wave at his wings in airy stream
Of lively portraiture display'd,
Softly on my eyelids laid:	150
And, as I wake, sweet music breathe
Above, about, or underneath,
Sent by some Spirit to mortals good,
Or the unseen Genius of the wood.
But let my due feet never fail	155
To walk the studious cloister's pale,
And love the high-embowed roof,
With antique pillars massy-proof,
And storied windows richly dight
Casting a dim religious light:	160
There let the pealing organ blow
To the full-voiced quire below
In service high and anthems clear,
As may with sweetness, through mine ear,
Dissolve me into ecstasies,	165
And bring all Heaven before mine eyes.	100
And may at last my weary age
Find out the peaceful hermitage,
The hairy gown and mossy cell
Where I may sit and rightly spell	170
	110
Of every star that heaven doth show,
And every herb that sips the dew;

SONG OF THE EMIGRANTS IN BERMUDA

Where the remote Bermudas ride In the ocean's bosom unespied. From a small boat that row'd along The listening winds received this song: 'What should we do but sing His praise 5 That led us through the watery maze Unto an isle so long unknown, And yet far kinder than our own? Where He the huge sea-monsters wracks, That lift the deep upon their backs. 10 He lands us on a grassy stage, Safe from the storms and prelate's rage: He gave us this eternal spring Which here enamels everything. And sends the fowls to us in care 15 On daily visits through the air: He hangs in shades the orange bright Like golden lamps in a green night, And does in the pomegranates close Jewels more rich than Ormus shows: 20 He makes the figs our mouths to meet, And throws the melons at our feet; But apples plants of such a price, No tree could ever bear them twice. With cedars chosen by His hand 25 From Lebanon He stores the land: And makes the hollow seas that roar Proclaim the ambergris on shore. He cast (of which we rather boast) The Gospel's pearl upon our coast; 30 And in these rocks for us did frame
A temple where to sound His name.
Oh! let our voice His praise exalt
Till it arrive at Heaven's vault,
Which thence (perhaps) rebounding may
Echo beyond the Mexique bay!'
Thus sung they in the English boat
An holy and a cheerful note:
And all the way, to guide their chime,
With falling oars they kept the time.

AT A SOLEMN MUSIC

Blest pair of Sirens, pledges of Heaven's joy,
Sphere-born harmonious Sisters, Voice and Verse!
Wed your divine sounds, and mixt power employ
Dead things with inbreathed sense able to pierce;
And to our high-raised plantasy present
That undisturbéd Song of pure concent
Ay sung before the sapphire-colour'd throne
To Him that sits thereon,
With saintly shout and solemn jubilee;
Where the bright Scraphim in burning row

With saintly shout and solemn jubilee;
Where the bright Scraphim in burning row
Their loud uplifted angel-trumpets blow;
And the Cherubic host in thousand quires
Touch their immortal harps of golden wires,
With those just Spirits that wear victorious palms,
Hymns devout and holy palms

Hynnis devout and holy psalms 15 Singing everlastingly:

That we on earth, with undiscording voice
May rightly answer that inclodious noise;
As once we did, till disproportion'd sin
Jarr'd against nature's chime, and with harsh din
Broke the fair music that all creatures made 21
To their great Lord, whose love their motion sway'd
In perfect diapason, whilst they stood
In first obedience, and their state of good.

O may we soon again renew that Song,	25
And keep in tune with Heaven, till God	ere long
To His celestial consort us unite,

ALEXANDER'S FEAST, OR, THE POWER OF MUSIC

Two a at the navel feast for Danie wan

I was at the loyal least for I close won
By Philip's warlike son—
Aloft in awful state
The godlike hero sate
On his imperial throne;	5
His valiant peers were placed around,
Their brows with roses and with myrtles bound
(So should desert in arms be crown'd);
The lovely Thais by his side
Sate like a blooming eastern bride	10
In flower of youth and beauty's pride:
Happy, happy, happy pair!
None but the brave
None but the brave
None but the brave deserves the fair!	15
TIONS NEW TAIL NAME OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PRO

Timotheus placed on high Amid the tuneful quire With flying fingers touch'd the lyre: The trembling notes ascend the sky And heavenly joys inspire. 20 The song began from Jove Who left his blissful scats above— Such is the power of mighty love! A dragon's fiery form belied the god; Sublime on radiant spires he rode 25 When he to fair Olympia prest, And while he sought her snowy breast. 133  $\mathbf{E} a$

Then round her slender waist he curl'd, And stamp'd an image of himself, a sovereign of world.  —The listening crowd admire the lofty sound A present deity! they shout around: A present deity! the vaulted roofs rebound: With ravish'd ears	29
The monarch hears, Assumes the god, Affects to nod And seems to shake the spheres.	35
The praise of Bacchus then the sweet musician su Of Bacchus ever fair and ever young:	ıng,
The jolly god in triumph comes!  Sound the trumpets, beat the drums!  Flush'd with a purple grace	40
He shows his honest face: Now give the hautboys breath; he comes, he com	leer
Bacchus, ever fair and young, Drinking joys did first ordain; Bacchus' blessings are a treasure, Drinking is the soldier's pleasure: Rich the treasure.	45
Sweet the pleasure, Sweet is pleasure after pain.	50
Soothed with the sound, the king grew vain Fought all his battles o'er again,	;
And thrice he routed all his foes, and thrice he s	słew
The master saw the madness rise, His glowing checks, his ardent eyes; And while he Heaven and Earth defied Changed his hand and check'd his pride. He chose a mournful Muse	55
Soft pity to infuse: He sung Darius great and good, By too severe a fate Fallen, fallen, fallen, Fallen from his high estate,	60

And weltering in his blood; Deserted, at his utmost need,	65
By those his former bounty fed;
On the bare earth exposed he lies
With not a friend to close his eyes.
—With downcast looks the joyless victor sate
Revolving in his alter'd soul	71
The various turns of Chance below;
And now and then a sigh he stole,
And tears began to flow.
The mighty master smiled to see	75
That love was in the next degree;
Twas but a kindred-sound to move,
For pity melts the mind to love.
Softly sweet, in Lydian measures
Soon he soothed his soul to pleasures.	80
War, he sung, is toil and trouble,
Honour but an empty bubble;
Never ending, still beginning,
Fighting still, and still destroying;
If the world be worth thy winning,	85
Think, O think, it worth enjoying:
Lovely Thais sits beside thee,
Take the good the gods provide thee!
—The many rend the skies with loud applause
So Love was crown'd, but Music won the cause
The prince, unable to conceal his pain,	91
Gazed on the fair
Who caused his care,
And sigh'd and look'd, sigh'd and look'd,	95
Sigh'd and look'd, and sigh'd again: At length with love and wine at once opprest	90
The vanquish'd victor sunk upon her breast.
Now strike the golden lyre again:
A louder yet, and yet a louder strain!	100
Break his bands of sleep asunder	100
And rouse him like a rattling peal of thunder.
Hark, hark! the horrid sound

As awaked from the dead And amazed he starcs around. Revenge, revenge, Timotheus crics, See the Furics arise!	105
See the snakes that they rear
How they hiss in their hair,
And the sparkles that flash from their eyes!	110
Behold a ghastly band,
Each a torch in his hand!	lain
Those are Greeian ghosts, that in battle were s  And unburied remain	14111
Inglorious on the plain:	115
Give the vengeance due	110
To the valiant crew!
Behold how they toss their torches on high,
How they point to the Persian abodes
And glittering temples of their hostile gods.	120
-The princes applaud with a furious joy:
And the King seized a flambeau with zeal to destr	oy;
Thais led the way
To light him to his prey,
And like another Helen, fired another Troy!	125

Or both divide the crown;

ODE ON THE PLEASURE ARISING FROM VICISSITUDE

Now the golden Morn aloft
Waves her dew-bespangled wing,
With vermeil check and whisper soft
She woos the tardy Spring:
Till April starts, and calls around
The sleeping fragrance from the ground,
And lightly o'er the living scene
Scatters his freshest, tenderest green.

New-born flocks, in rustic dance,
Frisking ply their feeble feet;
Forgetful of their wintry trance
The birds his presence greet:
But chief, the sky-lark warbles high
His trembling thrilling cestasy;
And lessening from the dazzled sight,
Melts into air and liquid light.

10

Yesterday the sullen year
Saw the snowy whirlwind fly;
Mute was the music of the air,
The herd stood drooping by:
Their raptures now that wildly flow
No yesterday nor morrow know;
'Tis Man alone that joy descries
With forward and reverted eyes.

Smiles on past Misfortune's brow Soft Reflection's hand can trace, And o'er the cheek of Sorrow throw A melancholy grace;	25
While Hope prolongs our happier hour, Or deepest shades, that dimly lour And blacken round our weary way, Gilds with a gleam of distant day.	30
Still, where rosy Pleasure leads, See a kindred Grief pursue; Behind the steps that Misery treads Approaching Comfort view: The hues of bliss more brightly glow Chastised by sabler tints of woe, And blended form, with artful strife, The strength and harmony of life.	35 40
See the wretch that long has tost On the thorny bed of pain, At length repair his vigour lost And breathe and walk again: The meanest floweret of the vale, The simplest note that swells the gale, The common sun, the air, the skies, To him are opening Paradise.	45

THE QUIET LIFE

Happy the man, whose wish and care A few paternal acres bound, Content to breathe his native air In his own ground.

Whose herds with milk, whose fields with bread,
Whose flocks supply him with attire;
Whose trees in summer yield him shade,
In winter fire,

Blest, who can unconcern'dly find Hours, days, and years slide soft away In health of body, peace of mind, Quiet by day,	10
Sound sleep by night; study and case Together mix'd; sweet recreation, And innocence, which most does please With meditation.	15
Thus let me live, unseen, unknown; Thus unlamented let me die; Steal from the world, and not a stone Tell where I lie. A. Pope.	20

THE BLIND BOY
O say what is that thing call'd Light, Which I must ne'er enjoy; What are the blessings of the sight, O tell your poor blind boy!
You talk of wondrous things you see, You say the sun shines bright; I feel him warm, but how can he Or make it day or night?	5
My day or night myself I make Whene'er I sleep or play; And could I ever keep awake With me 'twere always day.	10
With heavy sighs I often hear You mourn my hapless woe; But sure with patience I can bear A loss I ne'er can know.	15
Then let not what I cannot have My cheer of mind destroy: Whilst thus I sing, I am a king, Although a poor blind boy.	20

ON A FAVOURITE CAT, DROWNED IN A TUB OF GOLDFISHES

TUB OF GOLDFISHES
'Twas on a lofty vase's side, Where China's gayest art had dyed The azure flowers that blow, Demurest of the tabby kind, The pensive Sclima, reclined, Gazed on the lake below.	5
Her conscious tail her joy declared: The fair round face, the snowy beard, The velvet of her paws, Her coat that with the tortoise vies, Her ears of jet, and emerald eyes, She saw; and purr'd applause.	10
Still had she gazed, but 'midst the tide Two angel forms were seen to glide, The Genii of the stream: Their sealy armour's Tyrian hue Through richest purple to the view Betray'd a golden gleam.	15
The hapless Nymph with wonder saw: A whisker first, and then a claw With many an ardent wish She stretch'd, in vain, to reach the prize— What female heart can gold despise? What Cat's averse to Fish?	20
Presumptuous maid! with looks intent Again she stretch'd, again she bent, Nor knew the gulf between— Malignant Fate sat by and smiled— The slippery verge her feet beguiled; She tumbled headlong in!	25 30
~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~

Eight times emerging from the flood She mew'd to every watery God Some speedy aid to send:— No Dolphin eame, no Nereid stirr'd, Nor cruel Tom nor Susan heard— A favourite has no friend!

35

From hence, ye Beauties, undeceived, Know one false step is ne'er retrieved, And be with caution bold: Not all that tempts your wandering eyes 40 And heedless hearts, is lawful prize, Nor all that glisters, gold!

TO CHARLOTTE PULTENEY

Timely blossom, Infant fair, Fondling of a happy pair, Every morn and every night Their solicitous delight, Sleeping, waking, still at ease, 5 Pleasing, without skill to please; Little gossip, blithe and hale, Tattling many a broken tale, Singing many a tuneless song, Lavish of a heedless tongue; 10 Simple maiden, void of art, Babbling out the very heart, Yet abandon'd to thy will, Yet imagining no ill, Yet too innocent to blush: 15 Like the linnet in the bush To the mother-linnet's note Moduling her slender throat: Chirping forth thy petty joys, Wanton in the change of toys, 20 Like the linnet green, in May Flitting to each bloomy spray;

Wearied then and glad of rest, Like the linnet in the nest:— This thy present happy lot, This, in time will be forgot: Other pleasures, other cares, Ever-busy Time prepares; And thou shalt in thy daughter see, This picture, once, resembled thee.  A. Phillips.	25

RULE, BRITANNIA
When Britain first at Heaven's command Arose from out the azure main, This was the charter of the land, And guardian angels sung this strain: Rule, Britannia! rule the waves! Britons never will be slaves.	5
The nations not so blest as thee Must in their turns to tyrants fall, While thou shalt flourish great and free, The dread and envy of them all.	10
Still more majestic shalt thou rise, More dreadful from each foreign stroke; As the loud blast that tears the skies Serves but to root thy native oak.
Thee haughty tyrants ne'er shall tame; All their attempts to bend thee down Will but arouse thy generous flame, But work their woe and thy renown.	15
To thee belongs the rural reign; Thy cities shall with commerce shine; All thine shall be the subject main, And every shore it circles thine!	20
The Muses, still with Freedom found, Shall to thy happy coast repair;

Blest Isle, with matchless beauty crown'd, And manly hearts to guard the fair :— Rule, Britannia! rule the waves! Britons never will be slaves!

J. Thomson.

THE BARD

A Pindaric Ode

'Ruin seize thee, ruthless King! Confusion on thy banners wait! Tho' fann'd by Conquest's crimson wing They mock the air with idle state. Helm, nor hauberk's twisted mail. 5 Nor e'en thy virtues, tyrant, shall avail To save thy secret soul from nightly fears. From Cambria's curse, from Cambria's tears!' —Such were the sounds that o'er the crested pride Of the first Edward scatter'd wild dismay, As down the steep of Snowdon's shaggy side He wound with toilsome march his long array:— Stout Glo'ster stood aghast in speechless trance: 'To arms!' cried Mortimer, and couch'd his quivering lance.

On a rock, whose haughty brow
Frowns o'er old Conway's foaming flood,
Robed in the sable garb of woe,
With haggard eyes the Poet stood;
(Loose his beard and hoary hair
Stream'd like a meteor to the troubled air;)
And with a master's hand and prophet's fire
Struck the deep sorrows of his lyre:
'Hark, how each giant oak and desert cave
Sighs to the torrent's awful voice beneath!
21
O'er thee, O King! their hundred arms they wave
Revenge on thee in hoarser murmurs breathe;

Vocal no more, since Cambria's fatal day,
To high-born Hoel's harp, or soft Llewellyn's lay.
'Cold is Cadwallo's tongue,
That hush'd the stormy main: 30
Brave Urien sleeps upon his craggy bed:
Mountains, ye mourn in vain
Modred, whose magic song Made huge Plinlimmon bow his cloud-topt head.
On dreary Arvon's shore they lie 35
Smear'd with gore and ghastly pale:
Far, far aloof the affrighted ravens sail;
The famish'd eagle screams, and passes by.
Dear lost companions of my tuneful art,
Dear as the light that visits these sad eyes, 40
Dear as the ruddy drops that warm my heart,
Ye died amidst your dying country's cries—
No more I weep. They do not sleep;
On yonder cliffs, a gricsly band,  I see them sit: they linger yet.  45

That lost in long futurity expire.  Fond impious man, think'st thou yon sanguine cloud Raised by thy breath, has quench'd the orb of day? To-morrow he repairs the golden flood And warms the nations with redoubled ray.
Enough for me: with joy I see The different doom our fates assign:  140

ODE WRITTEN IN MDCCXLVI

How sleep the Brave who sink to rest By all their Country's wishes blest! When Spring, with dewy fingers cold, Returns to deck their hallow'd mould, She there shall dress a sweeter sod Than Fancy's feet have ever trod.

By fairy hands their knell is rung,
By forms unseen their dirge is sung:
There Honour comes, a pilgrim grey,
To bless the turf that wraps their clay:
And Freedom shall awhile repair
To dwell, a weeping hermit, there!

And ay the saut tear blin's her ce: Drumossie moor—Drumossie day—

A waefu' day it was to me!

For there I lost my father dear,
My father dear, and brethren three.

Their winding-sheet the bluidy clay,
Their graves are growing green to see: 10

And by them lies the dearest lad
That ever blest a woman's ee!
Now wae to thee, thou cruel lord,
A bluidy man I trow thou be;

For mony a heart thou hast made sair That ne'er did wrang to thine or thee.

But now they are moaning on ilka green loaning— The Flowers of the Forest are a' wede away.

At bughts, in the morning, nae blythe lads are seorning, 5

Lasses are lonely and dowie and wae;

Nae daffing, nae gabbing, but sighing and sabbing, Ilk ane lifts her leglin and hies her away.

In har'st, at the shearing, nae youths now are jeering, Bandsters are runkled, and lyart, or grey; 10 At fair or at preaching, nae wooing, nae fleeching—

At e'en, in the gloaming, nae younkers are roaming 'Bout stacks with the lasses at bogle to play;

But ilk maid sits dreary, lamenting her dearie—15 The Flowers of the Forest are weded away.

Dool and wae for the order, sent our lads to the Border!

The English, for ance, by guile wan the day; The Flowers of the Forest, that fought aye the foremost,

The prime of our land, are cauld in the clay.

We'll hear nae mair lilting at the ewe-milking; Women and bairns are heartless and wae; Sighing and moaning on ilka green loaning— The Flowers of the Forest are a' wede away.

THE BRAES OF YARROW

'Thy braes were bonny, Yarrow stream, When first on them I met my lover; Thy braes how dreary, Yarrow stream, When now thy waves his body cover! For ever now, O Yarrow stream, Thou art to me a stream of sorrow; For never on thy banks shall I Behold my love, the flower of Yarrow.	5
'He promised me a milk-white steed To bear me to his father's bowers; He promised me a little page To squire me to his father's towers; He promised me a wedding-ring,— The wedding-day was fix'd to-morrow;— Now he is wedded to his grave, Alas, his watery grave, in Yarrow!	10
'Sweet were his words when last we met; My passion I as freely told him; Clasp'd in his arms, I little thought That I should never more behold him! Scarce was he gone, I saw his ghost; It vanish'd with a shrick of sorrow; Thrice did the water-wraith ascend, And gave a doleful groan thro' Yarrow.	20
'His mother from the window look'd With all the longing of a mother; His little sister weeping walk'd	25
The green-wood path to meet her brother; They sought him east, they sought him west, They sought him all the forest thorough; They only saw the cloud of night, They only heard the roar of Yarrow.	30

A land-breeze shook the shrouds And she was overset; Down went the Royal George, With all her crew complete.	10
Toll for the brave! Brave Kempenfelt is gone; His last sea-fight is fought, His work of glory done.	15
It was not in the battle; No tempest gave the shock; She sprang no fatal leak, She ran upon no rock.	20
His sword was in the sheath, His fingers held the pen, When Kempenfelt went down With twice four hundred men.
Weigh the vessel up Once dreaded by our foes, And mingle with your cup The tears that England owes.	25
Her timbers yet are sound, And she may float again Full charged with England's thunder, And plough the distant main:	30
But Kempenfelt is gone, His victories are o'er; And he and his eight hundred Must plough the wave no more. W. Cowper.	35

BLACK-EYED SUSAN
All in the Downs the fleet was moor'd

All in the Downs the fleet was moor'd, The streamers waving in the wind, When black-eyed Susan came aboard; 'O! where shall I my true-love find?

Tell me, ye jovial sailors, tell me true If my sweet William sails among the crew.'	5
William, who high upon the yard Rock'd with the billow to and fro, Soon as her well-known voice he heard, He sigh'd, and cast his eyes below: The cord slides swiftly through his glowing hand And quick as lightning on the deck he stands.	1 0 ls,
So the sweet lark, high poised in air, Shuts close his pinions to his breast If chance his mate's shrill call he hear, And drops at once into her nest:— The noblest captain in the British fleet Might envy William's lips those kisses sweet.	15
'O Susan, Susan, lovely dear, My vows shall ever true remain; Let me kiss off that falling tear; We only part to meet again. Change as ye list, ye winds; my heart shall be The faithful compass that still points to thee.	20
'Believe not what the landmen say Who tempt with doubts thy constant mind: They'll tell thee, sailors, when away, In every port a mistress find:	25
Yes, yes, believe them when they tell thee so, For Thou art present wheresoe'er I go. 'If to far India's coast we sail,	30
Thy eyes are seen in diamonds bright, Thy breath is Afric's spicy gale, Thy skin is ivory so white. Thus every beauteous object that I view Wakes in my soul some charm of lovely Suc.	35
'Though battle call me from thy arms Let not my pretty Susan mourn; Though cannons roar, yet safe from harms William shall to his Dear return. Love turns aside the balls that round me fly, Lest precious tears should drop from Susan's cy.	40 e.'

The boatswain gave the dreadful word,

SALLY IN OUR ALLEY

Of all the girls that are so smart
There's none like pretty Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.
There is no lady in the land
Is half so sweet as Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

Her father he makes cabbage-nets
And through the streets does ery 'em;
Her mother she sells laces long
To such as please to buy 'em;
But sure such folks could ne'er beget
So sweet a girl as Sally!
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

When she is by, I leave my work,
I love her so sincerely;
My master comes like any Turk,
And bangs me most severely—
But let him bang his bellyful,
I'll bear it all for Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

Of all the days that 's in the week
I dearly love but one day—

25

And that's the day that comes betwixt A Saturday and Monday; For then I'm drest all in my best To walk abroad with Sally; She is the darling of my heart, And she lives in our alley.	30
My master carries me to church, And often am I blamed Because I leave him in the lurch As soon as text is named; I leave the church in sermon-time And slink away to Sally; She is the darling of my heart, And she lives in our alley.	35 40
When Christmas comes about again O then I shall have money; I'll hoard it up, and box and all, I'll give it to my honey: I would it were ten thousand pound, I'd give it all to Sally; She is the darling of my heart, And she lives in our alley.	45
My master and the neighbours all Make game of me and Sally, And, but for her, I'd better be A slave and row a galley;	50
But when my seven long years are out O then I'll marry Sally,— O then we'll wed, and then we'll bed, But not in our alley!  H. CAREY.	55

A FAREWELL

Go fetch to me a pint o' wine, An' fill it in a silver tassie; That I may drink before I go A service to my bonnie lassie:

The boat rocks at the pier o' Leith, Fu' loud the wind blaws frae the Ferry, The ship rides by the Berwick-law, And I maun leave my bonnie Mary.	5
The trumpets sound, the banners fly, The glittering spears are rankéd ready; The shouts o' war are heard afar, The battle closes thick and bloody; But it's not the roar o' sea or shore Wad make me langer wish to tarry;	11
Nor shout o' war that 's heard afar-	15
It's leaving thee, my bonnie Mary.
R. Burns	•
133
If doughty deeds my lady please Right soon I'll mount my steed; And strong his arm, and fast his seat, That bears frae me the meed. I'll wear thy colours in my cap, Thy picture in my heart; And he that bends not to thine eye Shall rue it to his smart. Then tell me how to woo thee, love; O tell me how to woo thee! For thy dear sake, nae care I'll take, Tho' ne'er another trow me.	5
If gay attire delight thine eye I'll dight me in array; I'll tend thy chamber door all night, And squire thee all the day. If sweetest sounds can win thine car, These sounds I'll strive to catch; Thy voice I'll steal to woo thysell, That voice that nane can match.	15 20
That voice that have can maten.	انه

But if fond love thy heart can gain, I never broke a vow;

Nae maiden lays her skaith to me, I never loved but you. For you alone I ride the ring, 25 For you I wear the blue; For you alone I strive to sing, O tell me how to woo! Then tell me how to woo thee, love; 30 O tell me how to woo thee! For thy dear sake, nae care I'll take, Tho' ne'er another trow me. R. GRAHAM OF GARTMORE.

THE SLEEPING BEAUTY

Sleep on, and dream of Heaven awhile-Tho' shut so close thy laughing eyes, Thy rosy lips still wear a smile And move, and breathe delicious sighs!

Ah, now soft blushes tinge her cheeks And mantle o'er her neck of snow: Ah, now she murmurs, now she speaks What most I wish—and fear to know!

She starts, she trembles, and she weeps!
Her fair hands folded on her breast:	10
—And now, how like a saint she sleeps!
A scraph in the realms of rest!

Sleep on secure! Above control
Thy thoughts belong to Heaven and thee:
And may the secret of thy soul
Remain within its sanctuary!

For ever, Fortune, wilt thou prove An unrelenting foe to Love, And when we meet a mutual heart Come in between, and bid us part?

Bid us sigh on from day to day, And wish and wish the soul away; Till youth and genial years are flown, And all the life of life is gone?

But busy, busy, still art thou, To bind the loveless joyless vow, The heart from pleasure to delude, And join the gentle to the rude.

For once, O Fortune, hear my prayer, And I absolve thy future care; All other blessings I resign, Make but the dear Amanda mine.

The merchant, to secure his treasure, Conveys it in a borrow'd name: Euphelia serves to grace my measure, But Cloe is my real flame.

My softest verse, my darling lyre
Upon Euphclia's toilet lay—
When Cloe noted her desire
That I should sing, that I should play.

My lyre I tune, my voice I raise,
But with my numbers mix my sighs;
And whilst I sing Euphelia's praise,
I fix my soul on Cloe's eyes.

Fair Cloe blush'd: Euphelia frown'd:
I sung, and gazed; I play'd, and trembled:
And Venus to the Loves around
Remark'd how ill we all dissembled.

When lovely woman stoops to folly And finds too late that men betray,— What charm can soothe her melancholy, What art can wash her guilt away?

The only art her guilt to cover,
To hide her shame from every eye,
To give repentance to her lover
And wring his bosom, is—to die.

Ye flowery banks o' bonnie Doon, How can ye bloom sae fair! How can ye chant, ye little birds, And I sae fu' o' care!

Thou'll break my heart, thou bonnie bird 5
That sings upon the bough;
Thou minds me o' the happy days
When my fause Luve was true.

Thou'll break my heart, thou bonnie bird
That sings beside thy mate;

For sac I sat, and sae I sang,
And wist na o' my fate.

Aft hae I roved by bonnie Doon
To see the woodbine twine;
And ilka bird sang o' its love,
And sae did I o' mine.

THE PROGRESS OF POESY

A Pindaric Ode

Awake, Aeolian lyre, awake, And give to rapture all thy trembling strings. From Helicon's harmonious springs

A thousand rills their mazy progress take:
The laughing flowers that round them blow 5
Drink life and fragrance as they flow.
Now the rich stream of Music winds along
Deep, majestic, smooth, and strong,
Through verdant vales and Ceres' golden reign;
Now rolling down the steep amain, 10
Headlong, impetuous, see it pour:
The rocks and nodding groves rebellow to the roar.

O Sovereign of the willing soul,
Parent of sweet and solemn-breathing airs,
Enchanting shell! the sullen Cares
And frantic Passions hear thy soft control.
On Thracia's hills the Lord of War
Has curb'd the fury of his car

And dropt his thirsty lance at thy command.

Perching on the sceptred hand 20

Of Jove, thy magic lulls the feather'd king

With ruffled plumes, and flagging wing:

Quench'd in dark clouds of slumber lie

The terror of his beak, and lightnings of his eye.

Thee the voice, the dance, obey 25 Temper'd to thy warbled lav. O'er Idalia's velvet green The rosy-crownéd Loves are seen On Cytherea's day, With antic Sports, and blue-eyed Pleasures, Frisking light in frolic measures; Now pursuing, now retreating, Now in circling troops they meet: To brisk notes in cadence beating Glance their many-twinkling feet. Slow melting strains their Queen's approach declare: Where'er she turns the Graces homage pay: With arms sublime that float upon the air In gliding state she wins her easy way: O'er her warm cheek and rising bosom move The bloom of young Desire and purple light of Love.

Man's feeble race what ills await!
Labour, and Penury, the racks of Pain,
Disease, and Sorrow's weeping train,
And Death, sad refuge from the storms of Fate!
The fond complaint, my song, disprove,
And justify the laws of Jove.
Say, has he given in vain the heavenly Muse?
Night, and all her sickly dews,
Her spectres wan, and birds of boding cry
He gives to range the dreary sky:
Till down the eastern cliffs afar
Hyperion's march they spy, and glittering shafts of war.

In climes beyond the solar road,
Where shaggy forms o'er ice-built mountains roam,
The Muse has broke the twilight gloom 56
To cheer the shivering native's dull abode.
And oft, beneath the odorous shade
Of Chili's boundless forests laid,
She deigns to hear the savage youth repeat 60
In loose numbers wildly sweet
Their feather-cinctured chiefs, and dusky loves.
Her track, where'er the Goddess roves,
Glory pursue, and generous Shame,
Th' unconquerable Mind, and Freedom's holy flame. 65

Woods, that wave o'er Delphi's steep, Isles, that crown th' Aegean deep, Fields that cool Ilissus laves, Or where Maeander's amber waves In lingering lab'rinths creep, 70 How do your tuneful cchoes languish, Mute, but to the voice of anguish! Where each old poetic mountain Inspiration breath'd around: Every shade and hallow'd fountain 75 Murmur'd deep a solemn sound: Till the sad Nine, in Greece's evil hour, Left their Parnassus for the Latian plains. Alike they scorn the pomp of tyrant Power, And coward Vice, that revels in her chains. When Latium had her lofty spirit lost, They sought, O Albion, next thy sea-encircled coast.

Far from the sun and summer-gale
In thy green lap was Nature's Darling laid,
What time, where lucid Avon stray'd,
To him the mighty Mother did unveil
Her awful face: the dauntless Child
Stretch'd forth his little arms, and smiled.

This pencil take (she said), whose colours clear Richly paint the vernal year:  Thine, too, these golden keys, immortal Boy! This can unlock the gates of Joy; Of Horror that, and thrilling Fears, Or ope the sacred source of sympathetic Tears.	0

The living Throne, the sapphire-blaze,	;;
Where Angels tremble while they gaze, 10	'n
He saw; but blasted with excess of light,

Behold where Dryden's less presumptuous car
Wide o'er the fields of Glory bear
Two coursers of ethereal race 10	)5

Bright-eyed Fancy, hovering o'er,
Scatters from her pictur'd urn	)9
Thoughts that breathe, and words that burn.
But ah! 'tis heard no more—
O! Lyre divine, what daring Spirit
Wakes thee now? Tho' he inherit
Nor the pride, nor ample pinion, That the Theban Eagle bear,  11	5
Sailing with supreme dominion
Thro' the azure deep of air:
Yet oft before his infant eyes would run
Such forms as glitter in the Muse's ray
With orient hues, unborrow'd of the sun: 12	90
Yet shall he mount, and keep his distant way
Beyond the limits of a vulgar fate:
Beneath the Good how far—but far above the Great	Ė.

THE PASSIONS

An Ode for Music

From the supporting myrtles round They snatch'd her instruments of sound, And, as they oft had heard apart Sweet lessons of her forceful art, Each, for Madness ruled the hour, Would prove his own expressive power.	15
First Fear his hand, its skill to try, Amid the chords bewilder'd laid, And back recoil'd, he knew not why, E'en at the sound himself had made.	20
Next Anger rush'd, his eyes on fire, In lightnings own'd his secret stings; In one rude clash he struck the lyre And swept with hurried hand the strings.
With woeful measures wan Despair, Low sullen sounds, his grief beguiled, A solemn, strange, and mingled air, 'Twas sad by fits, by starts 'twas wild.	25
But thou, O Hope, with eyes so fair, What was thy delightful measure? Still it whisper'd promised pleasure And bade the lovely scenes at distance hail	30 !

 $\mathbf{F} a$

Still would her touch the strain prolong.

built would liet toden the strain protong;
And from the rocks, the woods, the vale,
She call'd on Echo still through all the song; 35
And, where her sweetest theme she chose,
A soft responsive voice was heard at every close
And Hope enchanted smiled, and waved her golder hair.
And longer had she sung,—but with a frown
Revenge impatient rose:
He threw his blood-stain'd sword in thunder down
And with a withering look
The war-denouncing trumpet took,
And blew a blast so loud and dread,
Were ne'er prophetic sounds so full of woe.
And ever and anon he beat
The doubling drum with furious heat;
And, though sometimes, each dreary pause between Dejected Pity at his side
Her soul-subduing voice applied, 50
Yet still he kept his wild unalter'd mien,
While each strain'd ball of sight seem'd bursting from his head.
Thy numbers, Jealousy, to nought were fix'd:
Sad proof of thy distressful state!
Of differing themes the veering song was mix'd; 55
And now it courted Love, now raving call'd or Hate.
With eyes up-rais'd, as one inspir'd,
Pale Melancholy sat retir'd;
And from her wild sequester'd seat,
In notes by distance made more sweet,
Pour'd through the mellow horn her pensive soul
And dashing soft from rocks around
Bubbling runnels join'd the sound;
Through glades and glooms the mingled measure stole,
Or, o'er some haunted stream, with fond delay, Round an holy calm diffusing.
Love of peace and lonely musing,
In hollow murmurs died away.

But O! how alter'd was its sprightlier tone, When Cheerfulness, a nymph of healthiest huc, 70 Her bow across her shoulder flung,

Her buskins gemm'd with morning dew,

Blew an inspiring air, that dale and thicket rung,
The hunter's call to Faun and Dryad known!
The oak-crown'd Sisters and their chaste-eyed Queen,
75

Satyrs and Sylvan Boys, were seen Peeping from forth their alleys green:

Brown Exercise rejoic'd to hear;

And Sport leap'd up, and seiz'd his beechen spear.

80

Last came Joy's ecstatic trial: He, with viny crown advancing,

First to the lively pipe his hand addrest:

But soon he saw the brisk awak'ning viol,

Whose sweet entrancing voice he lov'd the best:
They would have thought who heard the strain 85
They saw, in Tempe's vale, her native maids

Amidst the festal-sounding shades

To some unwearied minstrel dancing;
While, as his flying fingers kiss'd the strings,
Love fram'd with Mirth a gay fantastic round:
Loose were her tresses seen, her zone unbound:

And he, amidst his frolic play,

As if he would the charming air repay, Shook thousand odours from his dewy wings.

Warm, energie, chaste, sublime!
Thy wonders in that god-like age
Fill thy recording Sister's page ;—
'Tis said, and I believe the tale,
Thy humblest reed could more prevail,	110
Had more of strength, diviner rage,
Than all which charms this laggard age,
E'en all at once together found,
Cecilia's mingled world of sound:—
O bid our vain endeavours cease:	115
Revive the just designs of Greece:
Return in all thy simple state!
Confirm the tales her sons relate!

ODE ON THE SPRING

La ! where the recy-becom'd House

130 · Wile to the rong komonical recurry
Fair Venus' train, appear,
Disclose the long-expecting flowers
And wake the purple year!
The Attic warbler pours her throat	5
Responsive to the cuckoo's note,
The untaught harmony of Spring:
While, whispering pleasure as they fly,
Cool Zephyrs through the clear blue sky
Their gather'd fragrance fling.	10
Their gather a magnance imig.	•
Where'er the oak's thick branches stretch
A broader, browner shade,
Where'er the rude and moss-grown beech
Q'er-canopies the glade,
Beside some water's rushy brink	15
	10
With me the Muse shall sit, and think
(At ease reclined in rustic state)
How vain the ardour of the Crowd,
How low, how little are the Proud,
How indigent the Great!	20

Still is the toiling hand of Care;
The panting herds repose:
Yet hark, how through the peopled air
The busy murmur glows !
The insect youth are on the wing,	25
Eager to taste the honied spring
And float amid the liquid noon:
Some lightly o'er the current skim,
Some show their gaily-gilded trim
Quick-glancing to the sun.	30
To Contemplation's sober eye
Such is the race of Man:
And they that creep, and they that fly,
Shall end where they began.
Alike the busy and the gay	35
But flutter through life's little day,
In Fortune's varying colours drest:
Brush'd by the hand of rough Mischan	ce.
Or chill'd by Age, their airy dance	,
They leave, in dust to rest.	40
Methinks I hear in accents low
The sportive kind reply:
Poor moralist! and what art thou?
A solitary fly!
Thy joys no glittering female meets,	45
No hive hast thou of hoarded sweets,
No painted plumage to display:
On hasty wings thy youth is flown;
Thy sun is set, thy spring is gone—
We frolic while 'tis May.	50

THE POPLAR FIELD

The poplars are fell'd; farewell to the shade And the whispering sound of the cool colonnade; The winds play no longer and sing in the leaves, Nor Ouse on his bosom their image receives. Twelve years have elapsed since I first took a view Of my favourite field, and the bank where they grew:

And now in the grass behold they are laid, And the tree is my seat that once lent me a shade.

The blackbird has fled to another retreat,
Where the hazels afford him a screen from the heat;
And the scene where his melody charm'd me before
Resounds with his sweet-flowing ditty no more.

My fugitive years are all hasting away, And I must ere long lie as lowly as they, With a turf on my breast and a stone at my head, Ere another such grove shall arise in its stead.

'Tis a sight to engage me, if anything can, To muse on the perishing pleasures of man; Though his life be a dream, his enjoyments, I see, Have a being less durable even than he.

W. Cowper.

Thy wee bit housie, too, in ruin! Its silly wa's the win's are strewin': And naething, now, to big a new ane, O' foggage green! An' bleak December's winds ensuin' Baith snell an' keen!	20
Thou saw the fields laid bare and waste An' weary winter comin' fast, An' cozie here, beneath the blast, Thou thought to dwell, Till, crash! the cruel coulter past Out thro' thy cell.	25 30
That wee bit heap o' leaves an' stibble Has cost thee mony a weary nibble! Now thou's turn'd out, for a' thy trouble, But house or hald, To thole the winter's sleety dribble An' cranreuch cauld!	35
But, Mousie, thou art no thy lane In proving foresight may be vain: The best laid schemes o' mice an' men Gang aft a-gley, An' lea'e us nought but grief an' pain, For promised joy.	40
Still thou art blest, compared wi' me! The present only toucheth thee: But, och! I backward cast my e'e On prospects drear! An' forward, tho' I canna see, I guess an' fear!	45

A WISH

Mine be a cot beside the hill;
A bee-hive's hum shall soothe my car;
A willowy brook that turns a mill,
With many a fall shall linger near.

The swallow, oft, beneath my thatch Shall twitter from her clay-built nest; Oft shall the pilgrim lift the latch, And share my meal, a welcome guest.

Around my ivied porch shall spring
Each fragrant flower that drinks the dew; 10
And Lucy, at her wheel, shall sing
In russet gown and apron blue.

The village-church among the trees,
Where first our marriage-vows were given,
With merry peals shall swell the breeze
And point with taper spire to Heaven.

146 TO EVENING

If aught of oaten stop or pastoral song
May hope, O pensive Eve, to soothe thine ear,
Like thy own brawling springs,
Thy springs, and dying gales;

O Nymph reserved,—while now the bright-hair'd sun 5

Sits in you western tent, whose cloudy skirts With brede ethereal wove O'erhang his wavy bed;

Now air is hush'd, save where the weak-ey'd bat With short shrill shriek flits by on leathern wing, Or where the beetle winds His small but sullen horn,

As oft he rises 'midst the twilight path, Against the pilgrim borne in heedless hum,— Now teach me, maid composed,  15	5
To breathe some soften'd strain,
Whose numbers, stealing through thy dark'ning vale. May not unseemly with its stillness suit; As musing slow I hail Thy genial loved return.
For when thy folding-star arising shows His paly circlet, at his warning lamp The fragrant Hours, and Elves Who slept in buds the day,
And many a Nymph who wreathes her brows with sedge  And sheds the freshening dew, and lovelier still  The pensive Pleasures sweet,  Prepare thy shadowy car.
Then let me rove some wild and heathy scene; Or find some ruin midst its dreary dells, Whose walls more awful nod By thy religious gleams.	)
Or if chill blustering winds or driving rain Prevent my willing feet, be mine the hut That, from the mountain's side, Views wilds and swelling floods,	5
And hamlets brown, and dim-discover'd spires; And hears their simple bell; and marks o'er all Thy dewy fingers draw The gradual dusky yeil.  40
The gradual dusky veil.  While Spring shall pour his showers, as oft he wont, And bathe thy breathing tresses, meekest Eve!  While Summer loves to sport Beneath thy lingering light;
While sallow Autumn fills thy lap with leaves; Or Winter, yelling through the troublous air, Affrights thy shrinking train And rudely rends thy robes;	;

So long, regardful of thy quiet rule, 49
Shall Fancy, Friendship, Science, smiling Peace,
Thy gentlest influence own,
And love thy favourite name!

WRITTEN IN A COUNTRY CHURCH-YARD

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd wind slowly o'er the lea,
The ploughman homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the world to darkness, and to me.

Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight, 5 And all the air a solemn stillness holds, Save where the beetle wheels his droning flight,

And drowsy tinklings lull the distant folds ·

Save that from yonder ivy-mantled tower
The moping owl does to the moon complain
Of such as, wandering near her secret bower,
Molest her ancient solitary reign.

Beneath those rugged elms, that yew-tree's shade, Where heaves the turf in many a mouldering heap, Each in his narrow cell for ever laid, 15 The rude Forefathers of the hamlet sleep

The rude Forefathers of the hamlet sleep.

The breezy call of incense-breathing morn,
The swallow twittering from the straw-built shed,
The cock's shrill clarion, or the echoing horn,
19
No more shall rouse them from their lowly bed.

For them no more the blazing hearth shall burn, Or busy housewife ply her evening care: No children run to lisp their sire's return, Or climb his knees the envied kiss to share.

Oft did the harvest to their sickle yield, 25
Their furrow oft the stubborn glebe has broke;
How jocund did they drive their team afield!
How bow'd the woods beneath their sturdy stroke!

Let not Ambition mock their useful toil,
Their homely joys, and destiny obscure; 30 Nor Grandeur hear with a disdainful smile
The short and simple annals of the Poor.
The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power, And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
Awaits alike th' inevitable hour:— 35
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.
Nor you, ye Proud, impute to these the fault If Memory o'er their tomb no trophies raise,
Where through the long-drawn aisle and fretted vault
The pealing anthem swells the note of praise.
Can storied urn or animated bust  Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?
Can Honour's voice provoke the silent dust, Or Flattery soothe the dull cold ear of Death?
Perhaps in this neglected spot is laid 45
Some heart once pregnant with celestial fire; Hands, that the rod of empire might have sway'd, Or waked to cestasy the living lyre:
But Knowledge to their eyes her ample page
Rich with the spoils of time, did ne'er unroll; Chill Penury repress'd their noble rage, 51 And froze the genial current of the soul.
Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathom'd caves of ocean bear: Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,  55
And waste its sweetness on the desert air.
Some village-Hampden, that with dauntless breast The little tyrant of his fields withstood,
Some mute inglorious Milton here may rest, 59 Some Cromwell, guiltless of his country's blood.
Th' applause of list'ning senates to command,
The threats of pain and ruin to despise, To scatter plenty o'er a smiling land,
And read their history in a nation's eyes,

Here rests his head upon the lap of Earth A Youth, to Fortune and to Fame unknown; Fair Science frown'd not on his humble birth, And Melancholy mark'd him for her own.

Large was his bounty, and his soul sincere;
Heaven did a recompense as largely send:
He gave to Misery all he had, a tear,
He gain'd from Heaven, 'twas all he wish'd, a friend.

No farther seeks his merits to disclose,
Or draw his frailties from their dread abode,
(There they alike in trembling hope repose,)

Those smiles and glances let me see
That make the miser's treasure poor:
How blythely wad I bide the stoure,
A weary slave frae sun to sun,
Could I the rich reward secure,
The lovely Mary Morison.

Yestreen, when to the trembling string
The dance gaed thro' the lighted ha',
To thee my fancy took its wing,—
I sat, but neither heard nor saw:
Tho' this was fair, and that was braw,
And yon the toast of a' the town,
I sigh'd, and said amang them a'
'Ye arena Mary Morison.'

O Mary, canst thou wreck his peace
Wha for thy sake wad gladly dee?
Or canst thou break that heart of his,

If love for love thou wiltna gie,
At least be pity to me shown;
A thought ungentle canna be
The thought o' Mary Morison.

That heart that lo'ed me dearly!
But still within my bosom's core
Shall live my Highland Mary.

AULD ROBIN GRAY

When the sheep are in the fauld, and the kyeathame, And a' the warld to rest are gane, The waes o' my heart fa' in showers frae my e'e, While my gudeman lies sound by me.

Young Jamie lo'ed me weel, and sought me for his bride;

But saving a croun he had naething else beside: To make the croun a pund, young Jamie gaed tosca; And the croun and the pund were baith for me.

He hadna been awa' a week but only twa,

When my father brak his arm, and the cow was stown awa;

My mother she fell sick, and my Jamie at the sea—And auld Robin Gray came a-courtin' me.

My father couldna work, and my mother couldnaspin; I toil'd day and night, but their bread I couldna win; Auld Rob maintain'd them baith, and wi' tears in his e'e

Said, Jennic, for their sakes, O, marry me!

My heart it said nay; I look'd for Jamie back; But the wind it blew high, and the ship it was a wrack;

His ship it was a wrack—why didna Jamie dee? Or why do I live to cry, Wae's me?

My father urgit sair: my mother didna speak; But she look'd in my face till my heart was like to break:

They gi'ed him my hand, but my heart was at the sea Sae auld Robin Gray he was gudeman to me.

I hadna been a wife a week but only four, 25 When mournfu' as I sat on the stane at the door, I saw my Jamie's wraith, for I couldna think it he—Till he said, I'm come hame to marry thee.

O sair, sair did we greet, and muckle did we say; We took but ac kiss, and I bad him gang away: I wish that I were dead, but I'm no like to dee; And why was I born to say, Wae's me!

I gang like a ghaist, and I carena to spin; I daurna think on Jamie, for that wad be a sin; But I'll do my best a gude wife ay to be, For auld Robin Gray he is kind unto me.

DUNCAN GRAY

Duncan Gray cam here to woo,

Ha, ha, the wooing o't,
On blythe Yule night when we were fou,
Ha, ha, the wooing o't:
Maggie coost her head fu' high,
Look'd asklent and unco skeigh,
Gart poor Duncan stand abeigh;
Ha, ha, the wooing o't!

Duncan fleech'd, and Duncan pray'd;
Meg was deaf as Ailsa Craig;
Duncan sigh'd baith out and in,
Grat his een baith bleer't and blin',
Spak o' lowpin ower a linn!

Time and chance are but a tide, Slighted love is sair to bide; Shall I, like a fool, quoth he, For a haughty hizzie dee? She may gae to—France for me!

27(1111)
How it comes let doctors tell, Meg grew sick—as he grew heal; Something in her bosom wrings, For relief a sigh she brings; And O, her een, they spak sic things!	20
Duncan was a lad o' grace; Ha, ha, the wooing o't! Maggie's was a pitcous case; Ha, ha, the wooing o't! Duncan couldna be her death,	25
Swelling pity smoor'd his wrath; Now they're crouse and canty baith: Ha, ha, the wooing o't! R. Burns	30

THE SAILOR'S WIFE
And are ye sure the news is true? And are ye sure he 's weel? Is this a time to think o' wark? Ye jades, lay by your wheel; Is this the time to spin a thread, When Colin 's at the door? Reach down my cloak, I'll to the quay, And see him come ashore. For there 's nae luck about the house, There 's nae luck at a'; There's little pleasure in the house When our gudeman 's awa'.	5
And gie to me my bigonet, My bishop's satin gown; For I maun tell the baillie's wife That Colin's in the town. My Turkey slippers maun gae on, My stockins pearly blue;	15
It 's a' to pleasure our gudeman,  For he 's baith leal and true.	20

Rise, lass, and mak a clean fireside. Put on the muckle pot; Gie little Kate her button gown And Jock his Sunday coat; And mak their shoon as black as slacs, Their hose as white as snaw; It 's a' to please my ain gudeman, For he 's been long awa'.	25
Mak haste and thraw their neeks about That Colin weel may fare; And spread the table neat and clean, Gar ilka thing look braw,	30
For wha can tell how Colin fared When he was far awa'?  Sae true his heart, sae smooth his speech, His breath like caller air;	35
His very foot has music in't As he comes up the stair— And will I see his face again? And will I hear him speak? I'm downright dizzy wi' the thought, In troth I'm like to greet!	40
If Colin's weel, and weel content, I hae nae mair to crave: And gin I live to keep him sae, I'm blest aboon the lave: And will I see his face again,	45
And will I hear him speak? I'm downright dizzy wi' the thought, In troth I'm like to greet. For there 's nae luck about the house, There 's nae luck at a';	50
There's little pleasure in the house When our gudeman's awa'.  W. J. Mickle.	55

JEAN
Of a' the airts the wind can blaw I dearly like the West, For there the bonnie lassie lives, The lassie I lo'e best: There's wild woods grow, and rivers row, And mony a hill between; But day and night my fancy's flight Is ever wi' my Jean.	5
I see her in the dewy flowers,    I see her sweet and fair: I hear her in the tunefu' birds,    I hear her charm the air: There 's not a bonnie flower that springs    By fountain, shaw, or green, There 's not a bonnie bird that sings	10
But minds me o' my Jean.  O blaw ye westlin winds, blaw saft Amang the leafy trees; Wi' balmy gale, frae hill and dale Bring hame the laden bees; And bring the lassie back to me That 's ay sae neat and clean; Ae smile o' her wad banish care, Sae charming is my Jean.	20
What sighs and vows amang the knowes Hae pass'd atween us twa! How fond to meet, how wae to part That night she gaed awa!	26
The Powers aboon can only ken To whom the heart is seen, That nane can be sae dear to me As my sweet lovely Jean! R. Burns	30

John Anderson my jo, John,
When we were first acquent
Your locks were like the raven,
Your bonnie brow was brent;
But now your brow is beld, John,
Your locks are like the snow;
But blessings on your frosty pow,
John Anderson my jo.

John Anderson my jo, John, We clamb the hill thegither, And mony a canty day, John,	10
We've had wi' ane anither:
Now we maun totter down, John,

THE LAND O' THE LEAL

I'm wearing awa', Jean,
Like snaw when it 's thaw, Jean,
I'm wearing awa'
To the land o' the leal.
There 's nae sorrow there, Jean,
There 's neither cauld nor care, Jean,
The day is ay fair
In the land o' the leal.

Ye were ay leal and true, Jean, Your task's ended noo, Jean, And I'll welcome you To the land o' the leal.

Our bonnie bairn 's there, Jean, She was baith guid and fair, Jean; O we grudged her right sair To the land o' the leal!	15
Then dry that tearfu' e'c, Jean, My soul langs to be free, Jean, And angels wait on me
To the land o' the leal. Now fare ye weel, my ain Jean,	20
This warld's care is vain, Jean; We'll meet and ay be fain In the land o' the leal.

ODE ON A DISTANT PROSPECT OF ETON COLLEGE

Ye distant spires, ye antique towers
That crown the watery glade,
Where grateful Science still adores
Her Henry's holy shade;
And ye, that from the stately brow	5
Of Windsor's heights th' expanse below
Of grove, of lawn, of mead survey,
Whose turf, whose shade, whose flowers	among
Wanders the hoary Thames along	Ü
His silver-winding way:	10
.,

Ah happy hills! ah pleasing shade! Ah fields beloved in vain! Where once my careless childhood stray'd, A stranger yet to pain! I feel the gales that from ye blow 15 A momentary bliss bestow, As waving fresh their gladsome wing My weary soul they seem to soothe, And, redolent of joy and youth, To breathe a second spring. 20

Say, Father Thames, for thou hast seen
Full many a sprightly race
Disporting on thy margent green
The paths of pleasure trace;
Who foremost now delight to cleave	25
With pliant arm, thy glassy wave?
The captive linnet which enthral?
What idle progeny succeed
To chase the rolling circle's speed
Or urge the flying ball?	30
, , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , ,
While some on earnest business bent
Their murmuring labours ply
'Gainst graver hours, that bring constraint
To sweeten liberty:
Some bold adventurers disdain	35
The limits of their little reign
And unknown regions dare desery:
Still as they run they look behind,
They hear a voice in every wind,
And snatch a fearful joy.	40
And shatch a learner joy.	40
Gay hope is theirs by fancy fed,
Less pleasing when possest;
The tear forgot as soon as shed,
The sunshine of the breast:
Theirs buxom health, of rosy hue,	45
Wild wit, invention ever new,
And lively cheer, of vigour born;
The thoughtless day, the easy night,
The spirits pure, the slumbers light
That fly th' approach of morn.	50
that hy the approach of mont.	00
Alas! regardless of their doom
The little victims play!
No sense have they of ills to come
Nor care beyond to-day:
Yet see how all around them wait	55
The Ministers of human fate
And black Misfortune's baleful train!

160 GRAY

Ah show them where in ambush stand To seize their prey, the murderous band! Ah, tell them they are men!	60
These shall the fury Passions tear,
The vultures of the mind, Disdainful Anger, pallid Fear,
And Shame that skulks behind;
Or pining Love shall waste their youth, Or Jealousy with rankling tooth	65
That inly gnaws the secret heart,
And Envy wan, and faded Care,
Grim-visaged comfortless Despair,	70
And Sorrow's piercing dart.	70
Ambition this shall tempt to rise, Then whirl the wretch from high,
To bitter Scorn a sacrifice
And grinning Infamy.
The stings of Falsehood those shall try, And hard Unkindness' alter'd eye,	75
That mocks the tear it forced to flow;
And keen Remorse with blood defiled,
And moody Madness laughing wild	90
Amid severest woe.	80
Lo, in the vale of years beneath A griesly troop are seen,
The painful family of Death,
More hideous than their Queen:
This racks the joints, this fires the veins,	35
That every labouring sinew strains, Those in the deeper vitals rage:
Lo, Poverty, to fill the band,
That numbs the soul with icy hand,	00
And slow-consuming Age.	90
To each his sufferings: all are men, Condemn'd alike to groan;
The tender for another's pain,
Th' unfeeling for his own.	91
Yet, ah! why should they know their fate, Since sorrow never comes too late,
Dirico Dollon iloyol Comico eco Idele,

And happiness too swiftly flies? Thought would destroy their paradise. No more;—where ignorance is bliss, "Tis folly to be wise.

HYMN TO ADVERSITY

Daughter of Jove, relentless power,
Thou tamer of the human breast,
Whose iron scourge and torturing hour
The bad affright, afflict the best!
Bound in thy adamantine chain
The proud are taught to taste of pain,
And purple tyrants vainly groan
With pangs unfelt before, unpitied and alone.

When first thy Sire to send on earth
Virtue, his darling child, design'd,
To thee he gave the heavenly birth
And bade to form her infant mind.
Stern, rugged Nurse! thy rigid lore
With patience many a year she bore:
What sorrow was, thou bad'st her know,
15
And from her own she learn'd to melt at others' woe.

Scared at thy frown terrific, fly
Self-pleasing Folly's idle brood,
Wild Laughter, Noise, and thoughtless Joy,
And leave us leisure to be good.
Light they disperse, and with them go
The summer Friend, the flattering Foe;
By vain Prosperity received,
To her they vow their truth, and are again believed.

Wisdom in sable garb array'd
Immersed in rapturous thought profound,
And Melancholy, silent maid,
With leaden eye, that loves the ground,

Still on thy solemn steps attend: Warm Charity, the general friend, With Justice, to herself severe, And Pity dropping soft the sadly-pleasing tear.	30
O, gently on thy suppliant's head Dread Goddess, lay thy chastening hand! Not in thy Gorgon terrors clad, Nor circled with the vengeful band (As by the impious thou art seen) With thundering voice, and threatening mien With screaming Horror's funeral cry, Despair, and fell Disease, and ghastly Poverty	•
Thy form benign, O Goddess, wear, Thy milder influence impart, Thy philosophic train be there	41
To soften, not to wound my heart. The generous spark extinct revive, Teach me to love and to forgive, Exact my own defects to scan, What others are to feel, and know myself a M T. Gray

THE SOLITUDE OF ALEXANDER SELKI	RK
I am monarch of all I survey, My right there is none to dispute; From the centre all round to the sea I am lord of the fowl and the brute. O solitude! where are the charms That sages have seen in thy face? Better dwell in the midst of alarms Than reign in this horrible place.	5
I am out of humanity's reach, I must finish my journey alone, Never hear the sweet music of speech; I start at the sound of my own.	10

The beasts that roam over the plain My form with indifference see; They are so unacquainted with man, Their tameness is shocking to me.	15
Society, friendship, and love Divinely bestow'd upon man, O had I the wings of a dove How soon would I taste you again! My sorrows I then might assuage In the ways of religion and truth, Might learn from the wisdom of age, And be cheer'd by the sallies of youth.	20
Ye winds that have made me your sport, Convey to this desolate shore Some cordial endearing report Of a land I shall visit no more: My friends, do they now and then send A wish or a thought after me? O tell me I yet have a friend, Though a friend I am never to see.	25 30
How fleet is a glance of the mind! Compared with the speed of its flight, The tempest itself lags behind, And the swift-wingéd arrows of light. When I think of my own native land In a moment I seem to be there; But, alas! recollection at hand Soon hurries me back to despair.	35 40
But the scafowl is gone to her nest, The beast is laid down in his lair; Even here is a season of rest, And I to my cabin repair. There is mercy in every place, And mercy, encouraging thought! Gives even affliction a grace And reconciles man to his lot. W. Cowper.	45

An eloquence scarce given to mortals, new And undebased by praise of meaner things,

That ere through age or woe I shed my wings
I may record thy worth with honour due,
In verse as musical as thou art true,
Verse that immortalizes whom it sings:—

But thou hast little need. There is a Book
By scraphs writ with beams of heavenly light, 10
On which the eyes of God not rarely look,
A chronicle of actions just and bright—

There all thy deeds, my faithful Mary, shine; And since thou own'st that praise, I spare thee mine.

TO THE SAME

The twentieth year is well-nigh past Since first our sky was overcast; Ah, would that this might be the last! My Mary!

Thy spirits have a fainter flow,
I see thee daily weaker grow—
"Twas my distress that brought thee low,
My Mary!

Thy needles, once a shining store,
For my sake restless heretofore,
Now rust disused, and shine no more;
My Mary!

For though thou gladly wouldst fulfil The same kind office for me still, Thy sight now seconds not thy will, My Mary!	15
But well thou play'dst the housewife's par And all thy threads with magic art Have wound themselves about this heart, My Mary!	t, 20
Thy indistinct expressions seem Like language utter'd in a dream; Yet me they charm, whate'er the theme, My Mary!
Thy silver locks, once auburn bright, Are still more lovely in my sight Than golden beams of orient light, My Mary!	25
For could I view nor them nor thee, What sight worth seeing could I see? The sun would rise in vain for me, My Mary!	30
Partakers of thy sad decline Thy hands their little force resign; Yet, gently press'd, press gently mine, My Mary!	35
Such feebleness of limbs thou prov'st That now at every step thou mov'st Upheld by two; yet still thou lov'st, My Mary!	40
And still to love, though press'd with ill, In wintry age to feel no chill, With me is to be lovely still, My Mary!
But ah! by constant heed I know How oft the sadness that I show Transforms thy smiles to looks of woe, My Mary!	45

And should my future lot be east With much resemblance of the past, Thy worn-out heart will break at last— My Mary!

THE DYING MAN IN HIS GARDEN

Why, Damon, with the forward day Dost thou thy little spot survey, From tree to tree, with doubtful cheer, Observe the progress of the year, What winds arise, what rains descend, When thou before that year shalt end?

What do thy noonday walks avail, To clear the leaf, and pick the snail Then wantonly to death decree An insect usefuller than thee? Thou and the worm are brother-kind, As low, as earthy, and as blind.

Vain wretch! canst thou expect to see The downy peach make court to thee? Or that thy sense shall ever meet The bean-flower's deep-embosom'd sweet Exhaling with an evening's blast? Thy evenings then will all be past!

Thy narrow pride, thy fancied green (For vanity's in little seen), All must be left when Death appears, In spite of wishes, groans, and tears; Nor one of all thy plants that grow But Rosemary will with thee go.

G. SEWELL.

TO-MORROW

In the downhill of life, when I find I'm declining, May my lot no less fortunate be Than a snug elbow-chair can afford for reclining,

And a cot that o'erlooks the wide sea;

With an ambling pad-pony to pace o'er the lawn,
While I carol away idle sorrow,

And blithe as the lark that each day hails the dawn Look forward with hope for to-morrow.

With a porch at my door, both for shelter and shade too,

As the sunshine or rain may prevail; 10 And a small spot of ground for the use of the spade too,

With a barn for the use of the flail:

A cow for my dairy, a dog for my game,

And a purse when a friend wants to borrow;
I'll envy no nabob his riches or fame,
Nor what becomes await him to morrow.

Nor what honours await him to-morrow.

From the bleak northern blast may my cot be completely

Secured by a neighbouring hill;

And at night may repose steal upon me more sweetly By the sound of a murmuring rill: 20

And while peace and plenty I find at my board, With a heart free from sickness and sorrow,

With my friends may 1 share what to-day may afford,

And let them spread the table to-morrow. 24

And when I at last must throw off this frail covering Which I've worn for three-score years and ten, On the brink of the grave I'll not seek to keep hovering.

Nor my thread wish to spin o'er again:

But my face in the glass I'll serencly survey, 29
And with smiles count each wrinkle and furrow;
As this old worn-out stuff, which is threadbare to-day,

May become everlasting to-morrow.

Life! I know not what thou art, But know that thou and I must part; And when, or how, or where we met I own to me's a secret yet.

Life! we've been long together 5
Through pleasant and through cloudy weather;
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear—
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear;

Choose thine own time; 10
Say not Good Night,—but in some brighter clime
Bid me Good Morning.

ON FIRST LOOKING INTO CHAPMAN'S HOMER

Much have I travell'd in the realms of gold
And many goodly states and kingdoms seen;
Round many western islands have I been
Which bards in fealty to Apollo hold.

Oft of one wide expanse had I been told 5
That deep-brow'd Homer ruled as his demesne;
Yet did I never breathe its pure serene
Till I heard Chapman speak out loud and bold:

Then felt I like some watcher of the skies

When a new planet swims into his ken; Or like stout Cortez, when with eagle eyes

He stared at the Pacific—and all his men Look'd at each other with a wild surmise— Silent, upon a peak in Darien.

ODE ON THE POETS

Bards of Passion and of Mirth Ye have left your souls on earth! Have ye souls in heaven too, Double-lived in regions new?

Yes, and those of heaven commune	5
With the spheres of sun and moon;
With the noise of fountains wond'rous
And the parle of voices thund'rous;
With the whisper of heaven's trees
And one another, in soft ease	10
Seated on Elysian lawns
Brows'd by none but Dian's fawns;
Underneath large blue-bells tented,
Where the daisies are rose-scented,
And the rose herself has got	15
Perfume which on earth is not;
Where the nightingale doth sing
Not a senseless, trancéd thing,
But divine melodious truth;
Philosophic numbers smooth;	20
Tales and golden histories
Of heaven and its mysteries.

Thus ye live on high, and then On the earth ye live again; And the souls ye left behind you 25 Teach us, here, the way to find you, Where your other souls are joying, Never slumber'd, never cloying. Here, your earth-born souls still speak To mortals, of their little week; 30 Of their sorrows and delights; Of their passions and their spites; Of their glory and their shame; What doth strengthen and what maim :-Thus ye teach us, every day, 35 Wisdom, though fled far away.

Bards of Passion and of Mirth Ye have left your souls on earth! Ye have souls in heaven too, Double-lived in regions new!

J. KEATS,

LOVE
All thoughts, all passions, all delights, Whatever stirs this mortal frame, All are but ministers of Love, And feed his sacred flame.
Oft in my waking dreams do I Live o'er again that happy hour, When midway on the mount I lay Beside the ruin'd tower.	5
The moonshine stealing o'er the scene IIad blended with the lights of eve; And she was there, my hope, my joy, My own dear Genevieve!	10
She lean'd against the arméd man, The statue of the arméd knight; She stood and listen'd to my lay, Amid the lingering light.	15
Few sorrows hath she of her own, My hope! my joy! my Genevieve! She loves me best whene'er 1 sing The songs that make her grieve.	20
I play'd a soft and doleful air, I sang an old and moving story— An old rude song, that suited well That ruin wild and hoary.
She listen'd with a flitting blush, With downcast eyes and modest grace; For well she knew I could not choose But gaze upon her face.	25
I told her of the Knight that wore Upon his shield a burning brand; And that for ten long years he woo'd The Lady of the Land	30

I told her how he pined; and ah! The deep, the low, the pleading tone With which I sang another's love Interpreted my own.	35
She listen'd with a flitting blush, With downcast eyes and modest grace; And she forgave me, that I gazed Too fondly on her face.	40
But when I told the cruel scorn That crazed that bold and lovely Knigh And that he cross'd the mountain-woods, Nor rested day nor night;	ıt,
That sometimes from the savage den, And sometimes from the darksome shad And sometimes starting up at once In green and sunny glade	45 le,
There came and look'd him in the face An angel beautiful and bright; And that he knew it was a Fiend, This miserable Knight!	50
And that, unknowing what he did, He leap'd amid a murderous band, And saved from outrage worse than death The Lady of the Land;	55
And how she wept, and clasp'd his knees And how she tended him in vain; And ever strove to expiate The scorn that crazed his brain;	60
And that she nursed him in a cave, And how his madness went away, When on the yellow forest leaves A dying man he lay;
—His dying words—but when I reach'd That tenderest strain of all the ditty, My faltering voice and pausing harp Disturb'd her soul with pity!	65

All impulses of soul and sense Had thrill'd my guileless Genevieve; The music and the doleful tale, The rich and balmy eve;	70
And hopes, and fears that kindle hope, An undistinguishable throng, And gentle wishes long subdued, Subdued and cherish'd long!	75
She wept with pity and delight, She blush'd with love and virgin shame; And, like the murmur of a dream, I heard her breathe my name.	80
Her bosom heaved—she stepp'd aside, As conscious of my look she stept— Then suddenly, with timorous eye She fled to me and wept.
She half enclosed me with her arms She press'd me with a meck embrace; And bending back her head, look'd up, And gazed upon my face.	85
'Twas partly love, and partly fear, And partly 'twas a bashful art, That I might rather feel, than see, The swelling of her heart.	90
I calm'd her fears, and she was calm, And told her love with virgin pride; And so I won my Genevieve, My bright and beauteous Bride.	95
S. T. COLERIDGE.

ALL FOR LOVE

O talk not to me of a name great in story; The days of our youth are the days of our glory; And the myrtle and ivy of sweet two-and-twenty Are worth all your laurels, though ever so plenty.

What are garlands and crowns to the brow that wrinkled? 'Tis but as a dead flower with May-dew besprinkle. Then away with all such from the head that is hoary. What care I for the wreaths that can only give glor. O Fame!—if I e'er took delight in thy praises, 'Twas less for the sake of thy high-sounding phras. THE OUTLAW
O Brignall banks are wild and fair, And Greta woods are green,
And you may gather garlands there Would grace a summer queen. And as I rode by Dalton Hall Beneath the turrets high, A Maiden on the castle-wall	5
Was singing merrily:  Output Of Brignall banks are fresh and fair, And Greta woods are green; I'd rather rove with Edmund there Than reign our English queen.	10
'If, Maiden, thou wouldst wend with me, To leave both tower and town, Thou first must guess what life lead we That dwell by dale and down. And if thou canst that riddle read,	15
As read full well you may, Then to the greenwood shalt thou speed As blithe as Queen of May.'	20

Yet sung she, 'Brignall banks are fair, And Greta woods are green; I'd rather rove with Edmund there Than reign our English queen.
'I read you by your bugle-horn And by your palfrey good, I read you for a ranger sworn To keep the king's greenwood.'	25
'A ranger, lady, winds his horn, And 'tis at peep of light; His blast is heard at merry morn, And mine at dead of night.' Yet sung she, 'Brignall banks are fair,	30
And Greta woods are gay; I would I were with Edmund there To reign his Queen of May!	35
'With burnish'd brand and musketoon So gallantly you come, I read you for a bold Dragoon That lists the tuck of drum.' 'I list no more the tuck of drum, No more the trumpet hear; But when the beetle sounds his hum My comrades take the spear.	40
And O! though Brignall banks be fair And Greta woods be gay, Yet mickle must the maiden dare Would reign my Queen of May!	45
'Maiden! a nameless life I lead, A nameless death I'll die; The fiend whose lantern lights the mead Were better mate than I! And when I'm with my comrades met	50
Beneath the greenwood bough,— What once we were we all forget, Nor think what we are now.	55

Chorus

Yet Brignall banks are fresh and fair,
And Greta woods are green,
And you may gather garlands there
Would grace a summer queen.
Sir W. Scott.

There be none of Beauty's daughters
With a magic like thee;
And like music on the waters
Is thy sweet voice to me:
When, as if its sound were causing
The charméd ocean's pausing,
The waves lie still and gleaming,
And the lull'd winds seem dreaming:

And the midnight moon is weaving
Her bright chain o'er the deep,
Whose breast is gently heaving
As an infant's asleep:
So the spirit bows before thee
To listen and adore thee;
With a full but soft emotion,
Like the swell of Summer's ocean.

LINES TO AN INDIAN AIR

I arise from dreams of thee
In the first sweet sleep of night,
When the winds are breathing low
And the stars are shining bright:
I arise from dreams of thee,
And a spirit in my feet
Has led me—who knows how?
To thy chamber-window, sweet!

LORD BYRON	177
The wandering airs they faint On the dark, the silent stream— The champak odours fail Like sweet thoughts in a dream; The nightingale's complaint It dies upon her heart,	10
As I must die on thine, O belovéd as thou art ! O lift me from the grass ! I die, I faint, I fail !	15
Let thy love in kisses rain On my lips and eyelids pale. My check is cold and white, alas! My heart beats loud and fast; O! press it close to thine again Where it will break at last. P. B. Shelle	20 Y.

She walks in beauty, like the night Of cloudless climes and starry skies, And all that's best of dark and bright Meet in her aspect and her eyes, Thus mellow'd to that tender light Which heaven to gaudy day denics.	5
One shade the more, one ray the less, Had half impair'd the nameless grace Which waves in every raven tress, Or softly lightens o'er her face, Where thoughts screnely sweet express How pure, how dear their dwelling-place.	10
And on that cheek and o'er that brow So soft, so calm, yet eloquent, The smiles that win, the tints that glow But tell of days in goodness spent, A mind at peace with all below, A beart wheel love is imporent	15

LORD BYRON.

She was a phantom of delight When first she gleam'd upon my sight; A lovely apparition, sent To be a moment's ornament; Her eyes as stars of Twilight fair : 5 Like Twilight's, too, her dusky hair; But all things else about her drawn From May-time and the cheerful dawn; A dancing shape, an image gay, To haunt, to startle, and waylay 10 I saw her upon nearer view, A spirit, yet a woman too! Her household motions light and free, And steps of virgin-liberty: 15 A countenance in which did meet Sweet records, promises as sweet; A creature not too bright or good For human nature's daily food, For transient sorrows, simple wiles, Praise, blame, love, kisses, tears, and smiles. And now I see with eye serene 31 The very pulse of the machine; A being breathing thoughtful breath, A traveller between life and death: The reason firm, the temperate will, 25 Endurance, foresight, strength, and skill; A perfect woman, nobly plann'd To warn, to comfort, and command; And yet a Spirit still, and bright

O then I saw her eye was bright, A well of love, a spring of light.

But now her looks are coy and cold,

And yet I cease not to behold

The love-light in her eye: Her very frowns are fairer far Than smiles of other maidens are.

THE LOST LOVE

She dwelt among the untrodden ways
Beside the springs of Dove;
A maid whom there were none to praise,
And very few to love:

A violet by a mossy stone
Half hidden from the eye!
—Fair as a star, when only one
Is shining in the sky.

She lived unknown, and few could know
When Lucy ceased to be;
But she is in her grave, and oh,
The difference to me!

W. Wordsworth.

I travell'd among unknown men
In lands beyond the sea;
Nor, England! did I know till then
What love I bore to thee.

"Tis past, that melancholy dream!
Nor will I quit thy shore
A second time; for still I seem
To love thee more and more.

Among thy mountains did I feel
The joy of my desire;
And she I cherish'd turn'd her wheel
Beside an English fire.

Thy mornings show'd, thy nights conceal'd
The bowers where Lucy play'd;
And thine too is the last green field
That Lucy's eyes survey'd.

THE EDUCATION OF NATURE

Three years she grew in sun and shower;
Then Nature said, 'A lovelier flower
On earth was never sown:
This child I to myself will take;
She shall be mine, and I will make
A lady of my own.

'Myself will to my darling be
Both law and impulse: and with me
The girl, in rock and plain,
In earth and heaven, in glade and bower,
Shall feel an overseeing power
To kindle or restrain.

$\mathbf{w} \mathbf{o}$	DI	761	1 177	יעו	ntt

'She shall be sportive as the fawn That wild with glee across the lawn Or up the mountain springs; And hers shall be the breathing balm, And hers the silence and the calm Of mute insensate things.	15
'The floating clouds their state shall lend To her; for her the willow bend; Nor shall she fail to see E'en in the motions of the storm Grace that shall mould the maiden's form By silent sympathy.	20
'The stars of midnight shall be dear To her; and she shall lean her ear In many a secret place Where rivulets dance their wayward round, And beauty born of murmuring sound Shall pass into her face.	25 30
'And vital feelings of delight Shall rear her form to stately height, Her virgin bosom swell; Such thoughts to Lucy I will give While she and I together live Here in this happy dell.'	35
Thus Nature spake—The work was done—How soon my Lucy's race was run! She died, and left to me This heath, this calm and quiet seene; The memory of what has been, And never more will be. W. Wordsworth	40 r.

LORD ULLIN'S DAUGHTER
A Chieftain to the Highlands bound Cries 'Boatman, do not tarry! And I'll give thee a silver pound To row us o'er the ferry!'
'Now who be ye, would cross Lochgyle This dark and stormy water?' 'O I'm the chief of Ulva's isle, And this, Lord Ullin's daughter.	5
'And fast before her father's men Three days we've fled together, For should he find us in the glen, My blood would stain the heather.	10
'His horsemen hard behind us ride— Should they our steps discover, Then who will cheer my bonny bride When they have slain her lover?'	15
Out spoke the hardy Highland wight, 'I'll go, my chief, I'm ready: It is not for your silver bright, But for your winsome lady:—	20
'And by my word! the bonny bird In danger shall not tarry; So though the waves are raging white I'll row you o'er the ferry.'
By this the storm grew loud apace, The water-wraith was shrieking; And in the scowl of heaven each face Grew dark as they were speaking.	25

But still as wilder blew the wind And as the night grew drearer, Adown the glen rode arméd men, Their trampling sounded nearer.	30
'O haste thee, haste!' the lady crics, 'Though tempests round us gather; I'll meet the raging of the skies, But not an angry father.'	35
The boat has left a stormy land, A stormy sea before her,— When, oh! too strong for human hand The tempest gather'd o'er her.	40
And still they row'd amidst the roar Of waters fast prevailing: Lord Ullin reach'd that fatal shore,— His wrath was changed to wailing.
For, sore dismay'd, through storm and shade His child he did discover:— One lovely hand she stretch'd for aid, And one was round her lover.	46
'Come back! come back!' he cried in grief 'Across this stormy water: And I'll forgive your Highland chief, My daughter!—O my daughter!'	50
'Twas vain: the loud waves lash'd the shore, Return or aid preventing: The waters wild went o'er his child, And he was left lamenting.  T. CAMPBELLA	55

FREEDOM AND LOVE

How delicious is the winning Of a kiss at love's beginning, When two mutual hearts are sighing For the knot there's no untying!

10

Yet remember, 'midst your wooing,	5
Love has bliss, but Love has rung;
Other smiles may make you fickle, Tears for other charms may trickle.
Love he comes, and Love he tarries,
Just as fate or fancy carries;	10
Longest stays, when sorest chidden;
Laughs and flies, when press'd and bidden.
Bind the sea to slumber stilly,
Bind its odour to the lily,
Bind the aspen ne'er to quiver,	15
Then bind Love to last for ever.
Love's a fire that needs renewal
Of fresh beauty for its fuel:
Love's wing moults when caged and captured	١,
Only free, he soars enraptured.	20
Can you keep the bee from ranging
Or the ringdove's neck from changing?
No! nor fetter'd Love from dying
In the knot there's no untying.

LOVE'S PHILOSOPHY

The fountains mingle with the river
And the rivers with the ocean,
The winds of heaven mix for ever
With a sweet emotion;
Nothing in the world is single,
All things by a law divine
In one another's being mingle—
Why not I with thine?
See the mountains kiss high heaven
And the waves clasp one another;
No sister-flower would be forgiven
If it disdain'd its brother;

And the sunlight clasps the earth,
And the moonbeams kiss the sea—
What are all these kissings worth,
If thou kiss not me?

P. B. SHELLEY.

ECHOES

How sweet the answer Echo makes
To Music at night,
When, roused by lute or horn, she wakes,
And far away o'er lawns and lakes
Goes answering light!

Yet Love hath echoes truer far And far more sweet Than e'er, beneath the moonlight's star, Of horn or lute or soft guitar The songs repeat.

10

'Tis when the sigh,—in youth sincere
And only then—
The sigh that 's breathed for one to hear,
Is by that one, that only Dear
Breathed back again.

A SERENADE

Ah! County Guy, the hour is nigh,
The sun has left the lea,
The orange flower perfumes the bower,
The breeze is on the sea.
The lark, his lay who trill'd all day,
Sits hush'd his partner nigh;
Breeze, bird, and flower confess the hour,
But where is County Guy?

The village maid steals through the shade Her shepherd's suit to hear; To beauty shy, by lattice high, Sings high-born Cavalier. The star of Love, all stars above, Now reigns o'er earth and sky, And high and low the influence know— But where is County Guy?	10

Gem of the crimson-colour'd Even, Companion of retiring day, Why at the closing gates of heaven, Belovéd Star, dost thou delay?
So fair thy pensile beauty burns When soft the tear of twilight flows; So due thy plighted love returns To chambers brighter than the rose;	5
To Peace, to Pleasure, and to Love So kind a star thou seem'st to be, Sure some enamour'd orb above Descends and burns to meet with thee.	10
Thine is the breathing, blushing hour, When all unheavenly passions fly, Chased by the soul-subduing power Of Love's delicious witchery.	15
O! sacred to the fall of day, Queen of propitious stars, appear, And early rise, and long delay, When Caroline herself is here!	20

Shine on her sweetly-scented road,
Thou star of evening's purple dome,
That lead'st the nightingale abroad,
And guid'st the pilgrim to his home.

Shine where my charmer's sweeter breath Embalms the soft exhaling dew, 30 Where dying winds a sigh bequeath To kiss the cheek of rosy hue.

Where, winnow'd by the gentle air. Her silken tresses darkly flow, And fall upon her brow so fair. Like shadows on the mountain snow.

TO THE NIGHT

Swiftly walk over the western wave, Spirit of Night! Out of the misty eastern cave, Where, all the long and lone daylight, Thou wovest dreams of joy and fear Which make thee terrible and dear,-Swift be thy flight!

Wrap thy form in a mantle grey Star-inwrought! Blind with thine hair the eyes of Day, 10 Kiss her until she be wearied out, Then wander o'er city, and sea, and land, Touching all with thine opiate wand— Come, long-sought!

When I arose and saw the dawn, I sigh'd for thee;	15
When light rode high, and the dew was gor And noon lay heavy on flower and tree, And the weary Day turn'd to his rest, Lingering like an unloved guest, I sigh'd for thee.	1e, 20
Thy brother Death came, and cried,     'Wouldst thou me?' Thy sweet child Sleep, the filmy-eyed,     Murmur'd like a noontide bec,     'Shall I nestle near thy side? Wouldst thou me?'—And I replied,     'No, not thee!'	25
Death will come when thou art dead, Soon, too soon— Sleep will come when thou art fled;	30

W. Wordsworth.

When we two parted In silence and tears,
Half broken-hearted,
To sever for years,
Pale grew thy cheek and cold,	5
Colaer thy kiss ;
Truly that hour foretold
Sorrow to this!
The dew of the morning
Sunk chill on my brow;	10
It felt like the warning
Of what I feel now.
Thy vows are all broken,
And light is thy fame:
I hear thy name spoken	15
And share in its shame.
They name thee before me,
A knell to mine ear;
A shudder comes o'er me—
Why wert thou so dear?	20
They know not I knew thee
Who knew thee too well:
Long, long shall I rue thee
Too deeply to tell.
In secret we met:	25
In silence I grieve
That thy heart could forget,
Thy spirit deceive.  If I should meet thee
If I should meet thee
After long years,	30
How should I greet thee?—
With silence and tears.

HAPPY INSENSIBILITY

In a drear-nighted December,
Too happy, happy tree,
Thy branches ne'er remember
Their green felicity:
The north cannot undo them
With a sleety whistle through them,
Nor frozen thawings glue them
From budding at the prime.

In a drear-nighted December,
Too happy, happy brook,
Thy bubblings ne'er remember
Apollo's summer look;
But with a sweet forgetting
They stay their crystal fretting,
Never, never petting
About the frozen time.

Ah, would 'twere so with many
A gentle girl and boy!
But were there ever any
Writhed not at passéd joy?
To know the change and feel it,
When there is none to heal it
Nor numbéd sense to steel it—
Was never said in rhyme.

J. Keats.

THE FLIGHT OF LOVE
When the lamp is shattered, The light in the dust lies dead— When the cloud is scattered, The rainbow's glory is shed. When the lute is broken, Sweet tones are remembered not; When the lips have spoken, Loved accents are soon forgot.	5

No song when the spirit is mute— No song but sad dirges, Like the wind through a ruined cell, Or the mournful surges That ring the dead seaman's knell.	15

	THE MAID OF NEIDPATH
	O lovers' eyes are sharp to see, And lovers' ears in hearing; And love, in life's extremity, Can lend an hour of cheering. Disease had been in Mary's bower And slow decay from mourning, Though now she sits on Neidpath's tower To watch her love's returning.	5
	All sunk and dim her eyes so bright, Her form decay'd by pining, Till through her wasted hand, at night, You saw the taper shining. By fits a sultry hectic hue Across her cheek was flying; By fits so ashy pale she grew Her maidens thought her dying.	10
	Yet keenest powers to see and hear Seem'd in her frame residing; Before the watch-dog prick'd his ear She heard her lover's riding; Ere scarce a distant form was kenn'd She knew and waved to greet him, And o'er the battlement did bend As on the wing to meet him.	20
	He came—he pass'd—an heedless gaze, As o'er some stranger glancing; Her welcome, spoke in faltering phrase, Lost in his courser's prancing—	25

The castle-arch, whose hollow tone Returns each whisper spoken, Could scarcely catch the feeble moan Which told her heart was broken.

Or g_zing on the new soft-fallen mask
Of snow upon the mountains and the moors—

No—yet still steadfast, still unchangeable, Pillow'd upon my fair love's ripening breast, To feel for ever its soft fall and swell, Awake for ever in a sweet unrest;

At the mid hour of night, when stars are weeping, I fly

To the lone vale we loved, when life shone warm in thine eye;

And I think oft, if spirits can steal from the regions of air

To revisit past scenes of delight, thou wilt come to me there

And tell me our love is remember'd, even in the sky!

Then I sing the wild song it once was rapture to hear, When our voices, commingling, breathed like one on the ear;

And as Echo far off through the vale my sad orison rolls.

I think, O my Love! 'tis thy voice, from the Kingdom of Souls

Faintly answering still the notes that once were so dear.

ELEGY ON THYRZA

And thou art dead, as young and fair As aught of mortal birth; And form so soft and charms so rare Too soon return'd to Earth!

Though Earth received them in her bed, And o'er the spot the crowd may tread In carelessness or mirth, There is an eye which could not brook A moment on that grave to look.	5
I will not ask where thou liest low, Nor gaze upon the spot; There flowers or weeds at will may grow, So I behold them not: It is enough for me to prove That what I loved and long must love Like common carth can rot; To me there needs no stone to tell 'Tis Nothing that I loved so well.	10 15
Yet did I love thee to the last, As fervently as thou, Who didst not change through all the past And canst not alter now.	20
The love where Death has set his seal Nor age can chill, nor rival steal, Nor falsehood disavow: And, what were worse, thou canst not see Or wrong, or change, or fault in me.	25
The better days of life were ours; The worst can be but mine: The sun that cheers, the storm that lours, Shall never more be thine. The silence of that dreamless sleep I envy now too much to weep; Nor need I to repine That all those charms have pass'd away	30
I might have watch'd through long decay.  The flower in ripen'd bloom unmatch'd Must fall the earliest prey; Though by no hand untimely snatch'd, The leaves must drop away.	40
And yet it were a greater grief

		BYRON

To watch it withering, leaf by leaf,
Than see it pluck'd to-day;
Since earthly eye but ill can bear
To trace the change to foul from fair.	45
I know not if I could have borne
To see thy beauties fade;
The night that follow'd such a morn
Had worn a deeper shade:
Thy day without a cloud hath past,	50
And thou wert levely to the last,	(,,,,
Extinguish'd, not decay'd;
As stars that shoot along the sky
Shine brightest as they fall from high.
As once I wept, if I could weep,	55
My tears might well be shed,
To think I was not near, to keep
One vigil o'er thy bed:
To gaze, how fondly! on thy face,	20
To fold thee in a faint embrace,	60
Uphold thy drooping head;
And show that love, however vain,
Nor thou nor I can feel again.
Yet how much less it were to gain,
Though thou hast left me free,	65
The loveliest things that still remain
Than thus remember thee!
The all of thine that cannot die
Through dark and dread Eternity
Returns again to me,	70
And more thy buried love endears
Than aught except its living years.

One hope is too like despair For prudence to smother, And Pity from thee more dear	5

GATHERING SONG OF DONALD THE BLACK
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu,
Pibroch of Donuil, Wake thy wild voice anew,
Summon Clan Conuil.
Come away, come away,	5
Hark to the summons! Come in your war-array,
Gentles and commons.
Come from deep glen, and
From mountain so rocky; The war-pipe and pennon	10
Are at Inverlocky.
Come every hill-plaid, and
True heart that wears one,	15
Come every steel blade, and Strong hand that bears one.	10
Leave untended the herd,
The flock without shelter;
Leave the corpse uninterr'd,	00
The bride at the altar:	20

Leave the deer, leave the steer.

Leave nets and barges: Come with your fighting gear, Broadswords and targes.
Come as the winds come, when	25
Forests are rended;
Come as the waves come, when
Navies are stranded:
Faster come, faster come,
Faster and faster,	30
Chief, vassal, page and groom,
Tenant and master.
Fast they come, fast they come; See how they gather!
Wide waves the eagle plume,	3.5
Blended with heather.
Cast your plaids, draw your blades,
Forward each man set!

A wet sheet and a flowing sea,
A wind that follows fast
And fills the white and rustling sail
And bends the gallant mast;
And bends the gallant mast, my boys,
While like the eagle free
Away the good ship flies, and leaves
Old England on the lee.

O for a soft and gentle wind!
I heard a fair one cry;
But give to me the snoring breeze
And white waves heaving high;

And white waves heaving high, my lads, The good ship tight and free— The world of waters is our home, And merry men are we.	15
There's tempest in yon hornéd moon, And lightning in yon cloud; But hark the music, mariners! The wind is piping loud; The wind is piping loud, my boys, The lightning flashes free— While the hollow oak our palace is, Our heritage the sea.	20
A. Cunningham.
Ye Mariners of England That guard our native seas, Whose flag has braved, a thousand years, The battle and the breeze, Your glorious standard launch again To match another foe: And sweep through the deep, While the stormy winds do blow; While the battle rages loud and long And the stormy winds do blow.	10
The spirits of your fathers Shall start from every wave— For the deck it was their field of fame, And Ocean was their grave. Where Blake and mighty Nelson fell Your manly hearts shall glow, As ye sweep through the deep, While the stormy winds do blow; While the battle rages loud and long And the stormy winds do blow.	16

Britannia needs no bulwarks, No towers along the steep;

She quells the floods below— As they roar on the shore, When the stormy winds do blow; When the battle rages loud and long,	25 30
The meteor flag of England Shall yet terrific burn; Till danger's troubled night depart And the star of peace return. Then, then, ye ocean warriors! Our song and feast shall flow To the fame of your name, When the storm has ceased to blow; When the flery fight is heard no more, And the storm has ceased to blow. T. CAMPBELL.	35 40

BATTLE OF THE BALTIC
Of Nelson and the North Sing the glorious day's renown, When to battle fierce came forth All the might of Denmark's crown, And her arms along the deep proudly shone; By each gun the lighted brand In a bold, determined hand, And the Prince of all the land Led them on.	5
Like leviathans afloat Lay their bulwarks on the brine; While the sign of battle flew On the lofty British line:	10
It was ten of April morn by the chime: As they drifted on their path	15

There was silence deep as death; And the boldest held his breath For a time.
But the might of England flush'd To anticipate the scene; And her van the fleeter rush'd O'er the deadly space between.	20
'Hearts of oak!' our captains cried, when each	gun
From its adamantine lips	_
Spread a death-shade round the ships, Like the hurricane eclipse	25
Of the sun.
Again! again! again!
And the havoc did not slack,
Till a feeble cheer the Dane	30
To our cheering sent us back;
Their shots along the deep slowly boom:
Then ceased—and all is wail,
As they strike the shatter'd sail;	35
Or in conflagration pale Light the gloom.	99
3
Out spoke the victor then
As he hail'd them o'er the wave, 'Ye are brothers! ye are men!
And we conquer but to save:	40
So peace instead of death let us bring:	10
But yield, proud foe, thy fleet
With the crews, at England's feet,
And make submission meet
To our King.'	45
Then Denmark blest our chief
That he gave her wounds repose;
And the sounds of joy and grief
From her people wildly rose,
As death withdrew his shades from the day:	50
While the sun look'd smiling bright
O'er a wide and woeful sight, Where the fires of funeral light
Died away.

Whilst the wine cup shines in light; And yet amidst that joy and uproar, Let us think of them that sleep Full many a fathom deep By thy wild and stormy steep, Elsinore!	60
Brave hearts! to Britain's pride Once so faithful and so true, On the deck of fame that died With the gallant good Riou:	65
Soft sigh the winds of heaven o'er their grave While the billow mournful rolls And the mermaid's song condoles, Singing glory to the souls Of the brave! T. CAMPBEL	70

ODE TO DUTY
Stern Daughter of the Voice of God! O Duty! if that name thou love Who art a light to guide, a rod To check the erring, and reprove; Thou, who art victory and law When empty terrors overawe, From vain temptations dost set free, And calm'st the weary strife of frail humanity	5 7 !
There are who ask not if thine eye Be on them; who, in love and truth Where no misgiving is, rely Upon the genial sense of youth: Glad hearts! without reproach or blot,	10
Who do thy work, and know it not: O! if through confidence misplaced They fail, thy saving arms, dread Power! are them cast.	15 ound

Serene will be our days and bright, And happy will our nature be, When love is an unerring light, And joy its own security. And they a blissful course may hold Ev'n now, who, not unwisely bold, Live in the spirit of this creed, Yet seek thy firm support, according to their ne	20 ed.
I, loving freedom, and untried,	25
No sport of every random gust, Yet being to myself a guide, Too blindly have reposed my trust:
And oft, when in my heart was heard Thy timely mandate, I deferr'd	30
The task, in smoother walks to stray;	00
But thee I now would serve more strictly, if I ma	ay.
Through no disturbance of my soul Or strong compunction in me wrought, I supplicate for thy control, But in the quietness of thought: Moreover this uncharter'd freedom tires; I feel the weight of chance desires: My hopes no more must change their name; I long for a repose that ever is the same.	35 40
Stern Lawgiver! yet thou dost wear The Godhead's most benignant grace; Nor know we anything so fair As is the smile upon thy face: Flowers laugh before thee on their beds, And fragrance in thy footing treads; Thou dost preserve the stars from wrong; And the most ancient heavens, through thee, a fresh and strong.	45 are
To humbler functions, awful Power! I call thee: I myself commend Unto thy guidance from this hour; O let my weakness have an end!	50

The confidence of reason give;
And in the light of Truth thy bondman let me live.

ON THE CASTLE OF CHILLON

Eternal Spirit of the chainless Mind!

Brightest in dungeons, Liberty, thou art—
For there thy habitation is the heart—
The heart which love of Thee alone can bind;

And when thy sons to fetters are consign'd, 5
To fetters, and the damp vault's dayless gloom,
Their country conquers with their martyrdom,
And Freedom's fame finds wings on every wind

Chillon! thy prison is a holy place

And thy sad floor an altar, for 'twas trod, 10 Until his very steps have left a trace

Worn, as if thy cold pavement were a sod, By Bonnivard! May none those marks efface! For they appeal from tyranny to God.

ENGLAND AND SWITZERLAND 1802

Two Voices are there, one is of the Sea, One of the Mountains, each a mighty voice: In both from age to age thou didst rejoice, They were thy chosen music, Liberty!

There came a tyrant, and with holy glee 5
Thou fought'st against him,—but hast vainly striven:

Thou from thy Alpine holds at length art driven, Where not a torrent murmurs heard by thee. Of one deep bliss thine ear hath been bereft; Then cleave, O cleave to that which still is left; For, high-soul'd Maid, what sorrow would it be

That Mountain floods should thunder as before, And Ocean bellow from his rocky shore, 13 And neither awful Voice be heard by Thee!

ON THE EXTINCTION OF THE VENETIAN REPUBLIC

Once did She hold the gorgeous East in fee, And was the safeguard of the West; the worth Of Venice did not fall below her birth, Venice, the eldest child of liberty.

She was a maiden city, bright and free;

No guile seduced, no force could violate;

And when she took unto herself a mate,

She must espouse the everlasting Sea.

And what if she had seen those glories fade,
Those titles vanish, and that strength decay,—
Yet shall some tribute of regret be paid

When her long life hath reach'd its final day: Men are we, and must grieve when even the shade Of that which once was great is pass'd away.

LONDON, MDCCCII

O Friend! I know not which way I must look For comfort, being, as I am, opprest To think that now our life is only drest For show; mean handiwork of craftsman, cook,

Or groom \—We must run glittering like a brook
In the open sunshine, or we are unblest;
The wealthiest man among us is the best:
No grandeur now in Nature or in book

Delights us. Rapine, avarice, expense,
This is idolatry; and these we adore:
Plain living and high thinking are no more:

The homely beauty of the good old cause
Is gone; our peace, our fearful innocence,
And pure religion breathing household laws.
W. WORDSWORTH.

218 THE SAME

Milton! thou shouldst be living at this hour: England hath need of thee: she is a fen Of stagnant waters: altar, sword, and pen, Fireside, the heroic wealth of hall and bower,

Have forfeited their ancient English dower
Of inward happiness. We are selfish men
O! raise us up, return to us again;
And give us manners, virtue, freedom, power.

Thy soul was like a Star, and dwelt apart:
Thou hadst a voice whose sound was like the sca,
Pure as the naked heavens, majestic, free;

So didst thou travel on life's common way In cheerful godliness; and yet thy heart The lowliest duties on herself did lay.

W. Wordsworth.

When I have borne in memory what has tamed Great nations; how ennobling thoughts depart When men change swords for ledgers, and desert The student's bower for gold —some fears unnamed I had, my Country !—am I to be blamed?

Now, when I think of thee, and what thou art,
Verily, in the bottom of my heart
Of those unfilial fears I am ashamed.

For dearly must we prize thee; we who find
In thee a bulwark for the cause of men;
And I by my affection was beguiled:

What wonder if a Poet now and then, Among the many movements of his mind, Felt for thee as a lover or a child!

HOHENLINDEN

On Linden, when the sun was low,
All bloodless lay the untrodden snow;
And dark as winter was the flow
Of Iser, rolling rapidly.

But Linden saw another sight,
When the drum beat at dead of night,
Commanding fires of death to light
The darkness of her scenery.

By torch and trumpet fast array'd Each horseman drew his battle blade And furious every charger neigh'd To join the dreadful revelry.

10

Then shook the hills with thunder riven, Then rush'd the steed, to battle driven, And louder than the bolts of Heaven Far flash'd the red artillery.

15

But redder yet that light shall glow On Linden's hills of stained snow; And bloodier yet the torrent flow Of Iser, rolling rapidly.

20

'Tis morn; but scarce yon level sun Can pierce the war-clouds, rolling dun, Where furious Frank and fiery Hun Shout in their sulphurous canopy.

The combat deepens. On, ye brave Who rush to glory, or the grave! Wave, Munich, all thy banners wave, And charge with all thy chivalry!

25

Few, few shall part, where many meet! The snow shall be their winding-sheet, And every turf beneath their feet Shall be a soldier's sepulchre.

AFTER BLENHEIM

It was a summer evening,
Old Kaspar's work was done,
And he before his cottage door
Was sitting in the sun;
And by him sported on the green
His little grandchild Wilhelmine.

15

She saw her brother Peterkin
Roll something large and round
Which he beside the rivulet
In playing there had found;
He came to ask what he had found
That was so large and smooth and round.

Old Kaspar took it from the boy
Who stood expectant by;
And then the old man shook his head,
And with a natural sigh

' 'Tis some poor fellow's skull,' said he,

'Who fell in the great victory.

SOUTHEY

'I find them in the garden, For there 's many here about; And often when I go to plough The ploughshare turns them out. For many thousand men,' said he, 'Were slain in that great victory.'	20
'Now tell us what 'twas all about,' Young Peterkin he cries; And little Wilhelmine looks up With wonder-waiting eyes; 'Now tell us all about the war, And what they fought each other for.'	25 30
'It was the English,' Kaspar cried, 'Who put the French to rout; But what they fought each other for I could not well make out. But everybody said,' quoth he, 'That 'twas a famous victory.	35
'My father lived at Blenheim then, Yon little stream hard by; They burnt his dwelling to the ground, And he was forced to fly: So with his wife and child he fled, Nor had he where to rest his head.	40
'With fire and sword the country round Was wasted far and wide, And many a childing mother then And new-born baby died: But things like that, you know, must be At every famous victory.	45
'They say it was a shocking sight After the field was won; For many thousand bodies here Lay rotting in the sun: But things like that, you know, must be After a famous victory.	50

Great praise the Duke of Marlbro' won And our good Prince Eugene; 56
Why, 'twas a very wicked thing!' Said little Wilhelmine;
Nay..nay..my little girl,' quoth he, It was a famous victory. 60

And everybody praised the Duke Who this great fight did win.'But what good came of it at last?'

But what good came of it at last?

Quoth little Peterkin:—

'Why, that I cannot tell,' said he, 'But 'twas a famous victory.'

PRO PATRIA MORI

When he who adores thee has left but the name
Of his fault and his sorrows behind,
O! say wilt thou weep, when they darken the fame
Of a life that for thee was resign'd?

Yes, weep, and however my foes may condemn,
Thy tears shall efface their decree;
For, Heaven can witness, though guilty to them,
I have been but too faithful to thee.

With thee were the dreams of my earliest love,
Every thought of my reason was thine:

In my last humble prayer to the Spirit above
Thy name shall be mingled with mine!

O! blest are the lovers and friends who shall live
The days of thy glory to see;
But the next dearest blessing that Heaven can give
Is the pride of thus dying for thee.

T. MOORE.

THE BURIAL OF SIR JOHN MOORE AT COBUNNA

Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note, As his corse to the rampart we hurried; Not a soldier discharged his farewell shot O'er the grave where our Hero we buried.

We buried him darkly at dead of night,
The sods with our bayonets turning;
By the struggling moonbeam's misty light
And the lantern dimly burning.

10

No useless coffin enclosed his breast,
Not in sheet or in shroud we wound him;
But he lay like a Warrior taking his rest
With his martial cloak around him.

Few and short were the prayers we said,
And we spoke not a word of sorrow;
But we steadfastly gaz'd on the face that was dead,
And we bitterly thought of the morrow.

We thought, as we hollow'd his narrow bed
And smooth'd down his lonely pillow,
That the Foe and the Stranger would trend o'er his head,
And we far away on the hillow!

And we far away on the billow!

Lightly they'll talk of the Spirit that's gone
And o'er his cold ashes upbraid him,—
But little he'll reck, if they let him sleep on
In the grave where a Briton has laid him.

But half of our heavy task was done
When the clock struck the hour for retiring:
And we heard the distant and random gun
That the foe was sullenly firing.

Slowly and sadly we laid him down,
From the field of his fame fresh and gory; 30
We carved not a line, and we raised not a stone—
But we left him alone with his glory.

C. Wolfe.

SIMON LEE THE OLD HUNTSMAN

In the sweet shire of Cardigan,
Not far from pleasant Ivor Hall,
An old man dwells, a little man,—
'Tis said he once was tall.
Full five-and-thirty years he lived
A running huntsman merry;
And still the centre of his cheek
Is red as a ripe cherry.

No man like him the horn could sound,
And hill and valley rang with glee
When Echo bandied round and round
The halloo of Simon Lee.
In those proud days he little cared
For husbandry or tillage;
To blither tasks did Simon rouse
The sleepers of the village.

He all the country could outrun,
Could leave both man and horse behind;
And often, ere the chase was done,
He reeled and was stone-blind.
And still there's something in the world
At which his heart rejoices;
For when the chiming hounds are out,
He dearly loves their voices!

But O the heavy change !—bereft 25 Of health, strength, friends, and kindred, see! Old Simon to the world is left In liveried poverty:

His master's dead, and no one now Dwells in the Hall of Ivor; Men, dogs, and horses, all are dead; He is the sole survivor.	30
And he is lean and he is sick; His body, dwindled and awry, Rests upon ankles swoln and thick; His legs are thin and dry. One prop he has, and only one, His wife, an aged woman, Lives with him, near the waterfall, Upon the village common.	35 40
Beside their moss-grown hut of elay, Not twenty paces from the door, A scrap of land they have, but they Are poorest of the poor. This scrap of land he from the heath Enclosed when he was stronger; But what to them avails the land Which he can till no longer?	45
Oft, working by her husband's side, Ruth does what Simon cannot do; For she, with scanty cause for pride, Is stouter of the two.	50
And, though you with your utmost skill From labour could not wean them, 'Tis little, very little, all That they can do between them.	55
Few months of life has he in store As he to you will tell, For still, the more he works, the more Do his weak ankles swell. My gentle reader, I perceive How patiently you've waited, And now I fear that you expect Some tale will be related.	60

O reader! had you in your mind Such stores as silent thought can bring, O gentle reader! you would find	65
A tale in every thing.  What more I have to say is short, And you must kindly take it:  It is no tale; but, should you think, Perhaps a tale you'll make it.	70
One summer-day I chanced to see This old man doing all he could To unearth the root of an old tree, A stump of rotten wood. The mattock totter'd in his hand; So vain was his endeavour	75
That at the root of the old tree He might have work'd for ever.	80
'You're overtask'd, good Simon Lee, Give me your tool,' to him I said; And at the word right gladly he Received my proffer'd aid. I struck, and with a single blow The tangled root I sever'd, At which the poor old man so long And vainly had endeavour'd.	85
The tears into his eyes were brought, And thanks and praises seem'd to run So fast out of his heart, I thought They never would have done. —I've heard of hearts unkind, kind deeds With coldness still returning;	90
Alas! the gratitude of men Hath oftener left me mourning.	95

THE OLD FAMILIAR FACES

I have had playmates, I have had companions In my days of childhood, in my joyful school-days; All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I have been laughing, I have been carousing, Drinking late, sitting late, with my bosom cronics; All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I loved a love once, fairest among women: Closed are her doors on me, I must not see her— All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

I have a friend, a kinder friend has no man
Like an ingrate, I left my friend abruptly;
Left him, to muse on the old familiar faces.

Ghost-like I paced round the haunts of my child-hood:

Earth seem'd a desert I was bound to traverse, Seeking to find the old familiar faces. 15

Friend of my bosom, thou more than a brother, Why wert not thou born in my father's dwelling? So might we talk of the old familiar faces,

How some they have died, and some they have left me,

And some are taken from me; all are departed; All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.

THE JOURNEY ONWARDS

As slow our ship her foamy track
Against the wind was cleaving,
Her trembling pennant still look'd back
To that dear isle 'twas leaving.
So loth we part from all we love,
From all the links that bind us;
So turn our hearts, as on we rove,
To those we've left behind us!

We talk with joyous seeming— With smiles that might as well be tears, So faint, so sad their beaming; While memory brings us back again	10
Each early tie that twined us, O, sweet's the cup that circles then To those we've left behind us!	15
And when in other climes we meet Some isle or vale enchanting, Where all looks flowery, wild, and sweet, And nought but love is wanting; We think how great had been our bliss If Heaven had but assign'd us To live and die in scenes like this, With some we've left behind us!	20
As travellers oft look back at eve When eastward darkly going, To gaze upon that light they leave Still faint behind them glowing,—	25
So, when the close of pleasure's day To gloom hath near consign'd us, We turn to catch one fading ray Of joy that's left behind us. T. Moore.	30

YOUTH AND AGE

There's not a joy the world can give like that it takes away,

When the glow of early thought declines in feeling's dull decay;

'Tis not on youth's smooth cheek the blush alone which fades so fast,

But the tender bloom of heart is gone, ere youth itself be past.

Then the few whose spirits float above the wreck of happiness 5

Are driven o'er the shoals of guilt or ocean of excess:

The magnet of their course is gone, or only points in vain

The shore to which their shiver'd sail shall never stretch again.

Then the mortal coldness of the soul like death itself comes down;

It cannot feel for others' woes, it dare not dream its own;

That heavy chill has frozen o'er the fountain of our tears,

And though the eye may sparkle still, 'tis where the ice appears.

Though wit may flash from fluent lips, and mirth distract the breast,

Through midnight hours that yield no more their former hope of rest;

'Tis but as ivy-leaves around the ruin'd turret wreathe,

All green and wildly fresh without, but worn and grey beneath.

O could I feel as I have felt, or be what I have been, Or weep as I could once have wept o'er many a vanish'd scene,—

As springs in deserts found seem sweet, all brackish though they be,

So midst the wither'd waste of life, those tears would flow to me!

LORD BYRON.

A LESSON

There is a flower, the Lesser Celandine,
That shrinks like many more from cold and rain,
And, the first moment that the sun may shine,
Bright as the sun himself, 'tis out again!

10

When hailstones have been falling, swarm on swarm,

Or blasts the green field and the trees distrest, Oft have I seen it muffled up from harm In close self-shelter, like a thing at rest.

But lately, one rough day, this flower I past, And recognized it, though an alter'd form, Now standing forth an offering to the blast, And buffeted at will by rain and storm.

I stopp'd and said, with inly-mutter'd voice,
'It doth not love the shower, nor seek the cold;
This neither is its courage nor its choice,
But its necessity in being old.

'The sunshine may not cheer it, nor the dew; It cannot help itself in its decay; Stiff in its members, wither'd, changed of hue,' And, in my spleen, I smiled that it was grey.

To be a prodigal's favourite—then, worse truth,
A miser's pensioner—behold our lot! 22
O Man! that from thy fair and shining youth
Age might but take the things Youth needed not!
W. WORDSWORTH.

PAST AND PRESENT

I remember, I remember
The house where I was born,
The little window where the sun
Came peeping in at morn;
He never came a wink too soon
Nor brought too long a day;
But now, I often wish the night

Nor brought too long a day; But now, I often wish the night Had borne my breath away.

I remember, I remember
The roses, red and white,
The violets, and the lily-cups—
Those flowers made of light!

The lilacs where the robin built, And where my brother set The laburnum on his birth-day,— The tree is living yet!	15
I remember, I remember Where I was used to swing, And thought the air must rush as fresh To swallows on the wing; My spirit flew in feathers then That is so heavy now, And summer pools could hardly cool The fever on my brow.	20
I remember, I remember The fir trees dark and high; I used to think their slender tops Were close against the sky:	25
It was a childish ignorance, But now 'tis little joy To know I'm farther off from Heaven Than when I was a boy. T. Hoon	30

THE LIGHT OF OTHER DAYS
Oft in the stilly night,  Ere slumber's chain has bound me, Fond Memory brings the light Of other days around me:
The smiles, the tears	5
Of boyhood's years,
The words of love then spoken; The eyes that shone,
Now dimm'd and gone,
The cheerful hearts now broken!	10
Thus in the stilly night,
Ere slumber's chain has bound me,
Sad Memory brings the light Of other days around me.

MOORE	225
When I remember all The friends so link'd together I've seen around me fall Like leaves in wintry weather I feel like one	15

INVOCATION
Rarely, rarely, comest thou, Spirit of Delight! Wherefore hast thou left me now Many a day and night? Many a weary night and day 'Tis since thou art fled away.	5
How shall ever one like me Win thee back again? With the joyous and the free Thou wilt scoff at pain. Spirit false! thou hast forgot All but those who need thee not.	10
As a lizard with the shade Of a trembling leaf, Thou with sorrow art dismay'd; Even the sighs of grief Reproach thee, that thou art not near And reproach thou wilt not hear.	15

Let me set my mournful ditty To a merry measure; Thou wilt never come for pity, Thou wilt come for pleasure; Pity then will cut away Those cruel wings, and thou wilt stay.	20
I love all that thou lovest, Spirit of Delight! The fresh Earth in new leaves drest And the starry night; Autumn evening, and the morn When the golden mists are born.	25 30
I love snow and all the forms Of the radiant frost; I love waves, and winds, and storms, Everything almost Which is Nature's, and may be Untainted by man's misery.	35
I love tranquil solitude, And such society As is quiet, wise, and good; Between thee and me What diff'rence? but thou dost possess The things I seek, not love them less.	40
I love Love—though he has wings, And like light can flee, But above all other things, Spirit, I love thee— Thou art love and life! O come! Make once more my heart thy home! P. B. Shelli	45 E Y.

STANZAS WRITTEN IN DEJECTION NEAR NAPLES

The sun is warm, the sky is clear,
The waves are dancing fast and bright,
Blue isles and snowy mountains wear
The purple noon's transparent might:
The breath of the moist earth is light
Around its unexpanded buds;
Like many a voice of one delight—
The winds, the birds, the ocean-floods—
The City's voice itself is soft like Solitude's.

I see the Deep's untrampled floor
With green and purple seawceds strown;
I see the waves upon the shore,
Like light dissolved in star-showers, thrown:
I sit upon the sands alone;
The lightning of the noontide ocean
Is flashing round me, and a tone
Arises from its measured motion—
How sweet! did any heart now share in my emotion.

Alas! I have nor hope nor health,
Nor peace within nor calm around,
Nor that content, surpassing wealth,
The sage in meditation found,
And walked with inward glory crowned—
Nor fame, nor power, nor love, nor leisure;
Others I see whom these surround—
25
Smiling they live, and call life pleasure;
To me that cup has been dealt in another measure.

Yet now despair itself is mild

Even as the winds and waters are;
I could lie down like a tired child,

And weep away the life of care

Which I have borne, and yet must bear
Till death like sleep might steal on me,
And I might feel in the warm air
My cheek grow cold, and hear the sea
35
Breathe o'er my dying brain its last monotony.

P. B. SHELLEY.

THE SCHOLAR

My days among the Dead are past;
Around me I behold,
Where'er these casual eyes are cast,
The mighty minds of old:
My never-failing friends are they,
With whom I converse day by day.

With them I take delight in weal
And seek relief in woe;
And while I understand and feel
How much to them I owe,
My cheeks have often been bedew'd
With tears of thoughtful gratitude.

My thoughts are with the Dead; with them I live in long-past years,
Their virtues love, their faults condemn, 15
Partake their hopes and fears,
And from their lessons seek and find
Instruction with an humble mind.

My hopes are with the Dead; anonMy place with them will be, 20
And I with them shall travel on Through all Futurity;
Yet leaving here a name, I trust,
That will not perish in the dust.

THE MERMAID TAVERN

Souls of Poets dead and gone, What Elysium have ye known, Happy field or mossy cavern, Choicer than the Mermaid Tayern? Have ye tippled drink more fine Than mine host's Canary wine? Or are fruits of Paradise Sweeter than those dainty pies Of venison? O generous food! Drest as though bold Robin Hood Would, with his Maid Marian, Sup and bowse from horn and can.

I have heard that on a day Mine host's signboard flew away Nobody knew whither, till 15 An astrologer's old quill To a sheepskin gave the story— Said he saw you in your glory Underneath a new-old Sign Sipping beverage divine, 20 And pledging with contented smack The Mermaid in the Zodiac.

Souls of Poets dead and gone. What Elysium have ye known— Happy field or mossy cavern-25 Choicer than the Mermaid Tavern?

THE BRIDGE OF SIGHS
One more Unfortunate Weary of breath, Rashly importunate, Gone to her death!
Take her up tenderly, Lift her with care; Fashion'd so slenderly, Young, and so fair!	5
Look at her garments Clinging like cerements, Whilst the wave constantly Drips from her clothing; Take her up instantly, Loving, not loathing.	10
Touch her not scornfully; Think of her mournfully, Gently and humanly; Not of the stains of her— All that remains of her	15
Now is pure womanly.	20

Make no deep scrutiny Into her mutiny Rash and undutiful: Past all dishonour, Death has left on her Only the beautiful.	25
Still, for all slips of hers, One of Eve's family— Wipe those poor lips of hers Oozing so clammily.	30
Loop up her tresses Escaped from the comb, Her fair auburn tresses; Whilst wonderment guesses Where was her home?	35
Who was her father? Who was her mother? Had she a sister? Had she a brother? Or was there a dearer one Still, and a nearer one Yet, than all other?	40
Alas! for the rarity Of Christian charity Under the sun! O! it was pitiful! Near a whole city full, Home she had none.	4 5

Where the lamps quiver
So far in the river,
With many a light
From window and casement,
From garret to basement,	60
She stood, with amazement,
Houseless by night.
The bleak wind of March
Made her tremble and shiver;
But not the dark arch,	65
Or the black flowing river:
Mad from life's history,
Glad to death's mystery
Swift to be hurl'd—
Any where, any where	70
Out of the world!
In she plunged boldly,
No matter how coldly
The rough river ran,
Over the brink of it,—	75
Picture it, think of it,
Dissolute Man!
Lave in it, drink of it
Then, if you can!
Take her up tenderly,	80
Lift her with care;
Fashion'd so slenderly,
Young, and so fair!
Ere her limbs frigidly
Stiffen too rigidly,	85
Decently, kindly,
Smooth and compose them;
And her eyes, close them,
Staring so blindly!
Dreadfully staring	90
Thro' muddy impurity,
As when with the daring
Last look of despairing
Fix'd on futurity

ELEGY

O snatch'd away in beauty's bloom!
On thee shall press no ponderous tomb;
But on thy turf shall roses rear
Their leaves, the earliest of the year,
And the wild cypress wave in tender gloom:

And oft by yon blue gushing stream
Shall Sorrow lean her drooping head,
And feed deep thought with many a dream,
And lingering pause and lightly tread;
9
Fond wretch! as if her step disturb'd the dead!

Away! we know that tears are vain,
That Death nor heeds nor hears distress:
Will this unteach us to complain?
Or make one mourner weep the less?
And thou, who tell'st me to forget,
Thy looks are wan, thine eyes are wet.

LORD BYRON.

HESTER
When maidens such as Hester die, Their place ye may not well supply, Though ye among a thousand try With vain endeavour. A month or more hath she been dead, Yet cannot I by force be led To think upon the wormy bed And her together.	5
A springy motion in her gait, A rising step, did indicate Of pride and joy no common rate That flush'd her spirit:	10
I know not by what name beside I shall it call: if 'twas not pride, It was a joy to that allied She did inherit.	15
Her parents held the Quaker rule, Which doth the human feeling cool; But she was train'd in Nature's school, Nature had blest her. A waking eye, a prying mind, A heart that stirs, is hard to bind; A hawk's keen sight ye cannot blind, Ye could not Hester.	20
My sprightly neighbour! gone before To that unknown and silent shore, Shall we not meet, as heretofore	25
Some summer morning— When from thy cheerful eyes a ray Hath struck a bliss upon the day, A bliss that would not go away, A sweet fore-warning? C. LAMB.	30

The hand of the reaper Takes the ears that are hoary, 10 But the voice of the weeper Wails manhood in glory. The autumn winds rushing Waft the leaves that are serest, But our flower was in flushing 1.5 When blighting was nearest.

Fleet foot on the correi. Sage counsel in cumber, Red hand in the foray. How sound is thy slumber! 20 Like the dew on the mountain, Like the foam on the river. Like the bubble on the fountain. Thou art gone, and for ever! SIR W. SCOTT.

So	listen, listen, ladics gay! No haughty feat of arms I tell; ft is the note, and sad the lay That mourns the lovely Rosabelle.

40

It glared on Roslin's castled rock,
It ruddied all the copse-wood glen;	30
'Twas seen from Dryden's groves of oak,
And seen from cavern'd Hawthornden.

Seem'd all on fire that chapel proud, Where Roslin's chiefs uncoffin'd lie, Each Baron, for a sable shroud, Sheath'd in his iron panoply.

Sheath'd in his iron panoply.

Seem'd all on fire within, around,

Deep sacristy and altar's pale; Shone every pillar foliage-bound, And glimmer'd all the dead men's mail.

Blazed battlement and pinnet high,
Blazed every rose-carved buttress fair—
So still they blaze, when fate is nigh
The lordly line of high St. Clair.

There are twenty of Roslin's barons bold

Lie buried within that proud chapelle;
Each one the holy vault doth hold,
But the sea holds lovely Rosabelle!

And each St. Clair was buried there
With candle, with book, and with knell; 50
But the sea-caves rung, and the wild winds sung
The dirge of lovely Rosabelle.
Sir W. Scott.

ON AN INFANT DYING AS SOON AS BORN

I saw where in the shroud did lurk
A curious frame of Nature's work;
A flow'ret crushéd in the bud,
A nameless piece of Babyhood,
Was in her cradle-coffin lying;
Extinct, with scarce the sense of dying:
So soon to exchange the imprisoning womb
For darker closets of the tomb!

238 LAMB

She did but ope an eye, and put
A clear beam forth, then straight up shut	10
For the long dark: ne'er more to see
Through glasses of mortality.
Riddle of destiny, who can show
What thy short visit meant, or know
What thy errand here below?	15
Shall we say that Nature blind
Check'd her hand, and changed her mind,
Just when she had exactly wrought
A finish'd pattern without fault?
Could she flag, or could she tire,	20
Or lack'd she the Promethean fire
(With her nine moons' long workings sicken's	d)
That should thy little limbs have quicken'd?	,
Limbs so firm, they seem'd to assure
Life of health, and days mature;	25
Woman's self in miniature!
Limbs so fair, they might supply
(Themselves now but cold imagery)
The sculptor to make Beauty by.
Or did the stern-eyed Fate descry	30
That babe or mother, one must die;
So in mercy left the stock
And cut the branch; to save the shock
Of young years widow'd, and the pain
When Single State comes back again	35
To the lone man who, 'reft of wife,
Thenceforward drags a maiméd life?
The economy of Heaven is dark,
And wisest clerks have miss'd the mark,
Why human buds, like this, should fall	40
More brief than fly ephemeral
That has his day; while shrivell'd crones
Stiffen with age to stocks and stones;
And crabbéd use the conscience sears
In sinners of an hundred years.	45
-Mother's prattle, mother's kiss,
Baby fond, thou ne'er wilt miss:
Rites, which custom does impose,

Silver bells, and baby clothes; 50 Coral redder than those lips Which pale death did late eclipse; Music framed for infants' glee, Whistle never tuned for thee; Though thou want'st not, thou shalt have them, Loving hearts were they which gave them. 55 Let not one be missing; nurse, See them laid upon the hearse Of infant slain by doom perverse. Why should kings and nobles have Pictured trophies to their grave, 60 And we, churls, to thee deny Thy pretty toys with thee to lie— A more harmless vanity? C. LAMB.

THE AFFLICTION OF MARGARET

Where art thou, my beloved Son,
Where art thou, worse to me than dead?
O find me, prosperous or undone!
Or, if the grave be now thy bed,
Why am I ignorant of the same
That I may rest; and neither blame
Nor sorrow may attend thy name?

Seven years, alas! to have received
No tidings of an only child;
To have despaired, have hoped, believed,
And been for evermore beguiled,--Sometimes with thoughts of very bliss!
I catch at them, and then I miss;
Was ever darkness like to this?

15

He was among the prime in worth,
An object beauteous to behold;
Well born, well bred; I sent him forth
Ingenuous, innocent, and bold:

If things ensued that wanted grace, As hath been said, they were not base; And never blush was on my face.	20
Ah! little doth the young one dream, When full of play and childish cares, What power is in his wildest scream Heard by his mother unawares! He knows it not, he cannot guess: Years to a mother bring distress; But do not make her love the less.	25
Neglect me! no, I suffered long From that ill thought; and being blind Said, 'Pride shall help me in my wrong: Kind mother have I been, as kind As ever breathed:' and that is true; I've wet my path with tears like dew, Weeping for him when no one knew.	29 35
My Son, if thou be humbled, poor, Hopeless of honour and of gain, O! do not dread thy mother's door; Think not of me with grief and pain: I now can see with better eyes; And worldly grandeur I despise, And fortune with her gifts and lies.	40
Alas! the fowls of heaven have wings, And blasts of heaven will aid their flight They mount—how short a voyage brings The wanderers back to their delight! Chains tie us down by land and sea; And wishes, vain as mine, may be All that is left to comfort thee.	; 45
Perhaps some dungeon hears thee groan, Maim'd, mangled by inhuman men; Or thou upon a desert thrown Inheritest the lion's den; Or hast been summon'd to the deep,	50
Thou, thou, and all thy mates, to keep An incommunicable sleep.	55

I look for ghosts; but none will force
Their way to me: 'tis falsely said
That there was ever intercourse
Between the living and the dead;	60
For surely then I should have sight
Of him I wait for day and night
With love and longings infinite.
My apprehensions come in crowds;
I dread the rustling of the grass;	65
The very shadows of the clouds
Have power to shake me as they pass:
I question things, and do not find
One that will answer to my mind;
And all the world appears unkind.	70
Beyond participation lie
My troubles, and beyond relief:
If any chance to heave a sigh,
They pity me, and not my grief.
Then come to me, my Son, or send	75
Some tidings, that my woes may end;
I have no other earthly friend.

HUNTING SONG

Waken, lords and ladies gay!
On the mountain dawns the day;
All the jolly chase is here
With hawk and horse and hunting spear;
Hounds are in their couples yelling,
Hawks are whistling, horns are knelling,
Merrily merrily mingle they,
'Waken, lords and ladies gay!'

Waken, lords and ladies gay!
The mist has left the mountain grey,
Springlets in the dawn are steaming,
Diamonds on the brake are gleaming;

And foresters have busy been To track the buck in thicket green; Now we come to chant our lay, 'Waken, lords and ladies gay!'

Waken, lords and ladies gay!
To the greenwood haste away;
We can show you where he lies,
Fleet of foot and tall of size;
We can show the marks he made

15

When 'gainst the oak his antlers fray'd; You shall see him brought to bay; 'Waken, lords and ladies gay!'

Louder, louder chant the lay,
Waken, lords and ladics gay!
Tell them youth and mirth and glee
Run a course as well as we;
Time, stern huntsman! who can balk,
Stanch as hound and fleet as hawk;
Think of this, and rise with day,
Gentle lords and ladies gay!
SIR W. SCOTT.

TO THE SKYLARK

Ethercal minstrel! pilgrim of the sky!

Dost thou despise the earth where cares abound?

Or, while the wings aspire, are heart and eye

Both with thy nest upon the dewy ground?

Thy nest which thou canst drop into at will,

Those quivering wings composed, that music still!

To the last point of vision, and beyond, Mount, daring warbler!—that love-prompted strain

('Twixt thee and thine a never-failing bond),
Thrills not the less the bosom of the plain: 10
Yet might'st thou seem, proud privilege! to sing
All independent of the leafy spring.

Leave to the nightingale her shady wood;
A privacy of glorious light is thine,
Whence thou dost pour upon the world a flood
Of harmony, with instinct more divine;
Type of the wise, who soar, but never roam—
True to the kindred points of Heaven and Home!
W. WORDSWORTH.

X TO A SKYLARK

Hail to thee, blithe Spirit!
Bird thou never wert,
That from heaven, or near it,
Pourest thy full heart
In profuse strains of unpremeditated art.

Higher still and higher
From the earth thou springest
Like a cloud of fire;
The blue deep thou wingest,
9
And singing still dost soar, and soaring ever singest.

In the golden lightning
Of the sunken sun,
O'er which clouds are brightening,
Thou dost float and run,
Like an unbodied joy whose race is just begun.

The pale purple even
Melts around thy flight;
Like a star of heaven
In the broad daylight
Thou art unseen, but yet I hear thy shrill delight:

Keen as are the arrows
Of that silver sphere,
Whose intense lamp narrows
In the white dawn clear
Until we hardly see, we feel that it is there.

25

With thy voice is loud,
As, when night is bare,
From one lonely cloud
The moon rains out her beams, and heaven is over-

What thou art we know not; What is most like thee?

30

All the earth and air

flow'd.

From rainbow clouds there flow not
Drops so bright to see 31
As from thy presence showers a rain of melody.
Like a poet hidden
In the light of thought,
Singing hymns unbidden,
Till the world is wrought 39
To sympathy with hopes and fears it heeded not:
Like a high-born maiden
In a palace tower,
Soothing her love-laden
Soul in secret hour 44
With music sweet as love, which overflows her bower:
Like a glow-worm golden
In a dell of dew,
Scattering unbeholden
Its aerial hue
Among the flowers and grass, which screen it from the view: 50
Like a rose embower'd
In its own green leaves,
By warm winds deflower'd,
Till the scent it gives Makes faint with too much sweet these heavywingéd thieves. 55
3
Sound of vernal showers
On the twinkling grass,
Rain-awaken'd flowers, All that ever was 59
Joyous, and clear, and fresh, thy music doth surpass.

Touch us enrite or hird

What sweet thoughts are thine: I have never heard Praise of love or wine That panted forth a flood of rapture so divine.	1
Chorus hymencal, Or triumphal chant, Match'd with thine would be all But an empty vaunt—6 A thing wherein we feel there is some hidden want	_
What objects are the fountains Of thy happy strain? What fields, or waves, or mountains? What shapes of sky or plain? What love of thine own kind? what ignorance of pain?
With thy clear keen joyance Languor cannot be: Shadow of annoyance Never came near thee: Thou lovest; but ne'er knew love's sad satisty.	79
Waking or asleep Thou of death must deem Things more true and deep Than we mortals dream, 8 Or how could thy notes flow in such a crystal stream	34
We look before and after, And pine for what is not: Our sincerest laughter With some pain is fraught; Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddes thought.	s t
Yet if we could scorn

Hate, and pride, and fear;
If we were things born
Not to shed a tear, 94
I know not how thy joy we ever should come near.

Better than all measures
Of delightful sound,
Better than all treasures
That in books are found,

99
Thy skill to poet were, thou scorner of the ground 1

Teach me half the gladness
That thy brain must know
Such harmonious madness
From my lips would flow
orld should listen then as I am listen

The world should listen then, as I am listening now!

THE GREEN LINNET

Beneath these fruit-tree boughs that shed Their snow-white blossoms on my head, With brightest sunshine round me spread Of spring's unclouded weather, In this sequestered nook how sweet To sit upon my orchard-seat! And birds and flowers once more to greet, My last year's friends together.

One have I marked, the happiest guest
In all this covert of the blest:
Hail to Thee, far above the rest
In joy of voice and pinion!
Thou, Linnet! in thy green array,
Presiding Spirit here to-day,
Dost lead the revels of the May,
And this is thy dominion.

While birds, and butterflies, and flowers,
Make all one band of paramours,
Thou, ranging up and down the bowers,
Art sole in thy employment;
A Life, a Presence like the Air,
Scattering thy gladness without care,
Too blest with any one to pair,
Thyself thy own enjoyment.

WORDSWORTH	247

TO THE CUCKOO
O blithe new-comer! I have heard, I hear thee and rejoice: O Cuckoo! shall I call thee Bird, Or but a wandering Voice?
While I am lying on the grass Thy twofold shout I hear; From hill to hill it seems to pass, At once far off and near.	5
Though babbling only to the vale Of sunshine and of flowers, Thou bringest unto me a tale Of visionary hours.	10
Thrice welcome, darling of the Spring! Even yet thou art to me No bird, but an invisible thing, A voice, a mystery;	15

The same whom in my school-boy days	•
I listen'd to; that Cry Which made me look a thousand ways
In bush, and tree, and sky.	20
M. a. 1. 41 3:3 T aft

To seek thee did I often rove Through woods and on the green; And thou wert still a hope, a love; Still longed for, never seen.

And I can listen to thee yet;
Can lie upon the plain
And listen, till I do beget
That golden time again.

O blesséd Bird! the earth we pace
Again appears to be 30
An unsubstantial, fairy place,
That is fit home for Thee!

ODE TO A NIGHTINGALE

My heart aches, and a drowsy numbness pains
My sense, as though of hemlock I had drunk,
Or emptied some dull opiate to the drains
One minute past, and Lethe-wards had sunk:
'Tis not through envy of thy happy lot,
But being too happy in thine happiness,—
That thou, light-wingéd Dryad of the trees,
In some melodious plot
Of beechen green, and shadows numberless,
Singest of summer in full-throated ease.

O for a draught of vintage! that hath been Cool'd a long age in the deep-delvéd earth,
Tasting of Flora and the country green,
Dance, and Provençal song, and sunburnt mirth!
O for a beaker full of the warm South,
Full of the true, the blushful Hippocrene,

With beaded bubbles winking at the brim,
And purple-stainéd mouth; 18
That I might drink, and leave the world unseen,
And with thee fade away into the forest dim:
Fade far away, dissolve, and quite forget
What thou among the leaves hast never known,
The weariness, the fever, and the fret 23
Here, where men sit and hear each other groan;
Where palsy shakes a few, sad, last grey hairs,
Where youth grows pale, and spectre-thin, and dies;
Where but to think is to be full of sorrow
And leaden-eyed despairs; 28
Where Beauty cannot keep her lustrous eyes,
Or new Love pine at them beyond to-morrow.
Away! away! for I will fly to thee,
Not charioted by Bacchus and his pards,
But on the viewless wings of Poesy,
Though the dull brain perplexes and retards:
Already with thee! tender is the night, 35
And haply the Queen-Moon is on her throne,
Cluster'd around by all her starry Fays;
But here there is no light,
Save what from heaven is with the breezes blown
Through verdurous glooms and winding mossy ways. 40
I cannot see what flowers are at my feet,
Nor what soft incense hangs upon the boughs,
But, in embalméd darkness, guess each sweet
Wherewith the seasonable month endows 44
The grass, the thicket, and the fruit-tree wild;
White hawthorn, and the pastoral eglantine;
Fast-fading violets cover'd up in leaves;
And mid-May's eldest child
The coming musk-rose, full of dewy wine, 49
The murmurous haunt of flies on summer eves.
Darkling I listen; and, for many a time
I have been half in love with easeful Death,
Call'd him soft names in many a muséd rhyme,
To take into the air my quiet breath;

Now more than ever seems it rich to die,
To cease upon the midnight with no pain,
While thou art pouring forth thy soul abroad
In such an ecstasy!
Still wouldst thou sing, and I have ears in vain—

Still wouldst thou sing, and I have ears in vain—
To thy high requiem become a sod. 60

Thou wast not born for death, immortal Bird!

No hungry generations tread thee down;
The voice I hear this passing night was heard
In ancient days by emperor and clown:
Perhaps the self-same song that found a path
Through the sad heart of Ruth, when, sick for home,
She stood in tears amid the alien corn;
The same that oft-times hath

She stood in tears amid the alien corn;
The same that oft-times hath
Charm'd magic easements, opening on the foam
Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn. 70

Forlorn! the very word is like a bell
To toll me back from thee to my sole self!
Adieu! the fancy cannot cheat so well
As she is famed to do, deceiving elf.
Adieu! adieu! thy plaintive anthem fades
Past the near meadows, over the still stream,
Up the hill-side; and now 'tis buried deep
In the next valley-glades:
Was it a vision, or a waking dream?
Fled is that music:—do I wake or sleep?

UPON WESTMINSTER BRIDGE, Sept. 3, 1802

Earth has not anything to show more fair:

Dull would he be of soul who could pass by
A sight so touching in its majesty:
This City now doth like a garment wear

The beauty of the morning: silent, bare,
Ships, towers, domes, theatres, and temples lie
Open unto the fields, and to the sky,
All bright and glittering in the smokeless air.

Never did sun more beautifully steep
In his first splendour valley, rock, or hill;
Ne'er saw I, never felt, a calm so deep!

The river glideth at his own sweet will:
Dear God! the very houses seem asleep;
And all that mighty heart is lying still!
W. Wordsworth.

X 246 OZYMANDIAS OF EGYPT

I met a traveller from an antique land
Who said: Two vast and trunkless legs of stone
Stand in the desert. Near them on the sand,
Half sunk, a shatter'd visage lies, whose frown

And wrinkled lip and sneer of cold command 5
Tell that its sculptor well those passions read
Which yet survive, stamp'd on these lifeless things,
The hand that mock'd them and the heart that fed;

And on the pedestal these words appear:
'My name is Ozymandias, king of kings: 10
Look on my works, ye Mighty, and despair!'

Nothing beside remains. Round the decay Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare. The lone and level sands stretch far away.

P. B. SHELLEY.

COMPOSED AT NEIDPATH CASTLE, THE PROPERTY OF LORD QUEENSBERRY, 1803

Degenerate Douglas! O the unworthy lord!
Whom mere despite of heart could so far please
And love of havoc, (for with such disease Fame taxes him,) that he could send forth word

To level with the dust a noble horde,

A brotherhood of venerable trees,
Leaving an ancient dome, and towers like these,
Beggar'd and outraged!—Many hearts deplored

The fate of those old trees; and oft with pain
The traveller at this day will stop and gaze 10
On wrongs, which Nature searcely seems to heed:

For sheltered places, bosoms, nooks, and bays, And the pure mountains, and the gentle Tweed, And the green silent pastures, yet remain.

W. Wordsworth.

ADMONITION TO A TRAVELLER

Yes, there is holy pleasure in thine eye!
The lovely cottage in the guardian nook
Hath stirr'd thee deeply; with its own dear brook,
Its own small pasture, almost its own sky!

But covet not the abode; forbear to sigh
As many do, repining while they look;
Intruders who would tear from Nature's book
This precious leaf with harsh impiety:

Think what the home must be if it were thine, Even thine, though few thy wants!—Roof, window, door, 10 The very flowers are sacred to the Poor, The roses to the porch which they entwine:
Yea, all that now enchants thee, from the day
On which it should be touch'd, would melt away!

TO THE HIGHLAND GIRL OF INVERSNEYDE

Sweet Highland Girl, a very shower Of beauty is thy earthly dower! Twice seven consenting years have shed Their utmost bounty on thy head: And these grey rocks: that household lawn; Those trees—a veil just half withdrawn; This fall of water that doth make A murmur near the silent lake : This little bay; a quiet road That holds in shelter thy abode; 10 In truth together do ye seem Like something fashion'd in a dream: Such forms as from their covert peep When earthly cares are laid asleep! But O fair Creature! in the light 15 Of common day, so heavenly bright. I bless Thee, Vision as thou art, I bless thee with a human heart: God shield thee to thy latest years! Thee, neither know I, nor thy peers; 20 And yet my eyes are fill'd with tears.

With earnest feeling I shall pray
For thee when I am far away;
For never saw I mien or face
In which more plainly I could trace
Benignity and home-bred sense
Ripening in perfect innocence.
Here scattered like a random seed,
Remote from men, Thou dost not need
The embarrassed look of shy distress,
And maidenly shamefacedness:

Thou wear'st upon thy forehead clear The freedom of a mountaineer: A face with gladness overspread; Soft smiles, by human kindness bred; 35 And seemliness complete, that sways Thy courtesies, about thee plays: With no restraint, but such as springs From quick and eager visitings Of thoughts that lie beyond the reach 40 Of the few words of English speech: A bondage sweetly brook'd, a strife That gives thy gestures grace and life! So have I. not unmoved in mind. Seen birds of tempest-loving kind 45 Thus beating up against the wind. What hand but would a garland cull For thee who art so beautiful? O happy pleasure! here to dwell Beside thee in some heathy dell: 50 Adopt your homely ways and dress,

Adopt your homely ways and dress,
A shepherd, thou a shepherdess!
But I could frame a wish for thee
More like a grave reality:
Thou art to me but as a wave
55
Of the wild sea: and I would have
Some claim upon thee, if I could,
Though but of common neighbourhood,
What joy to hear thee, and to see!
Thy elder brother I would be,
Thy father—anything to thee!

Now thanks to Heaven! that of its grace
Hath led me to this lonely place.
Joy have I had; and going hence
I bear away my recompense.
In spots like these it is we prize
Our memory, feel that she hath eyes:
Then why should I be loth to stir?
I feel this place was made for her;

THE REAPER

Behold her, single in the field,
Yon solitary Highland Lass!
Reaping and singing by herself;
Stop here, or gently pass!
Alone she cuts and binds the grain.
And sings a melancholy strain;
O listen! for the vale profound
Is overflowing with the sound.

No nightingale did ever chant
More welcome notes to weary bands
Of travellers in some shady haunt,
Among Arabian sands:
A voice so thrilling ne'er was heard
In spring-time from the cuckoo-bird,
Breaking the silence of the seas
Among the farthest Hebrides.

Will no one tell me what she sings?
Perhaps the plaintive numbers flow
For old, unhappy, far-off things,
And battles long ago:
Or is it some more humble lay,
Familiar matter of to-day?
Some natural sorrow, loss, or pain,
That has been, and may be again?

Whate'er the theme, the maiden sang
As if her song could have no ending;
I saw her singing at her work,
And o'er the sickle bending;
I listen'd, motionless and still;
And, as I mounted up the hill,
The music in my heart I bore,
Long after it was heard no more.

W. Wordsworth.

THE REVERIE OF POOR SUSAN

At the corner of Wood Street, when daylight appears,

Hangs a Thrush that sings loud, it has sung for three years:

Poor Susan has pass'd by the spot, and has heard In the silence of morning the song of the bird.

Tis a note of enchantment; what ails her? She sees A mountain ascending, a vision of trees; 6 Bright volumes of vapour through Lothbury glide, And a river flows on through the vale of Cheapside.

Green pastures she views in the midst of the dale, Down which she so often has tripp'd with her pail; And a single small cottage, a nest like a dove's, The one only dwelling on earth that she loves. 12

She looks, and her heart is in heaven: but they fade, The mist and the river, the hill and the shade; The stream will not flow, and the hill will not rise, And the colours have all pass'd away from her eyes!

TO A LADY, WITH A GUITAR

Ariel to Miranda:—Take This slave of Music, for the sake Of him who is the slave of thee: And teach it all the harmony In which thou canst, and only thou, 5 Make the delighted spirit glow, Till joy denies itself again And, too intense, is turn'd to pain. For by permission and command Of thine own Prince Ferdinand. 10 Poor Ariel sends this silent token Of more than ever can be spoken; Your guardian spirit, Ariel, who From life to life must still pursue Your happiness; for thus alone 15 Can Ariel ever find his own. From Prospero's enchanted cell. As the mighty verses tell, To the throne of Naples he Lit you o'er the trackless sea, 20 Flitting on, your prow before, Like a living meteor. When you die, the silent Moon In her interlunar swoon 25 Is not sadder in her cell Than deserted Ariel. When you live again on earth, Like an unseen star of birth Ariel guides you o'er the sea Of life from your nativity. 30 Many changes have been run Since Ferdinand and you begun Your course of love, and Ariel still Has tracked your steps and served your will. Now in humbler, happier lot, 35 This is all remember'd not;

133

ĸ

And now, alas! the poor sprite is Imprisoned for some fault of his In a body like a grave;— From you he only dares to erave, For his service and his sorrow, A smile to-day, a song to-morrow.	40
The artist who this idol wrought To echo all harmonious thought, Felled a tree, while on the steep The woods were in their winter sleep, Rocked in that repose divine	45
On the wind-swept Apennine; And dreaming, some of Autumn past, And some of Spring approaching fast, And some of April buds and showers, And some of songs in July bowers,	50
And all of love; and so this tree,— O that such our death may be!— Died in sleep, and felt no pain, To live in happier form again: From which, beneath Heaven's fairest sta	55 ar,
The artist wrought this loved Guitar; And taught it justly to reply To all who question skilfully In language gentle as thine own; Whispering in enamoured tone	60
Sweet oracles of woods and dells, And summer winds in sylvan cells; —For it had learnt all harmonies Of the plains and of the skies, Of the forests and the mountains,	65
And the many-voiced fountains; The clearest echoes of the hills, The softest notes of falling rills, The melodies of birds and bees, The murmuring of summer seas,	70
And pattering rain, and breathing dew, And airs of evening; and it knew That seldom-heard mysterious sound	75

Which, driven on its diurnal round,
As it floats through boundless day,
Our world enkindles on its way:
—All this it knows, but will not tell
To those who cannot question well	80
The Spirit that inhabits it;
It talks according to the wit
Of its companions; and no more
Is heard than has been felt before
By those who tempt it to be ray	85
These secrets of an elder day.
But, sweetly as its answers will
Flatter hands of perfect skill,
It keeps its highest holiest tone
	00
For our belovéd friend alone.	90

THE DAFFODILS

I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host, of golden daffodils,
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way,
They stretched in never-ending line
Along the margin of a bay:
Ten thousand saw I at a glance
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced, but they
Out-did the sparkling waves in glee:
A Poet could not but be gay
In such a jocund company!
I gazed—and gazed—but little thought
What wealth the show to me had brought:

For oft, when on my couch I lie
In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon that inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude;
And then my heart with pleasure fills,
And dances with the daffodils.

W. Wordsworth.

TO THE DAISY

With little here to do or see
Of things that in the great world be,
Daisy! again I talk to thee,
For thou art worthy,
Thou unassuming Commonplace
Of Nature, with that homely face,
And yet with something of a grace
Which love makes for thee!

Oft on the dappled turf at ease
I sit and play with similes,
Loose types of things through all degrees,
Thoughts of thy raising;

And many a fond and idle name
I give to thee, for praise or blame,
As is the humour of the game,
While I am gazing.

A nun demure, of lowly port; Or sprightly maiden, of Love's court, In thy simplicity the sport Of all temptations;

A queen in crown of rubics drest;
A starveling in a scanty vest;
Are all, as seems to suit thee best,
Thy appellations.

A little Cyclops, with one eye Staring to threaten and defy, That thought comes next—and instantly The freak is over. The shape will vanish, and behold! A silver shield with boss of gold

30

That spreads itself, some fairy bold In fight to cover.
I see thee glittering from afar-
And then thou art a pretty star,
Not quite so fair as many are	35
In heaven above thee!
Yet like a star, with glittering crest,
Self-poised in air thou seem'st to rest;—
May peace come never to his nest
Who shall reprove thee!	40

Sweet Flower! for by that name at last
When all my reveries are past
I call thee, and to that cleave fast,
Sweet silent creature!
That breath'st with me in sun and air,
Do thou, as thou art wont, repair
My heart with gladness, and a share
Of thy meek nature!

W. Wordsworth.

ODE TO AUTUMN

Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness,
Close bosom-friend of the maturing sun;
Conspiring with him how to load and bless
With fruit the vines that round the thatch-eaves run;
To bend with applies the mass'd cettage trees.

To bend with apples the moss'd cottage-trees,
And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core;
To swell the gourd, and plump the hazel shells
With a sweet kernel; to set budding more,
And still more, later flowers for the bees,
Until they think warm days will never cease;
For Summer has o'crbrimm'd their clammy cells.

Who hath not seen thee oft amid thy store?
Sometimes whoever seeks abroad may find Thee sitting careless on a granary floor,

Thy hair soft-lifted by the winnowing wind; 15

Or on a half-reap'd furrow sound asleep,

Drows'd with the fume of poppies, while thy hook Spares the next swath and all its twinéd flowers;

And sometimes like a gleaner thou dost keep Steady thy laden head across a brook; 20 Or by a cider-press, with patient look, Thou watchest the last oozings, hours by hours.

Where are the songs of Spring? Aye, where are they?
Think not of them,—thou hast thy music too,
While barréd clouds bloom the soft-dying day 25
And touch the stubble-plains with rosy hue;
Then in a wailful choir the small gnats mourn
Among the river sallows, borne aloft
Or sinking as the light wind lives or dies;
And full-grown lambs loud bleat from hilly bourn; 30
Hedge-crickets sing, and now with treble soft
The redbreast whistles from a garden-croft.

ODE TO WINTER

And gathering swallows twitter in the skies.

Germany, December 1800
When first the fiery-mantled Sun

His heavenly race began to run,
Round the earth and ocean blue
His children four the Scasons flew:
First, in green apparel dancing,

First, in green apparel dancing, 5
The young Spring smiled with angel-grace;
Rosy Summer, next advancing,
Rush'd into her sire's embrace—
Her bright-hair'd sire, who bade her keep
For ever nearest to his smiles. 10

On Calpe's olive-shaded steep Or India's citron-cover'd isles.  More remote, and buxom-brown, The Queen of vintage bow'd before his thron A rich pomegranate gemm'd her crown, A ripe sheaf bound her zone.	i e ; 15
But howling Winter fled afar To hills that prop the polar star; And loves on deer-borne car to ride With barren darkness at his side, Round the shore where loud Lofoden Whirls to death the roaring whale, Round the hall where Runic Odin	20
Howls his war-song to the gale— Save when adown the ravaged globe He travels on his native storm, Deflowering Nature's grassy robe	25
And trampling on her faded form; Till light's returning lord assume The shaft that drives him to his polar field, Of power to pierce his raven plume And crystal-cover'd shield.	30
O sire of storms! whose savage ear The Lapland drum delights to hear, When Frenzy with her bloodshot eye Implores thy dreadful deity— Archangel! power of desolation! Fast descending as thou art,	35
Say, hath mortal invocation Spells to touch thy stony heart?	40
Then, sullen Winter! hear my prayer And gently rule the ruin'd year; Nor chill the wanderer's bosom bare, Nor freeze the wretch's falling tear: To shuddering Want's unmantled bed Thy horror-breathing agues cease to lend, And gently on the orphan head Of innocence descend.	45

But chiefly spare, O king of clouds! The sailor on his airy shrouds, 50 When wrecks and beacons strew the steep And spectres walk along the deep. Milder yet thy snowy breezes Pour on yonder tented shores, Where the Rhine's broad billow freezes. 55 Or the dark-brown Danube roars. O winds of Winter! list ve there To many a deep and dying groan? Or start, ye demons of the midnight air, At shricks and thunders louder than your own? Alas! e'en your unhallow'd breath May spare the victim fallen low; But man will ask no truce to death, No bounds to human woe. T. CAMPBELL.

YARROW UNVISITED

1803

From Stirling Castle we had seen
The mazy Forth unravell'd,
Had trod the banks of Clyde and Tay,
And with the Tweed had travell'd;
And when we came to Clovenford,
Then said my 'winsome Marrow,'
'Whate'er betide, we'll turn aside,
And see the Braes of Yarrow.'

5

'Let Yarrow folk, frae Selkirk town
Who have been buying, selling,
Go back to Yarrow, 'tis their own,
Each maiden to her dwelling!
On Yarrow's banks let herons feed,
Hares couch, and rabbits burrow,
But we will downward with the Tweed,
Nor turn aside to Yarrow.

'There's Galla Water, Leader Haughs, Both lying right before us; And Dryburgh, where with chiming Tweed The lintwhites sing in chorus; There's pleasant Tiviot-dale, a land Made blithe with plough and harrow: Why throw away a needful day To go in search of Yarrow?	20
'What's Yarrow but a river bare That glides the dark hills under? There are a thousand such elsewhere As worthy of your wonder.'	25
—Strange words they seem'd of slight and My True-love sigh'd for sorrow, And look'd me in the face, to think I thus could speak of Yarrow!	scorn;
'O green,' said I, 'are Yarrow's holms, And sweet is Yarrow flowing! Fair hangs the apple frae the rock, But we will leave it growing. O'er hilly path and open Strath We'll wander Scotland thorough;	35
But, though so near, we will not turn Into the dale of Yarrow.	40
'Let beeves and home-bred kine partake The sweets of Burn-mill meadow; The swan on still St. Mary's Lake Float double, swan and shadow! We will not see them; will not go To-day, nor yet to-morrow; Enough if in our hearts we know There's such a place as Yarrow.	45
'Be Yarrow stream unseen, unknown! It must, or we shall rue it: We have a vision of our own, Ah! why should we undo it?	50
133	кa

-	TO TELESCOPE TO TE
	The treasured dreams of times long past, We'll keep them, winsome Marrow! For when we're there, although 'tis fair 'Twill be another Yarrow!	55
	'If Care with freezing years should come, And wandering seem but folly,— Should we be loth to stir from home, And yet be melancholy; Should life be dull, and spirits low, 'Twill soothe us in our sorrow That earth has something yet to show, The bonny holms of Yarrow!' W. Wordsworth.	60
	258
	YARROW VISITED
	September 1814
S	and is this—Yarrow?—This the Stream Of which my fancy cherish'd o faithfully, a waking dream, An image that hath perish'd? O that some Minstrel's harp were near To utter notes of gladness and chase this silence from the air, That fills my heart with sadness!	5
N A	Yet why?—a silvery current flows With uncontroll'd meanderings; For have these eyes by greener hills Been soothed, in all my wanderings. And, through her depths, St. Mary's Lake Is visibly delighted;	10
F	or not a feature of those hills Is in the mirror slighted.	15
	Save where that pearly whiteness s round the rising sun diffused,  A tender hazy brightness:	20

Mild dawn of promise 1 that excludes All profitless dejection; Though not unwilling here to admit A pensive recollection.
Where was it that the famous Flower Of Yarrow Vale lay bleeding? His bed perchance was you smooth mound	25
On which the herd is feeding: And haply from this crystal pool, Now peaceful as the morning, The Water-wraith ascended thrice, And gave his doleful warning.	30
Delicious is the Lay that sings The haunts of happy lovers, The path that leads them to the grove, The leafy grove that covers: And pity sanctifies the verse That paints, by strength of sorrow,	35
The unconquerable strength of love; Bear witness, rueful Yarrow!	40
But thou, that didst appear so fair To fond imagination, Dost rival in the light of day Her delicate creation: Meek loveliness is round thee spread, A softness still and holy: The grace of forest charms decay'd, And pastoral melancholy.	45
That region left, the vale unfolds Rich groves of lofty stature, With Yarrow winding through the pomp Of cultivated nature; And, rising from those lofty groves, Behold a ruin hoary,	50
The shatter'd front of Newark's Towers, Renown'd in Border story.	55

Fair scenes for childhood's opening bloom, For sportive youth to stray in, For manhood to enjoy his strength, And age to wear away in! Yon cottage seems a bower of bliss, A covert for protection Of tender thoughts, that nestle there— The brood of chaste affection.	60
How sweet on this autumnal day The wild-wood fruits to gather, And on my True-love's forehead plant A crest of blooming heather! And what if I enwreathed my own?	65
'Twere no offence to reason; The sober hills thus deck their brows To meet the wintry season.	70
I see—but not by sight alone,     Loved Yarrow, have I won thee; A ray of Faney still survives—     Her sunshine plays upon thee! Thy ever-youthful waters keep A course of lively pleasure; And gladsome notes my lips can breathe	75
Accordant to the measure.	80
The vapours linger round the heights, They melt, and soon must vanish; One hour is theirs, nor more is mine— Sad thought! which I would banish, But that I know, where'er I go, Thy genuine image, Yarrow! Will dwell with me—to heighten joy, And cheer my mind in sorrow.	85
W. Wordsworth

THE INVITATION

Best and brightest, come away, Fairer far than this fair Day, Which, like thee to those in sorrow, Comes to bid a sweet good-morrow To the rough Year just awake 5 In its cradle on the brake. The brightest hour of unborn Spring Through the winter wandering, Found, it seems, the halcyon Morn To hoar February born: 10 Bending from Heaven, in azure mirth, It kiss'd the forehead of the Earth, And smiled upon the silent sea, And bade the frozen streams be free, And waked to music all their fountains, 15 And breathed upon the frozen mountains, And like a prophetess of May Strew'd flowers upon the barren way, Making the wintry world appear Like one on whom thou smilest, dear. 20

Away, away, from men and towns,
To the wild wood and the downs—
To the silent wilderness
Where the soul need not repress
Its music, lest it should not find
An echo in another's mind,
While the touch of Nature's art
Harmonizes heart to heart.

Radiant Sister of the Day Awake! arise! and come away! To the wild woods and the plains, And the pools where winter rains Image all their roof of leaves, Where the pine its garland weaves

Of sapless green and ivy dun	35
Round stems that never kiss the sun;
Where the lawns and pastures be
And the sandhills of the sea;
Where the melting hoar-frost wets
The daisy-star that never sets,	40
And wind-flowers and violets,
Which yet join not scent to hue,
Crown the pale year weak and new;
When the night is left behind
In the deep east, dun and blind,	45
And the blue noon is over us,
And the multitudinous
Billows murmur at our feet,
Where the earth and ocean meet,
And all things seem only one	50
In the universal sun.
P. B. Shelley	₹.

THE RECOLLECTION

Now the last day of many days,
All beautiful and bright as thou,
The loveliest and the last, is dead,
Rise, Memory, and write its praise!
Up,—to thy wonted work! come, trace
The epitaph of glory fled,
For now the Earth has changed its face,
A frown is on the Heaven's brow.

We wander'd to the Pine Forest
That skirts the Ocean's foam;
The lightest wind was in its nest,
The tempest in its home.
The whispering waves were half asleep,
The clouds were gone to play,
And on the bosom of the deep
The smile of Heaven lay;

It seem'd as if the hour were one Sent from beyond the skies Which scatter'd from above the sun A light of Paradise.	20
We paused amid the pines that stood The giants of the waste, Tortured by storms to shapes as rude As serpents interlaced, And soothed by every azure breath That under Heaven is blown	25
To harmonies and hues beneath, As tender as its own:  Now all the tree-tops lay asleep Like green waves on the sea, As still as in the silent deep The ocean woods may be.	30
How calm it was !—the silence there By such a chain was bound, That even the busy woodpecker Made stiller by her sound The inviolable quietness;	35
The breath of peace we drew With its soft motion made not less The calm that round us grew. There seem'd from the remotest seat Of the white mountain waste, To the soft flower beneath our feet	40
A magic circle traced,— A spirit interfused around, A thrilling silent life; To momentary peace it bound	45
Our mortal nature's strife;— And still I felt the centre of The magic circle there Was one fair form that fill'd with love The lifeless atmosphere.	50
We paused beside the pools that lie Under the forest bough;

Each seem'd as 'twere a little sky Gulf'd in a world below;	55
A firmament of purple light
Which in the dark earth lay,
More boundless than the depth of night,	60
And purer than the day— In which the lovely forests grew	00
As in the upper air,
More perfect both in shape and hue
Than any spreading there.
There lay the glade and neighbouring lawn,	65
And through the dark green wood
The white sun twinkling like the dawn
Out of a speckled cloud.
Sweet views which in our world above
Can never well be seen	70
Were imaged by the water's love
Of that fair forest green:
And all was interfused beneath
With an Elysian glow,	75
An atmosphere without a breath,	75
A softer day below.  Like one beloved, the seene had lent
To the dark water's breast
Its every leaf and lineament
With more than truth exprest;	80
Until an envious wind crept by,
Like an unwelcome thought
Which from the mind's too faithful eye
Blots one dear image out.
Though thou art ever fair and kind,	85
The forests ever green,
Less oft is peace in Shelley's mind
Than calm in waters seen.
P. B. SHELLEY

BY THE SEA

It is a beauteous evening, calm and free;
The holy time is quiet as a Nun
Breathless with adoration; the broad sun
Is sinking down in its tranquillity;

The gentleness of heaven broods o'er the Sea: 5
Listen! the mighty Being is awake,
And doth with his eternal motion make
A sound like thunder—everlastingly.

Dear child! dear girl! that walkest with me here,
If thou appear untouch'd by solemn thought
Thy nature is not therefore less divine:

11

Thou liest in Abraham's bosom all the year,
And worshipp'st at the Temple's inner shrine,
God being with thee when we know it not.

W. Wordsworth.

TO THE EVENING STAR

Star that bringest home the bee,
And sett'st the weary labourer free!
If any star shed peace, 'tis thou,
That send'st it from above,
Appearing when Heaven's breath and brow
Are sweet as hers we love.

Come to the luxuriant skies,
Whilst the landscape's odours rise,
Whilst far-off lowing herds are heard,
And songs when toil is done,
From cottages whose smoke unstirr'd
Curls yellow in the sun.

10

Star of love's soft interviews,
Parted lovers on thee muse;
Their remembrancer in Heaven
Of thrilling vows thou art,
Too delicious to be riven
By absence from the heart.

DATUR HORA QUIETI

The sun upon the lake is low,
The wild birds hush their song,
The hills have evening's deepest glow,
Yet Leonard tarries long.
Now all whom varied toil and care
From home and love divide,
In the calm sunset may repair
Each to the loved one's side.

The noble dame on turret high,
Who waits her gallant knight,
Looks to the western beam to spy
The flash of armour bright.
The village maid, with hand on brow
The level ray to shade,
Upon the footpath watches now
For Colin's darkening plaid.

Now to their mates the wild swans row,
By day they swam apart,
And to the thicket wanders slow
The hind beside the hart.

The woodlark at his partner's side
Twitters his closing song—
All meet whom day and care divide,
But Leonard tarries long!

Sir W. Scott.

TO THE MOON

Art thou pale for weariness
Of climbing heaven, and gazing on the earth,
Wandering companionless
Among the stars that have a different birth,—
And ever-changing, like a joyless eye
That finds no object worth its constancy?

P. B. Shelley.

265

A widow bird sate mourning for her love Upon a wintry bough; The frozen wind crept on above, The freezing stream below.

There was no leaf upon the forest bare,
No flower upon the ground,
And little motion in the air
Except the mill-wheel's sound.
P. B. SHELLEY.

TO SLEEP

A flock of sheep that leisurely pass by,
One after one; the sound of rain, and bees
Murmuring; the fall of rivers, winds and seas,
Smooth fields, white sheets of water, and pure sky:

I have thought of all by turns, and yet do lie 5 Sleepless; and soon the small birds' melodies Must hear, first uttered from my orchard trees, And the first cuckoo's melancholy cry. Even thus last night, and two nights more, I lay, And could not win thee, Sleep! by any stealth: So do not let me wear to-night away:

Without Thee what is all the morning's wealth? Come, blesséd barrier between day and day,

Dear mother of fresh thoughts and joyous health!
W. Wordsworth.

THE SOLDIER'S DREAM

Our buglessang truce, for the night-cloud had lower'd, And the sentinel stars set their watch in the sky; And thousands had sunk on the ground overpower'd, The weary to sleep, and the wounded to die. 4

When reposing that night on my pallet of straw

By the wolf-scaring faggot that guarded the slain. At the dead of the night a sweet vision I saw; And thrice ere the morning I dreamt it again.

Methought from the battle-field's dreadful array Far, far I had roam'd on a desolate track:

'Twas autumn,—and sunshine arose on the way To the home of my fathers, that welcomed me back.

I flew to the pleasant fields traversed so oft
In life's morning march, when my bosom was young;

I heard my own mountain-goats bleating aloft, 15 And knew the sweet strain that the corn-reapers sung.

Then pledged we the wine-cup, and fondly I swore From my home and my weeping friends never to part;

My little ones kiss'd me a thousand times o'cr, And my wife sobb'd aloud in her fullness of heart.

'Stay-stay with us !-rest !-thou art weary and worn ! '--

And fain was their war-broken soldier to stay;—But sorrow return'd with the dawning of morn,
And the voice in my dreaming ear melted away.

T. CAMPBELL.

A DREAM OF THE UNKNOWN

I dream'd that as I wander'd by the way
Bare Winter suddenly was changed to Spring,
And gentle odours led my steps astray,
Mix'd with a sound of waters murmuring
Along a shelving bank of turf, which lay
Under a copse, and hardly dared to fling
Its green arms round the bosom of the stream,
But kiss'd it and then fled, as thou mightest in dream.

There grew pied wind-flowers and violets,
Daisies, those pearl'd Arcturi of the earth,
The constellated flower that never sets;

Faint oxlips; tender blue-bells, at whose birth The sod scarce heaved; and that tall flower that wets—

Like a child, half in tenderness and mirth— Its mother's face with heaven's collected tears, 15 When the low wind, its playmate's voice, it hears.

And in the warm hedge grew lush eglantine, Green cow-bind and the moonlight-colour'd may, And cherry-blossoms, and white cups, whose wine Was the bright dew yet drain'd not by the day; And wild roses, and ivy serpentine

With its dark buds and leaves, wandering astray; And flowers azure, black, and streak'd with gold, Fairer than any waken'd eyes behold.

And nearer to the river's trembling edge 25
There grew broad flag-flowers, purple prank with white,

And starry river buds among the sedge, And floating water-lilies, broad and bright, Which lit the oak that overhung the hedge

With moonlight beams of their own watery light; And bulrushes, and reeds of such deep green 31 As soothed the dazzled eye with sober sheen. Methought that of these visionary flowers
I made a nosegay, bound in such a way
That the same hues, which in their natural bowers
Were mingled or opposed, the like array
36
Kept these imprison'd children of the Hours
Within my hand,—and then, elate and gay,
I hasten'd to the spot whence I had come,
That I might there present it—O! to Whom?
P. B. SHELLEY.

THE INNER VISION

Most sweet it is with unuplifted eyes

To pace the ground, if path be there or none,
While a fair region round the traveller lies

Which he forbears again to look upon;

Pleased rather with some soft ideal scene,
The work of Faney, or some happy tone
Of meditation, slipping in between
The beauty coming and the beauty gone.

If Thought and Love desert us, from that day
Let us break off all commerce with the Muse:
With Thought and Love companions of our way—

Whate'er the senses take or may refuse,— 12 The Mind's internal heaven shall shed her dews Of inspiration on the humblest lay.

W. Wordsworth

THE REALM OF FANCY

Ever let the Fancy roam! Pleasure never is at home: At a touch sweet Pleasure melteth, Like to bubbles when rain pelteth;

Then let wingéd Fancy wander	5
Through the thought still spread beyond	her:
Open wide the mind's cage-door,
She'll dart forth, and cloudward soar.
O sweet Fancy! let her loose;
Summer's joys are spoilt by use,	10
And the enjoying of the Spring
Fades as does its blossoming:
Autumn's red-lipp'd fruitage too,
Blushing through the mist and dew,
Cloys with tasting: What do then?	15
Sit thee by the ingle, when
The sear faggot blazes bright,
Spirit of a winter's night;
When the soundless earth is muffled,
And the cakéd snow is shuffled	20
From the ploughboy's heavy shoon;
When the Night doth meet the Noon
In a dark conspiracy
To banish Even from her sky.
—Sit thee there, and send abroad,	25
With a mind self-overawed,
Fancy, high-commission'd:—send her!
She has vassals to attend her;	.,
She will bring, in spite of frost,	_
Beauties that the earth hath lost;	30
She will bring thee, all together,
All delights of summer weather;
All the buds and bells of May
From dewy sward or thorny spray;
All the heapéd Autumn's wealth,	35
With a still, mysterious stealth;
She will mix these pleasures up
Like three fit wines in a cup,
And thou shalt quaff it;—thou shalt he
Distant harvest-carols clear;	40
Rustle of the reaped corn;
Sweet birds antheming the morn:
And in the same moment—hark!
'Tis the early April lark,

Or the rooks, with busy caw, Foraging for sticks and straw.	45
Thou shalt, at one glance, behold
The daisy and the marigold;
White-plumed lilies, and the first Hedge-grown primrose that hath burst;	50
Shaded hyacinth, alway	00
Sapphire queen of the mid-May;
And every leaf, and every flower
Pearled with the self-same shower.
Thou shalt see the field-mouse peep	55
Meagre from its celléd sleep;
And the snake all winter-thin
Cast on sunny bank its skin;
Freekled nest-eggs thou shalt see
Hatching in the hawthorn-tree,	GO
When the hen-bird's wing doth rest
Quiet on her mossy nest;
Then the hurry and alarm
When the bee-hive casts its swarm;
Acorns ripe down-pattering	65
While the autumn breezes sing.
O sweet Fancy! let her loose;
Everything is spoilt by use:
Where 's the cheek that doth not fade,
Too much gazed at? Where 's the maid	70
Whose lip mature is ever new?
Where 's the eye, however blue,
Doth not weary? Where 's the face
One would meet in every place?
Where 's the voice, however soft,	75
One would hear so very oft?
At a touch sweet Pleasure melteth
Like to bubbles when rain pelteth.
Let then wingéd Fancy find	00
Thee a mistress to thy mind:	80
Dulcet-eyed as Ceres' daughter,
Ere the God of Torment taught her
How to frown and how to chide;

With a waist and with a side
White as Hebe's, when her zone	85
Slipt its golden clasp, and down
Fell her kirtle to her feet,
While she held the goblet sweet,
And Jove grew languid.—Break the mesh
Of the Fancy's silken leash;	90
Quickly break her prison-string,
And such joys as these she'll bring.
—Let the wingéd Fancy roam!
Pleasure never is at home.
J. Keats

HYMN TO THE SPIRIT OF NATURE

Life of Life! thy lips enkindle
With their love the breath between them;
And thy smiles before they dwindle
Make the cold air fire; then screen them
In those looks, where whoso gazes
Faints, entangled in their mazes.

Child of Light! thy limbs are burning
Through the vest which seems to hide them,
As the radiant lines of morning
Through the clouds, ere they divide them;
And this atmosphere divinest
Shrouds thee wheresoe'er thou shinest.

Fair are others: none beholds thee,
But thy voice sounds low and tender
Like the fairest, for it folds thee
From the sight, that liquid splendour;
And all feel, yet see thee never,—
As I feel now, lost for ever!

Lamp of Earth! where'er thou movest
Its dim shapes are clad with brightness,

And the souls of whom thou lovest
Walk upon the winds with lightness
Till they fail, as I am failing,
Dizzy, lost, yet unbewailing!

P. B. SHELLEY.

WRITTEN IN EARLY SPRING

I heard a thousand blended notes
While in a grove I sat reclined,
In that sweet mood when pleasant thoughts
Bring sad thoughts to the mind.

To her fair works did Nature link
The human soul that through me ran;
And much it grieved my heart to think
What man has made of man.

Through primrose tufts, in that green bower,
The periwinkle trail'd its wreaths;
And 'tis my faith that every flower
Enjoys the air it breathes.

The birds around me hopp'd and play'd,
Their thoughts I cannot measure—
But the least motion which they made
It seem'd a thrill of pleasure.

The budding twigs spread out their fan To catch the breezy air; And I must think, do all I can, That there was pleasure there.

If this belief from heaven be sent, If such be Nature's holy plan, Have I not reason to lament What man has made of man?

W. Wordsworth.

RUTH: OR THE INFLUENCES OF NATURE

When Ruth was left half desolate Her father took another mate; And Ruth, not seven years old, A slighted child, at her own will Went wandering over dale and hill, In thoughtless freedom, bold.

And she had made a pipe of straw,
And music from that pipe could draw
Like sounds of winds and floods;
Had built a bower upon the green,
As if she from her birth had been
An infant of the woods.

10

Beneath her father's roof, alone
She seem'd to live; her thoughts her own;
Herself her own delight:
Pleased with herself, nor sad nor gay.
And, passing thus the live-long day,
She grew to woman's height.

There came a youth from Georgia's shore—
A military casque he wore 20
With splendid feathers drest;
He brought them from the Cherokees;
The feathers nodded in the breeze
And made a gallant crest.

From Indian blood you deem him sprung:
But no! he spake the English tongue
And bore a soldier's name;
And, when America was free
From battle and from jeopardy,
He 'cross the ocean came.

30

With hues of genius on his cheek, In finest tones the youth could speak:

—While he was yet a boy The moon, the glory of the sun, And streams that murmur as they run, Had been his dearest joy.	35
He was a lovely youth! I guess The panther in the wilderness Was not so fair as he; And when he chose to sport and play, No dolphin ever was so gay Upon the tropic sca.	40
Among the Indians he had fought; And with him many tales he brought Of pleasure and of fear; Such tales as, told to any maid By such a youth, in the green shade, Were perilous to hear.	45
He told of girls, a happy rout! Who quit their fold with dance and shout, Their pleasant Indian town, To gather strawberries all day long; Returning with a choral song When daylight is gone down.	51
He spake of plants that hourly change Their blossoms, through a boundless range Of intermingling hues; With budding, fading, faded flowers, They stand the wonder of the bowers From morn to evening dews.	55 60
He told of the magnolia, spread High as a cloud, high over head! The cypress and her spire; —Of flowers that with one scarlet gleam Cover a hundred leagues, and seem To set the hills on fire. The youth of green savannahs spake	65
The voiith of green savannahs spake.

The youth of green savannahs spake, And many an endless, endless lake

With all its fairy crowds Of islands, that together lie As quietly as spots of sky Among the evening clouds.	70
'How pleasant,' then he said, 'it were A fisher or a hunter there, In sunshine or in shade To wander with an easy mind, And build a household fire, and find A home in every glade!	75
'What days and what bright years! Al Our life were life indeed, with thee So pass'd in quiet bliss; And all the while,' said he, 'to know That we were in a world of woe, On such an earth as this!'	n me ! 80
And then he sometimes interwove Fond thoughts about a father's love, 'For there,' said he, 'are spun Around the heart such tender ties, That our own children to our eyes Are dearer than the sun.	85 90
'Sweet Ruth! and could you go with n My helpmate in the woods to be, Our shed at night to rear; Or run, my own adopted bride, A sylvan huntress at my side, And drive the flying deer!	ne 95
'Beloved Ruth!'—No more he said. The wakeful Ruth at midnight shed A solitary tear: She thought again—and did agree With him to sail across the sea, And drive the flying deer.	100
"And now, as fitting is and right, We in the church our faith will plight,

A husband and a wife.' Even so they did; and I may say That to sweet Ruth that happy day Was more than human life.	105
Through dream and vision did she sink, Delighted all the while to think That, on those lonesome floods And green savannahs, she should share His board with lawful joy, and bear His name in the wild woods.	110
But, as you have before been told, This Stripling, sportive, gay, and bold, And with his dancing crest So beautiful, through savage lands Had roam'd about, with vagrant bands Of Indians in the West.	115 120
The wind, the tempest roaring high, The tumult of a tropic sky Might well be dangerous food For him, a youth to whom was given So much of earth—so much of heaven, And such impetuous blood.	125
Whatever in those climes he found Irregular in sight or sound Did to his mind impart A kindred impulse, seem'd allied To his own powers, and justified The workings of his heart.	130
Nor less, to feed voluptuous thought, The beauteous forms of Nature wrought, Fair trees and gorgeous flowers; The breezes their own languor lent; The stars had feelings, which they sent Into those favour'd bowers.	_ 135
Yet, in his worst pursuits, I ween That sometimes there did intervene	140

Pure hopes of high intent: For passions, link'd to forms so fair And stately, needs must have their share Of noble sentiment.
But ill he lived, much evil saw, With men to whom no better law Nor better life was known; Deliberately and undeceived Those wild men's vices he received, And gave them back his own.	145 150
His genius and his moral frame Were thus impair'd, and he became The slave of low desires: A man who without self-control Would seek what the degraded soul Unworthily admires.	155
And yet he with no feign'd delight Had woo'd the maiden, day and night Had loved her, night and morn: What could he less than love a maid Whose heart with so much nature play'd- So kind and so forlorn?	160
Sometimes most earnestly he said, 'O Ruth! I have been worse than dead; False thoughts, thoughts bold and vain Encompass'd me on every side When I, in confidence and pride, Had cross'd the Atlantic main.	165
'Before me shone a glorious world Fresh as a banner bright, unfurl'd To music suddenly: I look'd upon those hills and plains, And seem'd as if let loose from chains To live at liberty.	170
'No more of this—for now, by thee, Dear Ruth? more happily set free.	175

With nobler zeal I burn; My soul from darkness is released Like the whole sky when to the east The morning doth return.	180
Full soon that better mind was gone; No hope, no wish remain'd, not one,— They stirr'd him now no more; New objects did new pleasure give, And once again he wish'd to live As lawless as before.	185
Meanwhile, as thus with him it fared, They for the voyage were prepared, And went to the sea-shore: But, when they thither came, the youth Deserted his poor bride, and Ruth Could never find him more.	190
God help thee, Ruth!—Such pains she ha That she in half a year was mad, And in a prison housed; And there, with many a doleful song Made of wild words, her cup of wrong She fearfully caroused.	.d, 195
Yet sometimes milder hours she knew, Nor wanted sun, nor rain, nor dew, Nor pastimes of the May, —They all were with her in her cell; And a clear brook with cheerful knell Did o'er the pebbles play.	200
When Ruth three seasons thus had lain, There came a respite to her pain; She from her prison fled; But of the Vagrant none took thought; And where it liked her best she sought Her shelter and her bread.	205 210
Among the fields she breathed again: The master-current of her brain

WO	RD	SW	OR	rH
----	----	----	----	----

Ran permanent and free; And, coming to the banks of Tone, There did she rest; and dwell alone Under the greenwood tree.	215
The engines of her pain, the tools That shaped her sorrow, rocks and pools, And airs that gently stir The vernal leaves—she loved them still, Nor ever tax'd them with the ill Which had been done to her.	220
A barn her winter bed supplies; But, till the warmth of summer skies And summer days is gone, (And all do in this tale agree) She sleeps beneath the greenwood tree, And other home hath none.	225
An innocent life, yet far astray! And Ruth will, long before her day, Be broken down and old. Sore aches she needs must have! but less Of mind, than body's wretchedness, From damp, and rain, and cold.	230
If she is prest by want of food She from her dwelling in the wood Repairs to a road-side; And there she begs at one steep place, Where up and down with easy pace The horsemen-travellers ride.	235 240
That oaten pipe of hers is mute Or thrown away: but with a flute Her loneliness she cheers; This flute, made of a hemlock stalk, At evening in his homeward walk The Quantock woodman hears.	245
1, too, have pass'd her on the hills Setting her little water-mills

By spouts and fountains wild—
Such small machinery as she turn'd
Ere she had wept, ere she had mourn'd
A young and happy child!

Farewell! and when thy days are told, Ill-fated Ruth! in hallow'd mould

Thy corpse shall buried be; 255

For thee a funeral bell shall ring,

And all the congregation sing

A Christian psalm for thee.

W. Wordsworth.

WRITTEN IN THE EUGANEAN HILLS, NORTH ITALY

Many a green isle needs must be In the deep wide sea of misery, Or the mariner, worn and wan, Never thus could voyage on Day and night, and night and day, 5 Drifting on his dreary way, With the solid darkness black Closing round his vessel's track: Whilst above, the sunless sky, Big with clouds, hangs heavily, 10 And behind, the tempest fleet Hurries on with lightning feet, Riving sail, and cord, and plank, Till the ship has almost drank Death from the o'er-brimming deep; 15 And sinks down, down, like that sleep When the dreamer seems to be Weltering through eternity; And the dim low line before Of a dark and distant shore 20 Still recedes, as ever still Longing with divided will,

But no power to seek or snun,
He is ever drifted on
O'er the unreposing wave,	25
To the haven of the grave.
A
Aye, many flowering islands lie
In the waters of wide Agony:
To such a one this morn was led
My bark, by soft winds piloted.	30
—'Mid the mountains Euganean
I stood listening to the pacan
With which the legion'd rooks did hail
The sun's uprise majestical:
Gathering round with wings all hoar,	35
Through the dewy mist they soar
Like gray shades, till the eastern heaven
Bursts, and then,—as clouds of even,
Fleck'd with fire and azure, lie
In the unfathomable sky,—	40
So their plumes of purple grain
Starr'd with drops of golden rain
Gleam above the sunlight woods,
As in silent multitudes
On the morning's fitful gale	45
Through the broken mist they sail;	10
And the vapours cloven and gleaming
Follow down the dark steep streaming,
Till all is bright, and clear, and still 50
Round the solitary hill.	90
Beneath is spread like a green sea
The waveless plain of Lombardy,
Bounded by the vaporous air,
Islanded by cities fair;
Underposth Dox's agure exec	55
Underneath Day's azure eyes, Ocean's nursling, Venice lies,—	90
A peopled labyrinth of walls,
Amphitrite's destined halls,
Which her hoary sire now paves With his blue and heaming waves.	20
with his one and beaming waves.	60

Lo! the sun upsprings behind, Broad, red, radiant, half-reclined
On the level quivering line
Of the waters crystalline;
And before that chasm of light,	65
As within a furnace bright,	•
Column, tower, and dome, and spire,
Shine like obelisks of fire,
Pointing with inconstant motion
From the altar of dark ocean	70
To the sapphire-tinted skies;
As the flames of sacrifice
From the marble shrines did rise,
As to pierce the dome of gold
Where Apollo spoke of old.	75
Sun-girt City! thou hast been
Ocean's child, and then his queen;
Now is come a darker day,
And thou soon must be his prey,
If the power that raised thee here	80
Hallow so thy watery bier.	00
A less drear ruin then than now,
With thy conquest-branded brow
Stooping to the slave of slaves
From thy throne, among the waves	85
Wilt thou be,—when the sea-mew
Flies, as once before it flew,
O'er thine isles depopulate,
And all is in its ancient state,
Save where many a palace gate,	90
With green sea-flowers overgrown
Like a rock of ocean's own,
Topples o'er the abandon'd sea
As the tides change sullenly.
The fisher on his watery way	95
Wandering at the close of day,
Will spread his sail and seize his oar
Till he pass the gloomy shore,
Lest thy dead should, from their sleep	100
Bursting o'er the starlight deep,	100

Lead a rapid masque of death O'er the waters of his path.

Noon descends around me now: 'Tis the noon of autumn's glow, 105 When a soft and purple mist Like a vaporous amethyst, Or an air-dissolvéd star Mingling light and fragrance, far From the curved horizon's bound To the point of Heaven's profound, 110 Fills the overflowing sky; And the plains that silent lie Underneath; the leaves unsodden Where the infant Frost has trodden With his morning-wingéd feet 115 Whose bright print is gleaming yet; And the red and golden vines Piercing with their trellised lines The rough, dark-skirted wilderness; The dun and bladed grass no less, 120 Pointing from this hoary tower In the windless air; the flower Glimmering at my feet; the line Of the olive-sandall'd Apennine In the south dimly islanded; 125 And the Alps, whose snows are spread High between the clouds and sun; And of living things each one; And my spirit, which so long Darken'd this swift stream of song,— 130 Interpenetrated lie By the glory of the sky; Be it love, light, harmony, Odour, or the soul of all Which from Heaven like dew doth fall, 135 Or the mind which feeds this verse Peopling the lone universe.

Noon descends, and after noon Autumn's evening meets me soon.

Leading the infantine moon And that one star, which to her	140
Almost seems to minister
Half the crimson light she brings
From the sunset's radiant springs:
And the soft dreams of the morn	145
(Which like wingéd winds had borne
To that silent isle, which lies
'Mid remember'd agonies,
The frail bark of this lone being),
Pass, to other sufferers fleeing,	150
And its ancient pilot, Pain,
Sits beside the helm again.
Other flowering isles must be
In the sea of Life and Agony:
Other spirits float and flee	155
O'er that gulf: even now, perhaps,
On some rock the wild wave wraps,
With folding wings they waiting sit
For my bark, to pilot it
To some calm and blooming cove,	160
Where for me, and those I love,
May a windless bower be built,
Far from passion, pain, and guilt,
In a dell 'mid lawny hills
Which the wild sea-murmur fills,	165
And soft sunshine, and the sound
Of old forests echoing round,
And the light and smell divine,
Of all flowers that breathe and shine.	170
—We may live so happy there,	110
That the Spirits of the Air Envying us, may even entice
To our healing Paradise
The polluting multitude;
But their rage would be subdued	175
By that clime divine and calm,	-10
And the winds whose wings rain balm
On the uplifted soul, and leaves

SHELLEY

Under which the bright sea heaves; While each breathless interval 180 In their whisperings musical The inspired soul supplies With its own deep melodies; And the love which heals all strife Circling, like the breath of life, 185 All things in that sweet abode With its own mild brotherhood. They, not it, would change; and soon Every sprite beneath the moon Would repent its envy vain, 190 And the earth grow young again.

ODE TO THE WEST WIND

(1)

O wild West Wind, thou breath of Autumn's being, Thou, from whose unseen presence the leaves dead Are driven, like ghosts from an enchanter fleeing,

Yellow, and black, and pale, and heetic red, Pestilence-stricken multitudes: O thou Who chariotest to their dark wintry bed

The wingéd seeds, where they lie cold and low, Each like a corpse within its grave, until Thine azure sister of the Spring shall blow

Her clarion o'er the dreaming earth, and fill (Driving sweet buds like flocks to feed in air)
With living hues and odours plain and hill:

Wila Spirit, which art moving everywhere; Destroyer and Preserver; hear, oh, hear!

(2)

Thou on whose stream, mid the steep sky's commotion,

Loose clouds like earth's decaying leaves are shed, Shook from the tangled boughs of Heaven and Ocean,

Angels of rain and lightning: there are spread On the blue surface of thine airy surge, Like the bright hair uplifted from the head 20

Of some fierce Maenad, even from the dim verge Of the horizon to the zenith's height, The locks of the approaching storm. Thou dirge

Of the dying year, to which this closing night
Will be the dome of a vast sepulchre,
Vaulted with all thy congregated might

Of vapours, from whose solid atmosphere Black rain, and fire, and hail, will burst: oh, hear!

(3)

Thou who didst waken from his summer dreams
The blue Mediterranean, where he lay,
30
Lull'd by the coil of his crystalline streams,

Beside a pumice isle in Baiae's bay, And saw in sleep old palaces and towers Quivering within the wave's intenser day,

All overgrown with azure moss and flowers
So sweet, the sense faints picturing them! Thou
For whose path the Atlantic's level powers

Cleave themselves into chasms, while far below The sea-blooms and the oozy woods which wear The sapless foliage of the ocean, know

Thy voice, and suddenly grow grey with fear, And tremble and despoil themselves: oh, hear!

(4)

If I were a dead leaf thou mightest bear;
If I were a swift cloud to fly with thee;
A wave to pant beneath thy power, and share 45

The impulse of thy strength, only less free Than thou, O uncontrollable! If even I were as in my boyhood, and could be

The comrade of thy wanderings over Heaven,
As then, when to outstrip thy skyey speed 50
Scarce seemed a vision, I would ne'er have striven

As thus with thee in prayer in my sore need.

Oh, lift me as a wave, a leaf, a cloud!

I fall upon the thorns of life! I bleed!

 $\Lambda$  heavy weight of hours has chained and bowed One too like thee: tameless, and swift, and proud.

(5)

Make me thy lyre, even as the forest is:
What if my leaves are falling like its own!
The tumult of thy mighty harmonies

Will take from both a deep, autumnal tone, 60 Sweet though in sadness. Be thou, Spirit fierce, My spirit! Be thou me, impetuous one!

Drive my dead thoughts over the universe
Like withered leaves to quicken a new birth!
And, by the incantation of this verse,
65

Scatter, as from an unextinguished hearth Ashes and sparks, my words among mankind! Be through my lips to unawakened earth

The trumpet of a prophecy! O Wind,
If V'inter comes, can Spring be far behind?

P. B. Shelley.

NATURE AND THE POET

Suggested by a Picture of Peele Castle in a Storm, painted by Sir George Beaumont

I was thy neighbour once, thou rugged Pile!
Four summer weeks I dwelt in sight of thee
I saw thee every day; and all the while
Thy Form was sleeping on a glassy sea.

So pure the sky, so quiet was the air!
So like, so very like, was day to day!
Whene'er I look'd, thy image still was there;
It trembled, but it never pass'd away.

How perfect was the calm! It seem'd no sleep,
No mood, which season takes away, or brings:
I could have fancied that the mighty Deep
Was even the gentlest of all gentle things.

Ah! then if mine had been the Painter's hand
To express what then I saw; and add the gleam,
The light that never was on sea or land,
The consecration, and the Poet's dream,—

I would have planted thee, thou hoary Pile,
Amid a world how different from this!
Beside a sea that could not cease to smile;
On tranquil land, beneath a sky of bliss.

A picture had it been of lasting ease, Elysian quiet, without toil or strife; No motion but the moving tide, a breeze, Or merely silent Nature's breathing life.

Such, in the fond illusion of my heart,
Such picture would I at that time have made;
And seen the soul of truth in every part,
A steadfast peace that might not be betray'd.

So once it would have been,—'tis so no more;
I have submitted to a new control:
30
A power is gone, which nothing can restore;
A deep distress hath humanized my soul.

Not for a moment could I now behold
A smiling sea, and be what I have been:
The feeling of my loss will ne'er be old;
This, which I know, I speak with mind serene.

Then, Beaumont, Friend! who would have been the Friend

If he had lived, of him whom I deplore,
This work of thine I blame not, but commend;
This sea in anger, and that dismal shore.

40

O 'tis a passionate work!—yet wise and well, Well chosen is the spirit that is here; That hulk which labours in the deadly swell, This rueful sky, this pageantry of fear!

And this huge Castle, standing here sublime,
I love to see the look with which it braves,
—Cased in the unfeeling armour of old time—
The lightning, the fierce wind, and trampling waves.

Farewell, farewell the heart that lives alone,
Housed in a dream, at distance from the Kind!
Such happiness, wherever it be known,
Is to be pitied; for 'tis surely blind.

But welcome fortitude, and patient cheer,
And frequent sights of what is to be borne!
Such sights, or worse, as are before me here:
Not without hope we suffer and we mourn.

W. Wordsworth.

THE POET'S DREAM

On a poet's lips I slept
Dreaming like a love-adept
In the sound his breathing kept;
Nor seeks nor finds he mortal blisses,
But feeds on the aerial kisses 5
Of shapes that haunt thought's wildernesses.
He will watch from dawn to gloom
The lake-reflected sun illume
The yellow bees in the ivy-bloom,
Nor heed nor see what things they be;
But from these create he can 11
Forms more real than living man,
Nurslings of immortality!

P. B. SHELLEY.

278

The world is too much with us; late and soon, Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers Little we see in Nature that is ours; We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon!

This Sea that bares her bosom to the moon,
The winds that will be howling at all hours
And are up-gather'd now like sleeping flowers,
For this, for everything, we are out of tune;

It moves us not.—Great God! I'd rather be
A Pagan suckled in a creed outworn,
So might I, standing on this pleasant lea,

Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn; Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea; Or hear old Triton blow his wreathed horn.

W. Wordsworth.

WITHIN KING'S COLLEGE CHAPEL, CAMBRIDGE

Tax not the royal Saint with vain expense,
With ill-match'd aims the Architect who plann'd
(Albeit labouring for a scanty band
Of white-robed Scholars only) this immense

And glorious work of fine intelligence! 5
Give all thou canst; high Heaven rejects the lore

Of nicely-calculated less or more: So deem'd the man who fashion'd for the sense

These lofty pillars, spread that branching roof 9 Self-poised, and scoop'd into ten thousand cells, Where light and shade repose, where music dwells

Lingering—and wandering on as loth to die; Like thoughts whose very sweetness yieldeth proof That they were born for immortality.

YOUTH AND AGE

Verse, a breeze 'mid blossoms straying,
Where Hope clung feeding, like a bee—
Both were mine! Life went a-maying
With Nature, Hope, and Poesy,
When I was young!

When I was young?—Ah, woeful When!
Ah! for the change 'twixt Now and Then!
This breathing house not built with hands,
This body that does me grievous wrong,
O'er aery cliffs and glittering sands
How lightly then it flash'd along:
Like those trim skiffs, unknown of yore,
On winding lakes and rivers wide,

That ask no aid of sail or oar, That fear no spite of wind or tide! Nought cared this body for wind or weathe When Youth and I lived in't together.	15 e r
Flowers are lovely; Love is flower-like; Friendship is a sheltering tree; O! the joys, that came down shower-like, Of Friendship, Love, and Liberty, Ere I was old!	19
Ere I was old? Ah woeful Ere, Which tells me, Youth's no longer here: O Youth! for years so many and sweet 'Tis known that Thou and I were one, I'll think it but a fond conceit—	25
It cannot be that thou art gone! Thy vesper bell hath not yet toll'd:— And thou wert ay a masker bold! What strange disguise hast now put on To make believe that thou art gone? I see these locks in silvery slips,	30
This drooping gait, this alter'd size: But Springtide blossoms on thy lips, And tears take sunshine from thine eyes Life is but thought: so think I will That Youth and I are housemates still.	35 !
Dew-drops are the gems of morning, But the tears of mournful eve! Where no hope is, life's a warning That only serves to make us grieve, When we are old:	40
—That only serves to make us grieve With oft and tedious taking-leave, Like some poor nigh-related guest That may not rudely be dismist, Yet hath outstay'd his welcome while, And tells the jest without the smile.	45

S. T. COLERIDGE.

THE TWO APRIL MORNINGS

We walk'd along, while bright and red Uprose the morning sun; And Matthew stopp'd, he look'd, and said, 'The will of God be done!'
A village schoolmaster was he, With hair of glittering grey; As blithe a man as you could see On a spring holiday.	5
And on that morning, through the grass And by the steaming rills We travell'd merrily, to pass A day among the hills.	10
'Our work,' said I, 'was well begun; Then, from thy breast what thought, Beneath so beautiful a sun, So sad a sigh has brought?'	15
A second time did Matthew stop; And fixing still his eye Upon the eastern mountain-top, To me he made reply:	20
'Yon cloud with that long purple cleft Brings fresh into my mind A day like this, which I have left Full thirty years behind.
'And just above yon slope of corn Such colours, and no other, Were in the sky, that April morn, Of this the very brother.	25
'With rod and line I sued the sport Which that sweet season gave, And, to the churchyard come, stopp'd shor Beside my daughter's grave.	30 t

'Nine summers had she scarcely seen, The pride of all the vale; And then she sang;—she would have been A very nightingale.	36
'Six feet in earth my Emma lay; And yet I loved her more— For so it seem'd,—than till that day I e'er had loved before.	40
<ul> <li>And turning from her grave, I met Beside the churchyard yew</li> <li>A blooming Girl, whose hair was wet With points of morning dew.</li> <li>A basket on her head she bare; Her brow was smooth and white:</li> <li>To see a child so very fair,</li> </ul>	45
It was a pure delight!  'No fountain from its rocky cave E'er tripp'd with foot so free; She seem'd as happy as a wave That dances on the sea.	50
'There came from me a sigh of pain Which I could ill confine; I looked at her, and looked again: And did not wish her mine!'	55
—Matthew is in his grave, yet now Methinks I see him stand As at that moment, with a bough Of wilding in his hand.  W. Wordsworth.	60

A pair of friends, though I was young,
And Matthew seventy-two.

WORDSWORTH	305
We lay beneath a spreading oak, Beside a mossy seat; And from the turf a fountain broke And gurgled at our feet.	5
'Now, Matthew!' said I, 'let us match This water's pleasant tune With some old border-song, or eatch That suits a summer's noon;	10

THE RIVER OF LIFE

The more we live, more brief appear
Our life's succeeding stages:
A day to childhood seems a year,
And years like passing ages.

The gladsome current of our youth
Ere passion yet disorders,
Steals lingering like a river smooth
Along its grassy borders.

But as the careworn cheek grows wan,
And sorrow's shafts fly thicker,
Ye stars, that measure life to man,
Why seem your courses quicker?

when joys have lost their bloom and	breath,
And life itself is vapid,
Why, as we reach the Falls of death,	13
Feel we its tide more rapid?

It may be strange—yet who would change
Time's course to slower speeding,
When one by one our friends have gone
And left our bosoms bleeding?	20

Heaven gives our years of fading strength
Indemnifying fleetness;
And those of youth, a seeming length,
Proportion'd to their sweetness.

T. CAMPBELL.

THE HUMAN SEASONS

Four seasons fill the measure of the year;
There are four seasons in the mind of man:
He has his lusty Spring, when fancy clear
Takes in all beauty with an easy span:

He has his Summer, when luxuriously
Spring's honey'dcud of youthful thought he loves
To ruminate, and by such dreaming nigh
His nearest unto heaven: quiet coves
His goul has in its Autumn, when his wings

His soul has in its Autumn, when his wings
He furleth close; contented so to look
On mists in idleness—to let fair things

Pass by unheeded as a threshold brook:

He has his Winter too of pale misfeature, Or else he would forgo his mortal nature.

J. Keats.

A LAMENT

O World! O Life! O Time! On whose last steps I climb, Trembling at that where I had stood before; When will return the glory of your prime? No more—Oh, never more!

Out of the day and night A joy has taken flight:

Fresh spring, and summer, and winter hoar Move my faint heart with grief, but with delight No more—Oh, never more!

P. B. SHELLEY.

My heart leaps up when I behold
A rainbow in the sky:
So was it when my life began,
So is it now I am a man,
So be it when I shall grow old,
Or let me die!
The Child is father of the Man:
And I could wish my days to be Bound each to each by natural piety.

ODE ON INTIMATIONS OF IMMORTALITY FROM RECOLLECTIONS OF EARLY CHILDHOOD

There was a time when meadow, grove, and stream
The earth, and every common sight,
To me did seem

Apparell'd in celestial light, The glory and the freshness of a dream. It is not now as it hath been of yore;— Turn wheresoe'er I may,

By night or day,

The things which I have seen I now can see no more.

The rainbow comes and goes,
And lovely is the rose;
The moon doth with delight
Look round her when the heavens are bare;

Waters on a starry night

Are beautiful and fair;

The sunshine is a glorious birth;
But yet I know, where'er I go,
That there hath pass'd away a glory from the earth.

Now, while the birds thus sing a joyous song, And while the young lambs bound

As to the tabor's sound,
To me alone there came a thought of grief:
A timely uttowned gave that thought relief

A timely utterance gave that thought relief,
And I again am strong.

And I again am strong.

24
The cataracts blow their trumpets from the steep,
No more shall grief of mine the season wrong:
I hear the echoes through the mountains throng,

The winds come to me from the fields of sleep, And all the earth is gay;

> Land and sea Give themselves up to jollity,

And with the heart of May Doth every beast keep holiday;— Thou child of joy, Shout round me, let me hear thy shouts, thou hap Shepherd-boy!	ру 35
Ye blesséd Creatures, I have heard the call Ye to each other make; I see
The heavens laugh with you in your jubilee;
My heart is at your festival, My head hath its coronal,	40
The fulness of your bliss, I feel—I feel it all.	-1()
O evil day! if I were sullen
While Earth herself is adorning
This sweet May-morning;
And the children are culling	45
On every side
In a thousand valleys far and wide
Fresh flowers; while the sun shines warm,
And the babe leaps up on his mother's arm :— I hear, I hear, with joy I hear!	50
But there 's a tree, of many, one,	50
A single field which I have look'd upon,
Both of them speak of something that is gone:
The pansy at my feet
Doth the same tale repeat:	5 5
Whither is fled the visionary gleam?
Where is it now, the glory and the dream?
Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting;
The Soul that rises with us, our life's Star,
Hath had elsewhere its setting,	60
And cometh from afar;
Not in entire forgetfulness, And not in utter nakedness,
But trailing clouds of glory do we come
From God, who is our home:	65
Heaven lies about us in our infancy!	00
Shades of the prison-house begin to close
Upon the growing Boy.

He sees it in his joy; The Youth, who daily farther from the east Must travel, still is Nature's priest, And by the vision splendid Is on his way attended; At length the Man perceives it die away,  75
And fade into the light of common day.  Earth fills her lap with pleasures of her own;
Yearnings she hath in her own natural kind, And, even with something of a mother's mind And no unworthy aim, The homely nurse doth all she can To make her foster-child, her inmate, Man, Forget the glories he hath known, And that imperial palace whence he came.
Behold the Child among his new-born blisses, A six years' darling of a pigmy size! 86 See, where 'mid work of his own hand he lies, Fretted by sallies of his mother's kisses,
With light upon him from his father's eyes! See, at his feet, some little plan or chart, 90 Some fragment from his dream of human life, Shaped by himself with newly-learnéd art; A wedding or a festival, A mourning or a funeral;
And this hath now his heart, And unto this he frames his song: Then will he fit his tongue To dialogues of business, love, or strife; But it will not be long
Ere this be thrown aside, 100 And with new joy and pride
The little actor cons another part; Filling from time to time his 'humorous stage' With all the Persons, down to palsied Age,
That life brings with her in her equipage; As if his whole vocation Were endless imitation.

Thou, whose exterior semblance doth belie Thy soul's immensity; Thou best Philosopher, who yet dost keep 110 Thy heritage, thou Eye among the blind, That, deaf and silent, read'st the eternal deep, Haunted for ever by the eternal Mind,-Mighty Prophet! Seer blest! On whom those truths do rest 115 Which we are toiling all our lives to find, In darkness lost, the darkness of the grave; Thou, over whom thy Immortality Broods like the Day, a Master o'er a Slave, 120 A Presence which is not to be put by; Thou little Child, yet glorious in the might Of heaven-born freedom on thy being's height, Why with such earnest pains dost thou provoke The years to bring the inevitable voke, Thus blindly with thy blessedness at strife? Full soon thy Soul shall have her earthly freight, And custom lie upon thee with a weight Heavy as frost, and deep almost as life!

O joy! that in our embers
Is something that doth live,
That Nature yet remembers
What was so fugitive!
The thought of our past years in me doth breed

Perpetual benediction: not indeed
For that which is most worthy to be blest,
Delight and liberty, the simple creed
Of Childhood, whether busy or at rest,
With new-fledged hope still fluttering in his breast:

—Not for these I raise
The song of thanks and praise;
But for those obstinate questionings
Of sense and outward things,
Fallings from us, vanishings,
Blank misgivings of a creature
Moving about in worlds not realized,

145

High instincts, before which our mortal nature
Did tremble like a guilty thing surprised:
But for those first affections,
Those shadowy recollections,
Which, be they what they may,	150
Are yet the fountain-light of all our day,
Are yet a master-light of all our seeing;
Uphold us, cherish, and have power to ma	ake
Our noisy years seem moments in the being
Of the eternal silence: truths that wake,	155
To perish never;
Which neither listlessness, nor mad endeavour,	,
Nor man nor boy
Nor all that is at enmity with joy,
Can utterly abolish or destroy!	160
Hence in a season of calm weather
Though inland far we be,
Our souls have sight of that immortal sea
Which brought us hither;
Can in a moment travel thither—	165
And see the children sport upon the shore,
And hear the mighty waters rolling evermore.
Then, sing ye birds, sing, sing a joyous song!
And let the young lambs bound
As to the tabor's sound!	170
We, in thought, will join your throng
Ye that pipe and ye that play,
Ye that through your hearts to-day
Feel the gladness of the May!
What though the radiance which was once bright	so
Be now for ever taken from my sight,	176
Though nothing can bring back the hour	110
Of splendour in the grass, of glory in the flower	r:
We will grieve not, rather find	-,
Strength in what remains behind;	180
In the primal sympathy	-00
Which having been must ever be;
In the soothing thoughts that spring
and of the state of the spring

Out of human suffering; In the faith that looks through death, In years that bring the philosophic mind. 186

And O, ye Fountains, Meadows, Hills, and Groves, Forbode not any severing of our loves!

Yet in my heart of hearts I feel your might;
I only have relinquish'd one delight 190
To live beneath your more habitual sway;
I love the brooks which down their channels fret, Even more than when I tripp'd lightly as they;
The innocent brightness of a new-born day
Is lovely yet; 195

The clouds that gather round the setting sun Do take a sober colouring from an eye That hath kept watch o'er man's mortality; Another race hath been, and other palms are won. Thanks to the human heart by which we live, Thanks to its tenderness, its joys, and fears, 201 To me the meanest flower that blows can give Thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears.

W. Wordsworth.

Music, when soft voices die, Vibrates in the memory— Odours, when sweet violets sicken, Live within the sense they quicken.

Rose leaves, when the rose is dead, Are heaped for the beloved's bed; And so thy thoughts, when thou art gone, Love itself shall slumber on.

I loved him not; and yet now he is gone

I feel I am alone.

I checked him while he spoke; yet could he speak,

Alas! I would not check.

For reasons not to love him once I sought,

And wearied all my thought

To vex myself and him: I now would give
My love, could he but live
Who lately lived for me, and, when he found
'Twas vain, in holy ground	10
He hid his face amid the shades of death.
I waste for him my breath
Who wasted his for me: but mine returns,
And this lorn bosom burns
With stifling heat, heaving it up in sleep,	15
And waking me to weep
Tears that had melted his soft heart: for years	s
Wept he as bitter tears.
Merciful God! such was his latest prayer,
These may she never share!	20
Quieter is his breath, his breast more cold,
Than daisies in the mould,
Where children spell, athwart the churchyard ga	ite,

TO ROBERT BROWNING

There is delight in singing, tho' none hear Beside the singer: and there is delight In praising, tho' the praiser sit alone And see the praised far off him, far above. Shakespeare is not our poet, but the world's, 5 Therefore on him no speech! and brief for thee, Browning! Since Chaucer was alive and hale, No man hath walked along our roads with step So active, so inquiring eye, or tongue So varied in discourse. But warner climes 10 Give brighter plumage, stronger wing: the breeze Of Alpine heights thou playest with, borne on Beyond Sorrento and Amalfi, where The Siren waits thee, singing song for song.

TO A WATERFOWL

Whither, midst falling dew,
While glow the heavens with the last steps of day,
Far, through their rosy depths, dost thou pursue
Thy solitary way?

Vainly the fowler's eye 5
Might mark thy distant flight to do thee wrong,
As, darkly seen against the crimson sky,
Thy figure floats along.

Seek'st thou the plashy brink
Of weedy lake, or marge of river wide,
Or where the rocking billows rise and sink
On the chafed ocean side?

There is a Power whose care
Teaches thy way along that pathless coast,—
The desert and illimitable air,—
Lone wandering, but not lost.

15

10

All day thy wings have fanned,
At that far height, the cold thin atmosphere;
Yet stoop not, weary, to the welcome land,
Though the dark night is near.

And soon that toil shall end;
Soon shalt thou find a summer home and rest,
And scream among thy fellows; reeds shall bend,
Soon, o'er thy sheltered nest.

Thou'rt gone, the abyss of heaven

25
Hath swallowed up thy form; yet on my heart
Deeply hath sunk the lesson thou hast given,

And shall not soon depart.

He who, from zone to zone,
Guides through the boundless sky thy certain flight,
In the long way that I must tread alone,
Will lead my steps aright.

THE WAR SONG OF DINAS VAWR

The mountain sheep are sweeter,
But the valley sheep are fatter;
We therefore deemed it meeter
To earry off the latter.
We made an expedition;
We met a host, and quelled it;
We forced a strong position,

And killed the men who held it.

On Dyfed's richest valley,	10
Where herds of kine were browsing, We made a mighty sally	10
To furnish our carousing.
Fierce warriors rushed to meet us;
We met them, and o'erthrew them:
They struggled hard to beat us;	15
But we conquered them, and slew them.
As we drove our prize at leisure,
The king marched forth to catch us:
His rage surpassed all measure,
But his people could not match us.	20
He fled to his hall-pillars;
And, ere our force we led off,
Some sacked his house and cellars,
While others cut his head off.
We there, in strife bewildering,	25
Spilt blood enough to swim in:
We orphaned many children,
And widowed many women.
The eagles and the ravens
We glutted with our foemen;	30
The heroes and the cravens,
The spearmen and the bowmen.
We brought away from battle,
And much their land bemoaned them,
Two thousand head of cattle,	35
And the head of him who owned them:
Ednyfed, King of Dyfed,
His head was borne before us;
His wine and beasts supplied our feasts,	10
And his overthrow, our chorus.	40

THREE MEN OF GOTHAM

Seamen three! What men be ye?
Gotham's three wise men we be.
Whither in your bowl so free?
To rake the moon from out the sea.
The bowl goes trim. The moon doth shine.
And our ballast is old wine.

Who art thou, so fast adrift?
I am he they call Old Care.
Here on board we will thee lift.
No: I may not enter there.
Wherefore so? "Tis Jove's decree,
In a bowl Care may not be.
In a bowl Care may not be.

Fear ye not the waves that roll?
No: in charméd bowl we swim.
What the charm that floats the bowl?
Water may not pass the brim.
The bowl goes trim. The moon doth shine.
And our ballast is old wine.

20
And your ballast is old wine.

THE GRAVE OF LOVE

I dug, beneath the cypress shade,
What well might seem an elfin's grave;
And every pledge in earth I laid,
That erst thy false affection gave.

I pressed them down the sod beneath;
I placed one mossy stone above;
And twined the rose's fading wreath
Around the sepulchre of love.

Frail as thy love, the flowers were dead, Ere yet the evening sun was set: But years shall see the cypress spread, Immutable as my regret.

A JACOBITE'S EPITAPH

To my true king I offered free from stain Courage and faith; vain faith, and courage vain. For him I threw lands, honours, wealth, away, And one dear hope, that was more prized than they. For him I languished in a foreign clime, Grey-haired with sorrow in my manhood's prime; Heard on Lavernia Scargill's whispering trees. And pined by Arno for my lovelier Tees; Beheld each night my home in fevered sleep, Each morning started from the dream to weep; Till God, who saw me tried too sorely, gave 11 The resting-place I asked, an early grave. O thou, whom chance leads to this nameless stone, From that proud country which was once mine own, By those white cliffs I never more must see, By that dear language which I spake like thee, Forget all feuds, and shed one English tear O'er English dust. A broken heart lies here. LORD MACAULAY.

THE BATTLE OF NASEBY

By Obadiah Bind-their-kings-in-chains-and-theirnobles-with-links-of-iron, serjeant in Ireton's regiment Oh! wherefore come ye forth, in triumph from the North.

With your hands, and your feet, and your raiment all red?

And wherefore doth your rout send forth a joyous shout?

And whence be the grapes of the wine-press which ye tread?

Oh, evil was the root, and bitter was the fruit, 5
And crimson was the juice of the vintage that we trod:

For we trampled on the throng of the haughty and the strong,

Who sate in the high places, and slew the saints of God.

It was about the noon of a glorious day of June,
That we saw their banners dance and their cuirasses shine,
10

And the Man of Blood was there, with his long essenced hair.

And Astley, and Sir Marmaduke, and Rupert of the Rhine.

Like a servant of the Lord, with his Bible and his sword.

The General rode along us to form us to the fight,
When a murmuring sound broke out, and swell'd into a shout.

15

Among the godless horsemen upon the tyrant's right.

And hark! like the roar of the billows on the shore,
The cry of battle rises along their charging line!
For God! for the Cause! for the Church! for the Laws!

For Charles King of England, and Rupert of the Rhine! 20

The furious German comes, with his clarions and his drums,

His bravoes of Alsatia, and pages of Whitehall; They are bursting on our flanks. Grasp your pikes, close your ranks;

For Rupert never comes but to conquer or to fall.

They are here! They rush on! We are broken!
We are gone!
25
Our left is borne before them like stubble on the blast.

O Lord, put forth thy might! O Lord, defend the right!

Stand back to back, in God's name, and fight it to the last.

Stout Skippon hath a wound; the centre hath given ground:

Hark! hark!—What means the trampling of horsemen on our rear?

Whose banner do I see, boys? 'Tis he, thank God! 'tis he, boys.

Bear up another minute: brave Oliver is here.

Their heads all stooping low, their points all in a row, Like a whirlwind on the trees, like a deluge on the dykes.

Our cuirassiers have burst on the ranks of the Accurst.

And at a shock have scattered the forest of his pikes.

Fast, fast, the gallants ride, in some safe nook to hide Their coward heads, predestined to rot on Temple Bar:

And he—he turns, he flies:—shame on those cruel eyes

That bore to look on torture, and dare not look on war.

40

Ho! comrades, scour the plain; and, ere ye strip the slain.

First give another stab to make your search secure, Then shake from sleeves and pockets their broadpieces and lockets,

The tokens of the wanton, the plunder of the poor.

Fools! your doublets shone with gold, and your hearts were gay and bold,

45

When you kissed your lily hands to your lemans to-day;

And to-morrow shall the fox, from her chambers in the rocks,

Lead forth her tawny cubs to how labove the prey.

Where be your tongues that late mocked at heaven and hell and fate,

And the fingers that once were so busy with your blades, 50

Your perfum'd satin clothes, your catches and your oaths,

Your stage-plays and your sonnets, your diamonds and your spades?

Down, down, for ever down with the mitre and the crown,

With the Belial of the Court, and the Mammon of the Pope;

There is woe in Oxford Halls; there is wail in Durham's Stalls: 55

The Jesuit smites his bosom; the Bishop rends his cope.

And She of the seven hills shall mourn her children's ills,

And tremble when she thinks on the edge of England's sword;

And the Kings of earth in fear shall shudder when they hear

What the hand of God hath wrought for the Houses and the Word. 60

BLACKMWORE MAIDENS

The primrwose in the sheade do blow,
The cowslip in the zun,
The thyme upon the down do grow,
The clote where streams do run;
An' where do pretty maïdens grow

An' blow, but where the tow'r Do rise among the bricken tuns, In Blackmwore by the Stour? 5

If you could zee their comely gaït, An' pretty feäces' smiles, A-trippèn on so light o' waïght, An' steppèn off the stiles;	10
A-gwaïn to church, as bells do swing An' ring within the tow'r, You'd own the pretty maïdens' pleace Is Blackmwore by the Stour.	15
If you vrom Wimborne took your road, To Stower or Paladore, An' all the farmers' housen show'd Their daeters at the door; You'd cry to bachelors at hwome— 'Here, come: 'ithin an hour You'll vind ten maïdens to your mind, In Blackmwore by the Stour.'	20
An' if you looked 'ithin their door, To zee em in their pleace,	25
A-doèn housework up avore Their smilèn mother's feäce; You'd cry—'Why, if a man would wive An' thrive, 'ithout a dow'r, Then let en look en out a wife In Blackmwore by the Stour.'	30
As I upon my road did pass A school-house back in May There out upon the beäten grass Wer maïdens at their play; An' as the pretty souls did twile An' smile, I cried, 'The flow'r	35

THE WIFE A-LOST

Since I noo mwore do zee your feäce, Up steärs or down below, I'll zit me in the lwonesome pleäce, Where flat-bough'd beech do grow; Below the beeches' bough, my love, Where you did never come, An' I don't look to meet ye now, As I do look at hwome.	5
Since you noo mwore be at my zide, In walks in zummer het, I'll goo alwone where mist do ride, Droo trees a-drippèn wet; Below the raïn-wet bough, my love,	10
Where you did never come, An' I don't grieve to miss ye now, As I do grieve at hwome.	15
Since now bezide my dinner-bwoard Your vaïce do never sound, I'll eat the bit I can avword A-vield upon the ground; Below the darksome bough, my love, Where you did never dine, An' I don't grieve to miss ye now, As I at hwome do pine.	20
Since I do miss your vaïce an' feäce In praÿer at eventide, I'll praÿ wi' oone sad vaïce vor greäce	25

THE NAMELESS ONE

Roll forth, my song, like the rushing river, That sweeps along to the mighty sea; God will inspire me while I deliver My soul of thee!

Tell thou the world, when my bones lie whitening
Amid the last homes of youth and eld,
6
That once there was one whose veins ran lightning
No eye beheld.

Tell how his boyhood was one drear night-hour, How shone for him, through his griefs and gloom, No star of all heaven sends to light our Path to the tomb.

Roll on, my song, and to after ages

Tell how, disdaining all earth can give,
He would have taught men, from wisdom's pages,
The way to live.

16

And tell how trampled, derided, hated,
And worn by weakness, disease, and wrong,
He fled for shelter to God, who mated
His soul with song—

With song which alway, sublime or vapid,
Flowed like a rill in the morning-beam,
Perchance not deep, but intense and rapid—
A mountain stream.

Tell how this Nameless, condemned for years long To herd with demons from hell beneath, 26 Sawthingsthatmadehim, with groans and tears, long For even death.

Go on to tell how, with genius wasted,
Betrayed in friendship, befooled in love, 30
With spirit shipwrecked, and young hopes blasted,
He still, still strove;

133

20

Till spent with toil, dreeing death for others, And some whose hands should have wrought for

35

(If children live not for sires and mothers), His mind grew dim;

him

And he fell far through that pit abysmal, The gulf and grave of Maginn and Burns, And pawned his soul for the devil's dismal Stock of returns;	40
But yet redeemed it in days of darkness, And shapes and signs of the final wrath, When death, in hideous and ghastly starkness, Stood on his path.
And tell how now, amid wreck and sorrow, And want, and sickness, and houseless nights He bides in calmness the silent morrow, That no ray lights.	45 5,
And lives he still, then? Yes! Old and hoary At thirty-nine. from despair and woc, He lives, enduring what future story Will never know.	50
Him grant a grave to, ye pitying noble, Deep in your bosoms: there let him dwell! He, too, had tears for all souls in trouble Here, and in hell.  J. C. MANGAN.	55 •

AND SHALL TRELAWNY DIE?

A good sword and a trusty hand! A merry heart and true! King James's men shall understand What Cornish lads can do.

And have they fixed the where and when? And shall Trelawny die? 6 Here's twenty thousand Cornish men Will know the reason why!

Out spake their captain brave and bold, A merry wight was he: 'If London Tower were Michael's hold, We'll set Trelawny free!	10
'We'll cross the Tamar, land to land, The Severn is no stay,— With "one and all," and hand in hand, And who shall bid us nay?	15
'And when we come to London Wall, A pleasant sight to view, Come forth! Come forth, ye cowards all, Here's men as good as you.	20

Those Shandon bells, Whose sounds so wild would, In the days of childhood, Fling round my cradle Their magic spells.	5

With thy bells of Shandon, That sound so grand on The pleasant waters Of the River Lee.	15

FROM 'SONNETS FROM THE PORTUGUESE'

I thought once how Theoritus had sung Of the sweet years, the dear and wished-for years, Who each one in a gracious hand appears To bear a gift for mortals, old or young: And, as I mused it in his antique tongue. 5 I saw, in gradual vision through my tears,

The sweet, sad years, the melancholy years, Those of my own life, who by turns had flung A shadow across me. Straightway I was 'ware, So weeping, how a mystic Shape did move

Behind me, and drew me backward by the hair; And a voice said in mastery, while I strove, ... 'Guess now who holds thee?' - 'Death,' I said. But there.

The silver answer rang, . . . 'Not Death, but Love.

310

What can I give thee back, O liberal And princely giver, who hast brought the gold And purple of thine heart, unstained, untold, And laid them on the outside of the wall For such as I to take or leave withal, 5 In unexpected largesse? am I cold, Ungrateful, that for these most manifold High gifts, I render nothing back at all?

Not so; not cold,—but very poor instead.

Ask God who knows. For frequent tears have run
The colours from my life, and left so dead

And pale a stuff, it were not fitly done
To give the same as pillow to thy head.

Go farther! let it serve to trample on.

311

Yet love, mere love, is beautiful indeed
And worthy of acceptation. Fire is bright,
Let temple burn, or flax. An equal light
Leaps in the flame from cedar-plank or weed.
And love is fire; and when I say at need 5
I love thee ... mark!...I love thee!... in thy sight
I stand transfigured, glorified aright,
With conscience of the new rays that proceed
Out of my face toward thine. There's nothing low
In love, when love the lowest: meanest creatures
Who love God, God accepts while loving so. 11
And what I feel, across the inferior features
Of what I am, doth flash itself, and show
How that great work of Love enhances Nature's,

312

If thou must love me, let it be for naught
Except for love's sake only. Do not say
'I love her for her smile...her look...her way
Of speaking gently,...for a trick of thought
That falls in well with mine, and certes brought
A sense of pleasant ease on such a day'— 6
For these things in themselves, Belovéd, may
Be changed, or change for thee,—and love, so wrought,
May be unwrought so. Neither love me for

May be unwrought so. Neither love me for Thine own dear pity's wiping my checks dry,—A creature might forget to weep, who bore 11 Thy comfort long, and lose thy love thereby! But love me for love's sake, that evermore Thou mayst love on, through love's eternity.

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways.

I love thee to the depth and breadth and height My soul can reach, when feeling out of sight For the ends of Being and ideal Grace.

I love thee to the level of every day's 5 Most quiet need, by sun and candlelight.

I love thee freely, as men strive for Right;

I love thee purely, as they turn from Praise.

I love thee with the passion put to use In my old griefs, and with my childhood's faith.

I love thee with a love I seemed to lose 11 With mylost saints,—I love thee with the breath, Smiles, tears, of all my life!—and, if God choose, I shall but love thee better after death.

E. B. Browning.

A MUSICAL INSTRUMENT

What was he doing, the great god Pan,
Down in the reeds by the river?

Spreading ruin and scattering ban,
Splashing and paddling with hoofs of a goat,
And breaking the golden lilies afloat
With the dragon-fly on the river.

He tore out a reed, the great god Pan,
From the deep cool bed of the river:
The limpid water turbidly ran,
And the broken lilies a-dying lay,
And the dragon-fly had fled away,
Ere he brought it out of the river.

High on the shore sate the great god Pan,
While turbidly flowed the river;
And hacked and hewed as a great god can,
With his hard bleak steel at the patient reed,
Till there was not a sign of a leaf indeed
To prove it fresh from the river.

He cut it short, did the great god Pan (How tall it stood in the river!), 20
Then drew the pith, like the heart of a man,
Steadily from the outside ring,
And notched the poor dry empty thing
In holes, as he sate by the river.

'This is the way,' laughed the great god Pan
(Laughed while he sate by the river), 26
'The only way, since gods began
To make sweet music, they could succeed.'
Then, dropping his mouth to a hole in the reed,
He blew in power by the river. 30

Sweet, sweet, sweet, O Pan!
Piercing sweet by the river!
Blinding sweet, O great god Pan!
The sun on the hill forgot to die,
And the lilies revived, and the dragon-fly
Came back to dream on the river.

Yet half a beast is the great god Pan,
To laugh as he sits by the river,
Making a poet out of a man:
The true gods sigh for the cost and pain,—
For the reed which grows nevermore again
As a reed with the reeds in the river.

E. B. Browning.

THE SLAVE'S DREAM

Beside the ungathered rice he lay,
His sickle in his hand;
His breast was bare, his matted hair
Was buried in the sand.
Again, in the mist and shadow of sleep,
He saw his Native Land.

Wide through the landscape of his dreams The lordly Niger flowed; Beneath the palm-trees on the plain Once more a king he strode; And heard the tinkling caravans Descend the mountain-road.	10
He saw once more his dark-eyed queen Among her children stand; They clasped his neck, they kissed his cheeks They held him by the hand!— A tear burst from the sleeper's lids And fell into the sand.	s, 16
<ul> <li>And then at furious speed he rode     Along the Niger's bank;</li> <li>His bridle-reins were golden chains,     And, with a martial clank,</li> <li>At each leap he could feel his scabbard of ste     Smiting his stallion's flank.</li> </ul>	20 eel
Before him, like a blood-red flag, The bright flamingoes flew; From morn till night he followed their flight O'er plains where the tamarind grew, Till he saw the roofs of Caffre huts, And the ocean rose to view.	25 , 30
At night he heard the lion roar, And the hyena scream, And the river-horse, as he crushed the reeds Beside some hidden stream; And it passed, like a glorious roll of drums, Through the triumph of his dream.	35
The forests, with their myriad tongues, Shouted of liberty; And the Blast of the Desert cried aloud, With a voice so wild and free, That he started in his sleep and smiled At their tempestuous glee.	40

He did not feel the driver's whip,

Nor the burning heat of day;

For Death had illumined the Land of Sleep,

And his lifeless body lay

40

A worn-out fetter, that the soul

Had broken and thrown away!

H. W. LONGFELLOW.

THE ARSENAL AT SPRINGFIELD

This is the Arsenal. From floor to ceiling, Like a huge organ, rise the burnished arms; But from their silent pipes no anthem pealing Startles the villages with strange alarms.

Ah! what a sound will rise, how wild and dreary, When the death-angel touches those swift keys! What loud lament and dismal Miserere Will mingle with their awful symphonies!

I hear even now the infinite fierce chorus,
The cries of agony, the endless groan,
Which, through the ages that have gone before us,
In long reverberations reach our own.

On helm and harness rings the Saxon hammer, Through Cimbric forest roars the Norseman's song,

And loud, amid the universal clamour,
O'er distant deserts sounds the Tartar gong.

I hear the Florentine, who from his palace Wheels out his battle-bell with dreadful din, And Aztec priests upon their teocallis 19 Beat the wild war-drums made of serpent's skin;

The tumult of each sacked and burning village;
The shout that every prayer for mercy drowns;
The soldiers' revels in the midst of pillage;
The wail of famine in beleaguered towns;

The bursting shell, the gateway wrenched asun	der,
The rattling musketry, the clashing blade;	26
And ever and anon, in tones of thunder,
The diapason of the cannonade.

Is it, O man, with such discordant noises,
With such accursed instruments as these,
Thou drownest Nature's sweet and kindly voices,
And jarrest the celestial harmonies?

Were half the power that fills the world with terror, Were half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts,

Given to redeem the human mind from error, 35 There were no need of arsenals or forts:

The warrior's name would be a name abhorred!

And every nation that should lift again

Its hand against a brother, on its forehead 39 Would wear for evermore the curse of Cain!

Down the dark future, through long generations, The echoing sounds grow fainter and then cease; And like a bell, with solemn, sweet vibrations, I hear once more the voice of Christ say, 'Peace!'

Peace! and no longer from its brazen portals 45
The blast of War's great organ shakes the skies!
But beautiful as songs of the immortals,
The holy melodies of love arise.

H. W. Longfellow.

CHILDREN

Come to me, O ye children!

For I hear you at your play,
And the questions that perplexed me
Have vanished quite away.

Ye open the eastern windows,
That look towards the sun,
Where thoughts are singing swallows,
And the brooks of morning run.

In your hearts are the birds and the sunshing In your thoughts the brooklet's flow; But in mine is the wind of Autumn, And the first fall of the snow.	ne, 10
Ah! what would the world be to us If the children were no more? We should dread the desert behind us Worse than the dark before.	15
What the leaves are to the forest, With light and air for food, Ere their sweet and tender juices Have been hardened into wood,	20
That to the world are children; Through them it feels the glow Of a brighter and sunnier climate Than reaches the trunks below.
Come to me, O ye children! And whisper in my ear What the birds and the winds are singing In your sunny atmosphere.	25
For what are all our contrivings, And the wisdom of our books, When compared with your caresses, And the gladness of your looks?	30

For ye are living poems,
And all the rest are dead.
H. W. Longfellow.

35

318

Ye are better than all the ballads That ever were sung or said;

I do not love thee !—no! I do not love thee! And yet when thou art absent I am sad; And envy even the bright blue sky above thee, Whose quiet stars may see thee and be glad.

I do not love thee !--yet, I know not why, Whate'er thou dost seems still well done, to me: And often in my solitude I sigh

That those I do love are not more like thee!

I do not love thee !--yet, when thou art gone, I hate the sound (though those who speak be dear) Which breaks the lingering echo of the tone Thy voice of music leaves upon my ear.

I do not love thee !—yet thy speaking eyes, With their deep, bright, and most expressive blue, Between me and the midnight heaven arise, Oftener than any eyes I ever knew.

I know I do not love thee! yet, alas! Others will scarcely trust my candid heart; And oft I catch them smiling as they pass, Because they see me gazing where thou art. 20

Awake! for Morning in the Bowl of Night Has flung the Stone that puts the Stars to Flight: And Lo! the Hunter of the East has caught The Sultan's Turret in a Noose of Light.

Dreaming when Dawn's Left Hand was in the Sky I heard a Voice within the Tavern cry, 'Awake, my Little ones, and fill the Cup 'Before Life's Liquor in its Cup be dry.'

Think, in this batter'd Caravanserai Whose Doorways are alternate Night and Day, How Sultán after Sultán with his Pomp Abode his Hour or two, and went his way.

17

They say the Lion and the Lizard keep 65 The Courts where Jamshýd gloried and drank deep: And Bahrám, that great Hunter—the Wild Ass Stamps o'er his Head, and he lies fast asleep.

18

I sometimes think that never blows so red
The Rose as where some buried Caesar bled; 70
That every Hyacinth the Garden wears
Dropt in its Lap from some once lovely Head.

19

And this delightful Herb whose tender Green Fledges the River's Lip on which we lean—Ah, lean upon it lightly! for who knows From what once lovely Lip it springs unseen!

വ

Ah, my Belovéd, fill the Cup that clears
To-day of past Regrets and future Fears—
To-morrow?—Why, To-morrow I may be Myself with Yesterday's Sev'n Thousand Years.

21

Lo! some we loved, the loveliest and best 81
That Time and Fate of all their Vintage prest,
Have drunk their Cup a Round or two before
And one by one crept silently to Rest.

99

And we, that now make merry in the Room 85 They left, and Summer dresses in new Bloom, Ourselves must we beneath the Couch of Earth Descend, ourselves to make a Couch—for whom?

23

Ah, make the most of what we yet may spend, Before we too into the Dust descend; 90 Dust into Dust, and under Dust, to lie, Sans Wine, sans Song, sans Singer, and—sans End!

24

Alike for those who for To-DAY prepare, And those that after a To-MORROW stare, A Muezzín from the Tower of Darkness cries, 95 'Fools! your Reward is neither Here nor There!.'

Why, all the Saints and Sages who discuss'd
Of the Two Worlds so learnedly, are thrust
98
Like foolish Prophets forth; their Words to Scorn
Are scatter'd and their Mouths are stopt with Dust.

26

Oh, come with old Khayyám, and leave the Wise To talk; one thing is certain, that Life flies; One thing is certain, and the Rest is Lies; The Flower that once has blown for ever dies.

27

Myself when young did eagerly frequent
Doctor and Saint, and heard great Argument
About it and about: but evermore
Came out by the same Door as in I went.

28

With them the Seed of Wisdom did I sow,
And with my own hand labour'd it to grow: 110
And this was all the Harvest that I reap'd—
'I came like Water, and like Wind I go.'

29

Into this Universe, and why not knowing,
Nor whence, like Water willy-nilly flowing:
And out of it, as Wind along the Waste,
I know not whither, willy-nilly blowing.

115

120

What, without asking, hither hurried whence? And, without asking, whither hurried hence! Another and another Cup to drown The Memory of this Impertinence!

31

Up from Earth's Centre, through the Seventh Gate I rose, and on the Throne of Saturn sate,
And many Knots unravel'd by the Road;
Put not the Knot of Human Death and Fate.

There was a Door to which I found no Key: 125 There was a Veil past which I could not see: Some little Talk awhile of Me and Thee There seem'd—and then no more of Thee and Me.

33

Then to the rolling Heav'n itself I cried,
Asking, 'What Lamp had Destiny to guide
'Her little Children stumbling in the Dark?'
And—'A blind Understanding!' Heav'n replied.

34

Then to this earthen Bowl did I adjourn
My Lip the secret Well of Life to learn:

And Lip to Lip it murmur'd—' While you live
' Drink!—for once dead you never shall return.'

35

I think the Vessel, that with fugitive Articulation answer'd, once did live, And merry-make; and the cold Lip I kiss'd, How many Kisses might it take—and give! 140

36

For in the Market-place, one Dusk of Day, I watch'd the Potter thumping his wet Clay: And with its all obliterated Tongue It murmur'd—' Gently, Brother, gently, pray!

37

Ah, fill the Cup:—what boots it to repeat
How Time is slipping underneath our Feet:
Unborn To-morrow and dead Yesterday,
Why fret about them if To-day be sweet!

38

One Moment in Annihilation's Waste,
One Moment, of the Well of Life to taste—
The Stars are setting and the Caravan
Starts for the Dawn of Nothing—Oh, make haste?

How long, how long, in infinite Pursuit Of This and That endeavour and dispute? Better be merry with the fruitful Grape Than sadden after none, or bitter, Fruit.

155

40

You know, my Friends, how long since in my House For a new Marriage I did make Carouse: Divorced old barren Reason from my Bed,

And took the Daughter of the Vine to Spouse. 160

41

For 'Is' and 'Is-not' though with Rule and Line, And 'Up-AND-DOWN' without, I could define, I yet, in all I only cared to know, Was never deep in anything but—Wine.

42

And lately, by the Tavern Door agape,
Came stealing through the Dusk an Angel Shape
Bearing a Vessel on his Shoulder; and
He bid me taste of it; and 'twas—the Grape

43

The Grape that can with Logic absolute
The Two-and-Seventy jarring Sects confute: 170
The subtle Alchemist that in a Trice
Life's leaden Metal into Gold transmute.

44

The mighty Máhmúd, the victorious Lord,
That all the misbelieving and black Horde
Of Fears and Sorrows that infest the Soul
Scatters and slays with his enchanted Sword.

45

But leave the Wise to wrangle, and with me
The Quarrel of the Universe let be:
And, in some corner of the Hubbub coucht,
Make Game of that which makes as much of Thee.

46

For in and out, above, about, below, 181
'Tis nothing but a Magic Shadow-show,
Play'd in a Box whose Candle is the Sun,
Round which we Phantom Figures come and go.

47

And if the Wine you drink, the Lip you press, 185 End in the Nothing all Things end in—Yes—
Then fancy while Thou art, Thou art but what Thou shalt be—Nothing—Thou shalt not be less.

48

While the Rose blows along the River Brink, With old Khayyám the Ruby Vintage drink: 190 And when the Angel with his darker Draught Draws up to Thee—take that, and do not shrink.

49

'Tis all a Chequer-board of Nights and Days Where Destiny with Men for Pieces plays: Hither and thither moves, and mates, and slays, And one by one back in the Closet lays.

50

The Ball no Question makes of Ayes and Noes, But Right or Left as strikes the Player goes; And He that toss'd Thee down into the Field, He knows about it all—HE knows—HE knows!

51

The Moving Finger writes; and, having writ,
Moves on: nor all thy Piety nor Wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a Line,
Nor all thy Tears wash out a Word of it.

52

And that inverted Bowl we call The Sky, Whereunder crawling coop't we live and die, Lift not thy hands to It for help—for It Rolls impotently on as Thou or I.

With Earth's first Clay They did the Last Man's knead,

And then of the Last Harvest sow'd the Seed:
Yea, the first Morning of Creation wrote
What the Last Dawn of Reckoning shall read.

54

I tell Thee this—When, starting from the Goal, Over the shoulders of the flaming Foal Of Heav'n Parwin and Mushtara they flung,

In my predestin'd Plot of Dust and Soul

The Vine had struck a Fibre; which about If clings my Being—let the Súfi flout; Of my Base Metal may be filed a Key, That shall unlock the Door he howls without. 220

56

And this I know: whether the one True Light Kindle to Love, or Wrath-consume me quite, One glimpse of It within the Tavern caught Better than in the Temple lost outright.

57

Oh, Thou, who didst with Pitfall and with Gin 225 Beset the Road I was to wander in,

Thou wilt not with Predestination round Enmesh me, and impute my Fall to Sin?

58

Oh, Thou, who Man of baser Earth didst make, And who with Eden didst devise the Snake; 230 For all the Sin wherewith the Face of Man Is blacken'd, Man's Forgiveness give—and take!

59

Listen again. One evening at the Close Of Ramazán, ere the better Moon arose, In that old Potter's Shop I stood alone With the clay Population round in Rows.

235

ßΩ

And, strange to tell, among that Earthen Lot Some could articulate, while others not:

And suddenly one more impatient cried— 238 'Who is the Potter, pray, and who the Pot?'

Then said another—' Surely not in vain
'My Substance from the common Earth was ta'en,
'That He who subtly wrought me into Shape
'Should stamp me back to common Earth again.'

a

Another said—'Why, ne'er a peevish Boy, 245
'Would break the Bowl from which he drank in Joy;
'Shall He that made the Vessel in pure Love
'And Fancy, in an after Rage destroy!'

63

None answer'd this; but after Silence spake
A Vessel of a more ungainly Make:

'They sneer at me for leaning all awry;

'What! did the Hand then of the Potter shake?'

Said one—'Folks of a surly Tapster tell,
'And daub his Visage with the Smoke of Hell;
'They talk of some strict Testing of us—Pish!
'He's a Good Fellow, and 'twill all be well.'

65

Then said another with a long-drawn Sigh, 'My Clay with long oblivion is gone dry: 'But, fill me with the old familiar Juice,

'Methinks I might recover by and by!'

So while the Vessels one by one were speaking, One spied the little Crescent all were seeking: And then they jogg'd each other, 'Brother, Brother!

'Hark to the Porter's Shoulder-knot a-creaking!'

Ah, with the Grape my fading Life provide,
And wash my Body whence the Life has died,
And in a Winding-sheet of Vine-leaf wrapt,
So bury me by some sweet Garden-side.

68

That ev'n my buried Ashes such a Snare Of Perfume shall fling up into the Air, As not a True Believer passing by But shall be overtaken unaware.

270

69

Indeed the Idols I have loved so long
Have done my Credit in Men's Eye much wrong:
Have drown'd my Honour in a shallow Cup,
And sold my Reputation for a Song.

70

Indeed, indeed, Repentance oft before
I swore—but was I sober when I swore?
And then and then came Spring, and Rose-in-hand
My thread-bare Penitence apieces tore.
280

71

And much as Wine has play'd the Infidel,
And robb'd me of my Robe of Honour—well,
I often wonder what the Vintners buy
One-half so precious as the Goods they sell.

72

Alas, that Spring should vanish with the Rose!
That Youth's sweet-scented Manuscript should close!

The Nightingale that in the Branches sang, Ah, whence, and whither flown again, who knows !

73

Ah, Love! could thou and I with Fate conspire
To grasp this sorry Scheme of Things entire, 290
Would not we shatter it to bits—and then
Re-mould it nearer to the Heart's Desire!

Ah, Moon of my Delight who know'st no wane, The Moon of Heav'n is rising once again: How oft hereafter rising shall she look

Through this same Garden after me—in vain!

75

And when Thyself with shining Foot shall pass Among the Guests Star-scatter'd on the Grass, And in thy joyous Errand reach the Spot 296 Where I made one—turn down an empty Glass!

THE CHAMBERED NAUTILUS

This is the ship of pearl, which, poets feign,
Sails the unshadowed main,—
The venturous bark that flings
On the sweet summer wind its purpled wings

In gulfs enchanted, where the siren sings,
And coral reefs lie bare,

Where the cold sea-maids rise to sun their streaming hair.

Its webs of living gauze no more unfurl; Wrecked is the ship of pearl!

And every chambered cell, 10 Where its dim dreaming life was wont to dwell,

As the frail tenant shaped his growing shell,
Before thee lies revealed—

Its irised ceiling rent, its sunless crypt unscaled!

Year after year beheld the silent toil
That spread his lustrous coil;

Still, as the spiral grew,

He left the past year's dwelling for the new,

Stole with soft step its shining archway through,
Ruilt up its idle door,

Stretched in his last-found home, and knew the old no more.

THE MEN OF OLD
I know not that the men of old
Were better than men now,
Of heart more kind, of hand more bold,
Of more ingenuous brow: I heed not those who pine for force	5
A ghost of Time to raise,	0
As if they thus could check the course
Of these appointed days.
Still it is true, and over true,
That I delight to close	10
This book of life self-wise and new,
And let my thoughts repose
On all that humble happiness,
The world has since forgone,—
The daylight of contentedness	15
That on those faces shone!
With rights, the not too closely scanned,
Enjoyed, as far as known,— With will by no reverse unmanned,—
With pulse of even tone,—	20
Truit puise of even tone,—	~0

They from to-day and from to-night Expected nothing more, Than yesterday and yesternight Had proffered them before.
To them was life a simple art Of duties to be done, A game where each man took his part,	25
A race where all must run; A battle whose great scheme and scope They little cared to know, Content, as men at arms, to cope Each with his fronting foe.	30
Man now his Virtue's diadem Puts on and proudly wears, Great thoughts, great feelings, came to the Like instincts, unawares: Blending their souls' sublimest needs With tasks of every day, They went about their gravest deeds,	em, 36
As noble boys at play.—	40
And what if Nature's fearful wound They did not probe and bare, For that their spirits never swooned To watch the misery there,— For that their love but flowed more fast, Their charities more free, Not conscious what mere drops they east Into the evil sea.	45
A man's best things are nearest him, Lie close about his feet, It is the distant and the dim That we are sick to greet:	50
For flowers that grow our hands beneath We struggle and aspire,— Our hearts must die, except they breathe The air of fresh Desire.	55

Yet, Brothers, who up Reason's hill
Advance with hopeful cheer,—
O! loiter not, those heights are chill,
As chill as they are clear;
And still restrain your haughty gaze,
The loftier that ye go,
Remembering distance leaves a haze
On all that lies below.

THE MILLER'S DAUGHTER

It is the miller's daughter,
And she is grown so dear, so dear,
That I would be the jewel
That trembles at her ear:
For hid in ringlets day and night,
I'd touch her neck so warm and white.

And I would be the girdle
About her dainty dainty waist,
And her heart would beat against me
In sorrow and in rest:
And I should know if it beat right,
I'd clasp it round so close and tight.

And I would be the necklace,
And all day long to fall and rise
Upon her balmy bosom,
With her laughter or her sighs,
And I would lie so light, so light,
I scarce should be unclasp'd at night.

LORD TENNYSON.

ST. AGNES' EVE

Deep on the convent-roof the snows
Are sparkling to the moon:
My breath to heaven like vapour goes:
May my soul follow soon!
The shadows of the convent-towers	5
Slant down the snowy sward,
Still creeping with the creeping hours
That lead me to my Lord:
Make Thou my spirit pure and clear
As are the frosty skies,	10
Or this first snowdrop of the year
That in my bosom lies.
As these white robes are soil'd and dark,
To yonder shining ground;
As this pale taper's earthly spark,	15
To yonder argent round;
So shows my soul before the Lamb,
My spirit before Thee;
So in mine earthly house I am,
To that I hope to be.	20
Break up the heavens, O Lord! and far,
Thro' all yon starlight keen,
Draw me, thy bride, a glittering star,
In raiment white and clean.
He lifts me to the golden doors;	25
The flashes come and go;
All heaven bursts her starry floors,
And strows her lights below,
And deepens on and up! the gates
Roll back, and far within	30
For me the Heavenly Bridegroom waits,
To make me pure of sin.
The sabbaths of Eternity,
One sabbath deep and wide—
A light upon the shining sea—	$\sqrt{35}$
The Bridegroom with his bride!

SIR GALAHAD

My good blade carves the casques of men, My tough lance thrusteth sure, My strength is as the strength of ten, Because my heart is pure. The shattering trumpet shrilleth high, The hard brands shiver on the steel, The splinter'd spear-shafts crack and fly, The horse and rider reel: They reel, they roll in clanging lists, And when the tide of combat stands, Perfume and flowers fall in showers, That lightly rain from ladies' hands.	5
How sweet are looks that ladies bend On whom their favours fall! For them I battle till the end, To save from shame and thrall: But all my heart is drawn above, My knees are bow'd in crypt and shrine: I never felt the kiss of love, Nor maiden's hand in mine. More bounteous aspects on me beam, Me mightier transports move and thrill; So keep I fair thro' faith and prayer A virgin heart in work and will.	20
When down the stormy crescent goes, A light before me swims, Between dark stems the forest glows, I hear a noise of hymns:	25
Then by some secret shrine I ride; I hear a voice, but none are there; The stalls are void, the doors are wide, The tapers burning fair. Fair gleams the snowy altar-cloth, The silver vessels sparkle clean,	30

The shrill bell rings, the censer swings, And solemn chaunts resound between.	35
Sometimes on lonely mountain-meres I find a magic bark; I leap on board: no helmsman steers:
I float till all is dark. A gentle sound, an awful light!	40
Three angels bear the holy Grail: With folded feet, in stoles of white, On sleeping wings they sail.
Ah, blessed vision! blood of God! My spirit beats her mortal bars, As down dark tides the glory slides, And star-like mingles with the stars.	45
When on my goodly charger borne Thro' dreaming towns I go,	50
The cock crows ere the Christmas morn, The streets are dumb with snow. The tempest crackles on the leads,
And, ringing, springs from brand and ma But o'er the dark a glory spreads, And gilds the driving hail.	55 55
I leave the plain, I climb the height; No branchy thicket shelter yields; But blessed forms in whistling storms Fly o'er waste fens and windy fields.	60
A maiden knight—to me is given Such hope, I know not fear; I yearn to breathe the airs of heaven
That often meet me here.  I muse on joy that will not cease, Pure spaces clothed in living beams,	65
Pure lilies of eternal peace, Whose odours haunt my dreams; And, stricken by an angel's hand,
This mortal armour that I wear, This weight and size, this heart and eyes, Are touch'd, are turn'd to finest air.	70

The clouds are broken in the sky,
And thro' the mountain-walls
A rolling organ-harmony	75
Swells up, and shakes and falls.
Then move the trees, the copses nod,
Wings flutter, voices hover clear:
'O just and faithful knight of God!
Ride on! the prize is near.'	80
So pass I hostel, hall, and grange;
By bridge and ford, by park and pale,
All-arm'd I ride, whate'er betide.
Until I find the holy Grail.
LORD TENNYSON.

On thy cold grey stones, O Sea!
And I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me.

O well for the fisherman's boy,
That he shouts with his sister at play!
O well for the sailor lad,
That he sings in his boat on the bay!

And the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill;
But O for the touch of a vanish'd hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still!

Break, break, break,
At the foot of thy crags, O Sea!

But the tender grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me.

LORD TENNYSON.

THE BROOK
I come from haunts of coot and hern, I make a sudden sally And sparkle out among the fern, To bicker down a valley.
By thirty hills I hurry down, Or slip between the ridges, By twenty thorps, a little town, And half a hundred bridges.	5
Till last by Philip's farm I flow To join the brimming river, For men may come and men may go, But I go on for ever.	10
I chatter over stony ways, In little sharps and trebles, I bubble into eddying bays, I babble on the pebbles.	. 15
With many a curve my banks I fret By many a field and fallow, And many a fairy foreland set With willow-weed and mallow.	20
I chatter, chatter, as I flow To join the brimming river, For men may come and men may go, But I go on for ever.
I wind about, and in and out, With here a blossom sailing, And here and there a lusty trout, And here and there a grayling,	25
And here and there a foamy flake Upon me, as I travel With many a silvery waterbreak Above the golden gravel,	30

And draw them all along, and flow
To join the brimming river, For men may come and men may go,	35
But I go on for ever.
I steal by lawns and grassy plots,
I slide by hazel covers;
I move the sweet forget-me-nots That grow for happy lovers.	40
I slip, I slide, I gloom, I glance,	10
Among my skimming swallows;
I make the netted sunbeam dance
Against my sandy shallows.
I murmur under moon and stars	45
In brambly wildernesses;
I linger by my shingly bars; I loiter round my cresses;
And out again I curve and flow
To join the brimming river,	50
For men may come and men may go,
But I go on for ever.  LORD TENNYSON

As thro' the land at eve we went,	•
And pluck'd the ripen'd ears,
We fell out, my wife and I, We fell out, I know not why,
And kiss'd again with tears.	5
And blessings on the falling out
That all the more endears,
When we fall out with those we love
And kiss again with tears!  For when we came where lies the child	10
We lost in other years,	10
There above the little grave,
O there above the little grave,
We kiss'd again with tears.
LORD TENNYSON

The splendour falls on castle walls
And snowy summits old in story:
The long light shakes across the lakes,
And the wild cataract leaps in glory.
Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying,
5
Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O hark, O hear! how thin and clear,
And thinner, clearer, farther going!
O sweet and far from cliff and scar
The horns of Elfland faintly blowing! 10
Blow, let us hear the purple glens replying:
Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O love, they die in yon rich sky,
They faint on hill or field or river:
Our echoes roll from soul to soul,
And grow for ever and for ever.
Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying,
And answer, echoes, answer, dying, dying, dying.

Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean,
Tears from the depth of some divine despair
Rise in the heart, and gather to the eyes,
In looking on the happy Autumn-fields,
And thinking of the days that are no more.

Fresh as the first beam glittering on a sail, That brings our friends up from the underworld, Sad as the last which reddens over one That sinks with all we love below the verge; So sad, so fresh, the days that are no more.

Ah, sad and strange as in dark summer dawns The earliest pipe of half-awaken'd birds To dying ears, when unto dying eyes 13 The casement slowly grows a glimmering square; So sad, so strange, the days that are no more.

Dear as remember'd kisses after death, And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feign'd On lips that are for others; deep as love, Deep as first love, and wild with all regret; O Death in Life, the days that are no more.

LORD TENNYSON.

O Swallow, Swallow, flying, flying South, Fly to her, and fall upon her gilded eaves, And tell her, tell her what I tell to thee.

O tell her, Swallow, thou that knowest each, That bright and fierce and fickle is the South, 5 And dark and true and tender is the North.

O Swallow, Swallow, if I could follow, and light Upon her lattice, I would pipe and trill, And cheep and twitter twenty million loves.

O were I thou that she might take me in, And lay me on her bosom, and her heart Would rock the snowy cradle till I died.

Why lingereth she to clothe her heart with love, Delaying as the tender ash delays 14 To clothe herself, when all the woods are green?

O tell her, Swallow, that thy brood is flown: Say to her, I do but wanton in the South, But in the North long since my nest is made.

O tell her, brief is life but love is long, And brief the sun of summer in the North, And brief the moon of beauty in the South.

O Swallow, flying from the golden woods, Fly to her, and pipe and wooher, and make her mine, And tell her, tell her, that I follow thee.

Now sleeps the crimson petal, now the white Nor waves the cypress in the palace walk; Nor winks the gold fin in the porphyry font: The fire-fly wakens: waken thou with me.

Now droops the milkwhite peacock like a ghost, And like a ghost she glimmers on to me.

Now lies the Earth all Danaë to the stars, And all thy heart lies open unto me.

Now slides the silent meteor on, and leaves A shining furrow, as thy thoughts in me. 10

Now folds the lily all her sweetness up, And slips into the bosom of the lake: So fold thyself, my dearest, thou, and slip Into my bosom and be lost in me.

Come down, O maid, from yonder mountain height: What pleasure lives in height (the Shepherd sang). In height and cold, the splendour of the hills? But cease to move so near the Heavens, and cease To glide a sunbeam by the blasted Pine, To sit a star upon the sparkling spire; And come, for Love is of the valley, come, For Love is of the valley, come thou down And find him; by the happy threshold, he, Or hand in hand with Plenty in the maize, Or red with spirted purple of the vats, Or foxlike in the vine; nor cares to walk With Death and Morning on the silver horns, Nor wilt thou snare him in the white ravine, Nor find him dropt upon the firths of ice, That huddling slant in furrow-cloven falls To roll the torrent out of dusky doors:

But follow; let the torrent dance thee down To find him in the valley; let the wild Lean-headed Eagles yelp alone, and leave 20 The monstrous ledges there to slope, and spill Their thousand wreaths of dangling water-smoke, That like a broken purpose waste in air: So waste not thou; but come; for all the vales Await thee; azure pillars of the hearth 25 Arise to thee; the children call, and I Thy shepherd pipe, and sweet is every sound, Sweeter thy voice, but every sound is sweet: Myriads of rivulets hurrying thro' the lawn, The moan of doves in immemorial elms. 30 And murmuring of innumerable bees.

FROM 'IN MEMORIAM'

Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky,
The flying cloud, the frosty light:
The year is dying in the night;
Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.

Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring, happy bells, across the snow:
The year is going, let him go;
Ring out the false, ring in the true.

Ring out the grief that saps the mind,
For those that here we see no more; 10
Ring out the feud of rich and poor,
Ring in redress to all mankind.

Ring out a slowly dying cause,
And ancient forms of party strife;
Ring in the nobler modes of life,
With sweeter manners, purer laws.

Ring out the want, the care, the sin,  The faithless coldness of the times;  Ring out, ring out my mournful rhymes,  But ring the fuller minstrel in.	20
Ring out false pride in place and blood, The civic slander and the spite; Ring in the love of truth and right, Ring in the common love of good.
Ring out old shapes of foul disease; Ring out the narrowing lust of gold; Ring out the thousand wars of old, Ring in the thousand years of peace.	25
Ring in the valiant man and free, The larger heart, the kindlier hand; Ring out the darkness of the land, Ring in the Christ that is to be.	30
Lord Tennyson.

Come into the garden, Maud, For the black bat, night, has flown, Come into the garden, Maud,

I am here at the gate alone;
And the woodbine spices are wafted abroad,
And the musk of the roses blown.

For a breeze of morning moves,
And the planet of Love is on high,
Beginning to faint in the light that she loves
On a bed of daffodil sky,
To faint in the light of the sun she loves,
To faint in his light, and to die.

All night have the roses heard
The flute, violin, bassoon;
All night has the casement jessamine stirr'd
To the dancers dancing in tune;
Till a silence fell with the waking bird,
And a hush with the setting moon.

I said to the lily, 'There is but one With whom she has heart to be gay. When will the dancers leave her alone? She is weary of dance and play.' Now half to the setting moon are gone, And half to the rising day;	20
Low on the sand and loud on the stone The last wheel cchoes away.	25
I said to the rose, 'The brief night goes In babble and revel and wine. O young lord-lover, what sighs are those, For one that will never be thine? But mine, but mine,' so I sware to the rose, 'For ever and ever, mine.'	30
And the soul of the rose went into my blood, As the music clash'd in the hall; And long by the garden lake I stood, For I heard your rivulet fall From the lake to the meadow and on to the wo Our wood, that is dearer than all;	35 ood,
From the meadow your walks have left so swe That whenever a March-wind sighs He sets the jewel-print of your feet In violets blue as your eyes, To the woody hollows in which we meet And the valleys of Paradise.	eet 40
The slender acacia would not shake One long milk-bloom on the tree; The white lake-blossom fell into the lake, As the pimpernel dozed on the lea; But the rose was awake all night for your sak Knowing your promise to me; The lilies and roses were all awake, They sigh'd for the dawn and thee.	45 e, 50
Queen rose of the rosebud garden of girls, Come hither, the dances are done,

In gloss of satin and glimmer of pearls,	58
Queen lily and rose in one;
Shine out, little head, sunning over with	curls,
To the flowers, and be their sun.	•

There has fallen a splendid tear
From the passion-flower at the gate.

She is coming, my dove, my dear;
She is coming, my life, my fate;
The red rose cries, 'She is near, she is near;'
And the white rose weeps, 'She is late;'
The larkspur listens, 'I hear, I hear;'
And the lily whispers, 'I wait.'

She is coming, my own, my sweet;
Were it ever so airy a tread,
My heart would hear her and beat,
Were it earth in an earthy bed;
My dust would hear her and beat,
Had I lain for a century dead;
Would start and tremble under her feet,
And blossom in purple and red.

LORD TENNYSON.

In Love, if Love be Love, if Love be ours, Faith and unfaith can ne'er be equal powers: Unfaith in aught is want of faith in all.

It is the little rift within the lute,
That by and by will make the music mute,
And ever widening slowly silence all.

The little rift within the lover's lute, Or little pitted speck in garner'd fruit, That rotting inward slowly moulders all.

It is not worth the keeping: let it go:
But shall it? answer, darling, answer, no.
And trust me not at all or all in all.

LORD TENNYSON.

THE PRIVATE OF THE BUFFS

Some Sikhs and a private of the Buffs having remained behind with the grog carts, fell into the hands of the Chinese. On the next morning they were brought before the authorities, and commanded to perform the Kotow. The Sikhs obeyed; but Moyse, the English soldier, declaring that he would not prostrate himself before any Chinaman alive, was immediately knocked upon the head, and his body thrown on a dunghill.—The Times.

Last night, among his fellow roughs,
He jested, quaffed, and swore,
A drunken private of the Buffs,
Who never looked before.
To-day, beneath the foeman's frown,
He stands in Elgin's place,
Ambassador from Britain's crown,
And type of all her race.

Poor, reckless, rude, low-born, untaught,
Bewildered, and alone,
A heart, with English instinct fraught,
He yet can call his own.
Aye, tear his body limb from limb,
Bring cord, or axe, or flame:
He only knows, that not through him
Shall England come to shame.

Far Kentish hop-fields round him seem'd,
Like dreams, to come and go;
Bright leagues of cherry-blossom gleam'd,
One sheet of living snow;
The smoke, above his father's door,
In grey soft eddyings hung;
Must he then watch it rise no more,
Doom'd by himself so young?

Ves honour calls !-with strength like steel

He put the vision by.	26
Let dusky Indians whine and kneel; An English lad must die.
And thus, with eyes that would not shrink
With knee to man unbent,	30
Unfaltering on its dreadful brink,
To his red grave he went.
Vain, mightiest fleets of iron framed;
Vain, those all-shattering guns; Unless proud England keep, untamed,	35
The strong heart of her sons.	00
So, let his name through Europe ring—
A man of mean estate,
Who died, as firm as Sparta's King,
Because his soul was great.	40

A CHRISTMAS HYMN

It was the calm and silent night!—
Seven hundred years and fifty-three
Had Rome been growing up to might,
And now was Queen of land and sea!
No sound was heard of clashing wars;
Peace brooded o'er the hushed domain;
Apollo, Pallas, Jove and Mars,
Held undisturbed their ancient reign,
In the solemn midnight
Centuries ago!

10

'Twas in the calm and silent night!

The senator of haughty Rome
Impatient urged his chariot's flight
From lordly revel rolling home!

Triumphal arches gleaming swell  His breast with thoughts of boundless sway What recked the Roman what befell  A paltry province far away,  In the solemn midnight  Centuries ago!	15 :
Within that province far away Went plodding home a weary boor: A streak of light before him lay, Fall'n through a half-shut stable door Across his path. He passed—for naught Told what was going on within; How keen the stars! his only thought; The air how calm and cold and thin, In the solemn midnight Centuries ago!	25 30
O strange indifference !—low and high Drowsed over common joys and cares: The earth was still—but knew not why; The world was listening—unawares; How calm a moment may precede One that shall thrill the world for ever! To that still moment none would heed, Man's doom was linked no more to sever In the solemn midnight 'Centuries ago!	35
It is the calm and solemn night!  A thousand bells ring out, and throw Their joyous peals abroad, and smite The darkness, charmed and holy now! The night that erst no name had worn, To it a happy name is given; For in that stable lay new-born The peaceful Prince of Earth and Heaven,	45
În the solemn midnight Centuries ago. A. DOMETT.	50

The year's at the spring,
And day's at the morn;
Morning's at seven;

The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorn:
God's in his heaven—
All's right with the world!

Give her but a least excuse to love me!

When—where—

How can this arm establish her above

How—can this arm establish her above me,
If fortune fixed her as my lady there,
There already, to eternally reprove me?

('Hist!'—said Kate the queen;

But Oh'—cried the maiden, binding her tresses,
'Tis only a page that carols unseen,
'Crumbling your hounds their messes!')

Is she wronged?—To the rescue of her honour, 10 My heart!

Is she poor?—What costs it to be styled a donor?

Merely an earth to cleave, a sea to part.

But that fortune should have thrust all this upon her!

('Nay, list!'—bade Kate the queen; 15 And still cried the maiden, binding her tresses, 'Tis only a page that carols unseen, 'Fitting your hawks their jesses!')

THE LOST LEADER

Just for a handful of silver he left us,
Just for a riband to stick in his coat—
Found the one gift of which fortune bereft us,
Lost all the others she lets us devote;

They, with the gold to give, doled him out silver, So much was theirs who so little allowed: 6 How all our copper had gone for his service!

Rags—were they purple, his heart had been proud! Wethat had loved himso, followed him, honoured him,

Lived in his mild and magnificent eye, 10 Learned his great language, caught his clear accents,

Made him our pattern to live and to die! Shakespeare was of us, Milton was for us,

Burns, Shelley, were with us,—they watch from their graves!

He alone breaks from the van and the freemen, He alone sinks to the rear and the slaves! 16

We shall march prospering,—not thro' his presence; Songs may inspirit us,—not from his lyre;

Deeds will be done,—while he boasts his quiescence, Still bidding crouch whom the rest bade aspire: Blot out his name, then, record one lost soul more,

One task more declined, one more footpathuntrod, One more devils'-triumph and sorrow for angels,

One wrong more to man, one more insult to God! Life's night begins: let him never come back to ust There would be doubt, hesitation, and pain, 26

Forced praise on our part—the glimmer of twilight, Never glad confident morning again!

Best fight on well, for we taught him,—strike gallantly.

Menace our heart ere we master his own; 30 Then let him receive the new knowledge and wait us, Pardoned in heaven, the first by the throne!

R. Browning.

HOME-THOUGHTS, FROM ABROAD

Oh, to be in England now that April's there, And whoever wakes in England sees, some morning, unaware, That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf Round the elm-tree bole are in tiny leaf, While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough In England—now!

And after April, when May follows, And the whitethroat builds, and all the swallows! Hark, where my blossomed pear-tree in the hedge Leans to the field and scatters on the clover

Blossoms and dewdrops—at the bent spray's edge— That 's the wise thrush; he sings each song twice over.

Lest you should think he never could recapture The first fine careless rapture!

And though the fields look rough with hoary dew, All will be gay when noontide wakes anew 16 The buttercups, the little children's dower

-Far brighter than this gaudy melon-flower!

R. Browning.

HOME-THOUGHTS, FROM THE SEA

Nobly, nobly Cape Saint Vincent to the North-West died away:

Sunset ran, one glorious blood-red, reeking into Cadiz Bay:

Bluish mid the burning water, full in face Trafalgar lay;

In the dimmest North-East distance, dawned Gibraltar grand and grey;

'Here and here did England help me: how can I help England?'—say,

5

Whose turns as I, this evening, turn to God to praise and pray,

White Jove's planet rises yonder, silent over Africa.
R. Browning.

MISCONCEPTIONS

This is a spray the Bird clung to,
Making it blossom with pleasure,
Ere the high tree-top she sprung to,
Fit for her nest and her treasure.
Oh, what a hope beyond measure
Was the poorspray's, which the flying feet hung to,—
So to be singled out, built in, and sung to!

This is a heart the Queen leant on,
Thrilled in a minute erratic,
Ere the true bosom she bent on,
Meet for love's regal dalmatic.
Oh, what a fancy cestatic
Was the poor heart's, ere the wanderer went on—
Love to be saved for it. proffered to, spent on!

A WOMAN'S LAST WORD

Let's contend no more, Love, Strive nor weep: All be as before, Love, —Only sleep!

What so wild as words are?

I and thou
In debate, as birds are,
Hawk on bough!

See the creature stalking
While we speak!
Hush and hide the talking,
Cheek on cheek!

What so false as truth is,
False to thee?
Where the serpent's tooth is,
Shun the tree—

PORPHYRIA'S LOVER
The rain set early in to night
The rain set early in to-night, The sullen wind was soon awake,
It tore the elm-tops down for spite,
And did its worst to vex the lake:
When glided in Porphyria; straight
She shut the cold out and the storm,
And kneeled and made the cheerless grate
Blaze up, and all the cottage warm;
Which done, she rose, and from her form
Withdrew the dripping cloak and shawl, 11
And laid her soiled gloves by, untied
Her hat and let the damp hair fall,
And, last, she sat down by my side
And called me. When no voice replied, 15	,
She put my arm about her waist,
And made her smooth white shoulder bare,
And all her yellow hair displaced,
And, stooping, made my cheek lie there,
And spread o'er all her yellow hair, 20	j
Murmuring how she loved me—she
Too weak, for all her heart's endeavour,

To set its struggling passion free
From pride, and vainer ties dissever, And give herself to me for ever.	25
But passion sometimes would prevail,	20
Nor could to-night's gay feast restrain
A sudden thought of one so pale
For love of her, and all in vain:
So, she was come through wind and rain
Be sure I looked up at her eyes	31
Happy and proud; at last I knew
Porphyria worshipped me; surprise
Made my heart swell, and still it grew
While I debated what to do.	35
That moment she was mine, mine, fair
Perfectly pure and good: I found
A thing to do, and all her hair
In one long yellow string I wound
Three times her little throat around,	40
And strangled her. No pain felt she;
I am quite sure she felt no pain.
As a shut bud that holds a bee,
I warily oped her lids: again	47
Laughed the blue eyes without a stain.	40
And I untightened next the tress About her neck; her cheek once more
Blushed bright beneath my burning kiss:
I propped her head up as before,
Only, this time my shoulder bore	50
Her head, which droops upon it still:	00
The smiling rosy little head,
So glad it has its utmost will,
That all it scorned at once is fled,
And I, its love, am gained instead!	55
Porphyria's love: she guessed not how
Her darling one wish would be heard.
And thus we sit together now,
And all night long we have not stirred,
And yet God has not said a word!	60

RABBI BEN EZRA

Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first was made:
Our times are in His hand
Who saith 'A whole I planned,
Youth shows but half; trust God: see all, nor be

Not that, amassing flowers,
Youth sighed 'Which rose make ours,
Which lily leave and then as best recall?'
Not that, admiring stars,
It yearned 'Nor Jove, nor Mars;
Mine be some figured flame which blends, transcends them all!'

Я

Not for such hopes and fears
Annulling youth's brief years,
Do I remonstrate: folly wide the mark!
Rather I prize the doubt
Low kinds exist without,
Finished and finite clods, untroubled by a spark.

Poor vaunt of life indeed,
Were man but formed to feed 20
On joy, to solely seek and find and feast:
Such feasting ended, then
As sure an end to men;
Irks care the crop-full bird? Frets doubt the maw-crammed beast?

40

50

Rejoice we are allied

To That which doth provide

And not partake, effect and not receive!

A spark disturbs our clod;

Nearer we hold of God

Who gives, than of His tribes that take, I must believe.

6

Then, welcome each rebuff

That turns earth's smoothness rough,

Each sting that bids nor sit nor stand but go!

Be our joys three-parts pain!

Strive, and hold cheap the strain; 35

Learn, nor account the pang; dare, never grudge the throe!

For thence,—a paradox

Which comforts while it mocks,—

Shall life succeed in that it seems to fail:

What I aspired to be.

And was not, comforts me:

A brute I might have been, but would not sink i' the scale.

Q

What is he but a brute

Whose flesh hath soul to suit,

Whose spirit works lest arms and legs want play?

To man, propose this test— Thy body at its best,

How far can that project thy soul on its lone way?

Q

Yet gifts should prove their use:

I own the Past profuse

Of power each side, perfection every turn:

Eyes, ears took in their dole,

Brain treasured up the whole;

Should not the heart beat once 'How good to live and learn'?

133

Not once beat 'Praise be Thine! 55
I see the whole design,
I, who saw power, see now Love perfect too:
Perfect I call Thy plan:
Thanks that I was a man!
Maker, remake, complete,—I trust what Thou shalt do!' 60

11

For pleasant is this flesh; Our soul in its rose-mesh

Pulled ever to the earth, still yearns for rest:

Would we some prize might hold

To match those manifold

Possessions of the brute,—gain most, as we did best!

12

Let us not always say
'Spite of this flesh to-day

I strove, made head, gained ground upon the whole!

As the bird wings and sings,

70

65

80

Let us cry 'All good things'

Are ours, nor soul helps flesh more, now, than flesh helps soul!

13

Therefore I summon age To grant youth's heritage,

Life's struggle having so far reached its term: 75

Thence shall I pass, approved A man, for ay removed

From the developed brute; a God thoughin the germ.

14

And I shall thereupon

Take rest, ere I be gone

Once more on my adventure brave and new: Fearless and unperplexed,

When I wage battle next.

What weapons to select, what armour to indue.

Youth ended, I shall try My gain or loss thereby; 85

Leave the fire ashes, what survives is gold:

And I shall weigh the same,

Give life its praise or blame:

Young, all lay in dispute; I shall know, being old.

For note, when evening shuts, A certain moment cuts

91

The deed off, calls the glory from the grey:

A whisper from the west Shoots—'Add this to the rest,

95

Take it and try its worth: here dies another day.'

So, still within this life,

Though lifted o'er its strife.

Let me discern, compare, pronounce at last, 'This rage was right i' the main,

That acquiescence vain:

100

105

The Future I may face now I have proved the Past.'

For more is not reserved

To man, with soul just nerved

To act to-morrow what he learns to-day:

Here, work enough to watch

The Master work, and catch

Hints of the proper craft, tricks of the tool's true play.

As it was better, youth

Should strive, through acts uncouth,

Toward making, than repose on aught found made; So, better, age, exempt

From strife, should know, than tempt

Further. Thou waitedst age; wait death nor be afraid!

O	n
~	u

Enough now, if the Right

115

And Good and Infinite

Be named here, as thou callest thy hand thine own, With knowledge absolute,

Subject to no dispute

From fools that crowded youth, nor let thee feel alone.

21

Be there, for once and all, Severed great minds from small,

Announced to each his station in the Past!

Was I, the world arraigned, Were they, my soul disdained,

125

Right? Let age speak the truth and give us peace at last!

99

Now, who shall arbitrate?

Ten men love what I hate,

Shun what I follow, slight what I receive;

Ten, who in ears and eyes Match me: we all surmise,

130

They, this thing, and I, that: whom shall my soul believe?

23

Not on the vulgar mass

Called 'work,' must sentence pass,

Things done, that took the eye and had the price; O'er which, from level stand,

The low world laid its hand,

Found straightway to its mind, could value in a trice:

24

But all, the world's coarse thumb

And finger failed to plumb,

140

So passed in making up the main account;

All instincts immature,

All purposes unsure,

That weighed not as his work, yet swelled the man's

Thoughts hardly to be packed

145

Into a narrow act,

Fancies that broke through language and escaped: All I could never be,

All, men ignored in me.

This, I was worth to God, whose wheel the pitcher shaped. 150

26

Aye, note that Potter's wheel,

That metaphor! and feel

Why time spins fast, why passive lies our clay,— Thou, to whom fools propound,

When the wine makes its round,

'Since life fleets, all is change; the Past gone, seize to-day!

27

Fool! All that is, at all Lasts ever, past recall;

Earth changes, but thy soul and God stand sure: What entered into thee. That was, is, and shall be:

Time's wheel runs back or stops; Potter and clay endure.

28

He fixed thee mid this dance

Of plastic circumstance,

This Present, thou, forsooth, wouldst fain arrest: Machinery just meant To give thy soul its bent,

Try thee and turn thee forth, sufficiently impressed.

29

What though the earlier grooves

Which ran the laughing loves

170

Around thy base, no longer pause and press? What though, about thy rim,

Skull-things in order grim

Grow out, in graver mood, obey the sterner stress?

Look not thou down but up!

175

To uses of a cup,

The festal board, lamp's flash and trumpet's peal, The new wine's foaming flow,

The Master's lips aglow!

Thou, heaven's consummate cup, what needst thou with earth's wheel?

31

But I need, now as then,

Thee, God, who mouldest men;

And since, not even while the whirl was worst,

Did I,—to the wheel of life

With shapes and colours rife, $185 Bound dizzily,—mistake my end, to slake Thy thirst:

32

So, take and use Thy work!

Amend what flaws may lurk,

What strain o' the stuff, what warpings past the aim!

My times be in Thy hand!

190

Perfect the cup as planned!

Let age approve of youth, and death complete the same!

R. Browning.

PROSPICE

Fear death?—to feel the fog in my throat, The mist in my face,

When the snows begin, and the blasts denote I am nearing the place.

The power of the night, the press of the storm, 5
The post of the foe;

Where he stands, the Arch Fear in a visible form, Yet the strong man must go:

For the journey is done and the summit attained,
And the barriers fall, 10 Though a battle 's to fight ere the guerdon be gained,
The reward of it all.
I was ever a fighter, so—one fight more,
The best and the last!
I would hate that death bandaged my eyes, and forbore, 15
And bade me creep past.  No! let me taste the whole of it, fare like my peers
The heroes of old,
Bear the brunt, in a minute pay glad life's arrears
Of pain, darkness and cold. 20
For sudden the worst turns the best to the brave,
The black minute's at end,
And the elements' rage, the fiend-voices that rave, Shall dwindle, shall blend,
Shall change, shall become first a peace out of pain,
Then a light, then thy breast, 26
O thou soul of my soul! I shall clasp thee again,
And with God be the rest!
R. Browning.

THE EXECUTION OF MONTROSE
1
Come hither, Evan Cameron!
Come, stand beside my knee-
Come, stand beside my knee— I hear the river roaring down
Come, stand beside my knee— I hear the river roaring down Towards the wintry sea.
Come, stand beside my knee— I hear the river roaring down Towards the wintry sea. There 's shouting on the mountain-side, 5

'Twas I that led the Highland host
Through wild Lochaber's snows,	15
What time the plaided clans came down To battle with Montrose.	19
I've told thee how the Southrons fell
Beneath the broad claymore,
And how we smote the Campbell clan	20
By Inverlochy's shore.	20
I've told thee how we swept Dundee,
And tamed the Lindsays' pride;
But never have I told thee yet
How the great Marquis died.
3
A traitor sold him to his foes;	25
O deed of deathless shame!
I charge thee, boy, if e'er thou meet
With one of Assynt's name—
Be it upon the mountain's side,
Or yet within the glen,	30
Stand he in martial gear alone,
Or backed by arméd men-
Face him, as thou wouldst face the man
Who wronged thy sire's renown;
Remember of what blood thou art,	35
And strike the caitiff down!
4
They brought him to the Watergate,
Hard bound with hempen span,
As though they held a lion there,
And not a fenceless man.	40
They set him high upon a cart—	10
The hangman rode below—
They drew his hands behind his back,
And bared his noble brow.
Then, as a hound is slipped from leash,	45
They cheered the common throng,	40
And blew the note with yell and shout,
And hade him pass along

5
It would have made a brave man's heart
Grow sad and sick that day,	50
To watch the keen malignant eyes
Bent down on that array.
There stood the Whig west-country lords
In balcony and bow,
There sat their gaunt and withered dames,	55
And their daughters all a-row.
And every open window
Was full as full might be
With black-robed Covenanting carles,
That goodly sport to see!	60
6
But when he came, though pale and wan,
He looked so great and high,
So noble was his manly front,
So calm his steadfast eye;—
The rabble rout forbore to shout,	65
And each man held his breath,
For well they knew the hero's soul
Was face to face with death.
And then a mournful shudder
Through all the people crept,	70
And some that came to scoff at him	••
Now turn'd aside and wept.
now turn a side and wept.
7
But onwards—always onwards,
In silence and in gloom,
The dreary pageant laboured,	75
Till it reached the house of doom.
Then first a woman's voice was heard
In jeer and laughter loud,
And an angry cry and a hiss arose
From the heart of the tossing crowd:	80

Then, as the Graeme looked upwards,
He saw the ugly smile
Of him who sold his king for gold—
The master-fiend Argyle! 133

AYTOUN
8 The Marquis gazed a moment, And nothing did he say, But the cheek of Argyle grew ghastly pale And he turned his eyes away. The painted harlot by his side,	85 e,
She shook through every limb, For a roar like thunder swept the street, And hands were clenched at him; And a Saxon soldier cried aloud 'Back, coward, from thy place!	90
For seven long years thou hast not dared To look him in the face.'	95
9 Had I been there with sword in hand,
And fifty Camerons by, That day through high Dunedin's streets Had pealed the slogan-cry. Not all their troops of trampling horse, Nor might of mailéd men— Not all the rebels in the south	100
Had borne us backwards then! Once more his foot on Highland heath Had trod as free as air, Or I, and all who bore my name, Been laid around him there!	105
10
It might not be. They placed him next Within the solemn hall, Where once the Scottish kings were thron Amidst their nobles all.	110 ed
But there was dust of vulgar feet On that polluted floor, And perjured traitors filled the place	115
Where good men sate before.  With savage glee came Warristoun To read the murderous doom;  And then uprose the great Montrose
In the middle of the room.	120

'Now, by my faith as belted knight, And by the name I bear, And by the bright Saint Andrew's cross That waves above us there— Yea, by a greater, mightier oath-125 And oh, that such should be !-By that dark stream of royal blood That lies 'twixt you and me-I have not sought in battle-field A wreath of such renown, 130 Nor dared I hope on my dying day To win the martyr's crown!

'There is a chamber far away

Where sleep the good and brave, But a better place ye have named for me 135 Than by my father's grave. For truth and right, 'gainst treason's might, This hand hath always striven, And ye raise it up for a witness still In the eye of earth and heaven. 140 Then nail my head on yonder tower— Give every town a limb-

And God who made shall gather them: I go from you to Him!'

- The morning dawned full darkly, 145 The rain came flashing down, And the jagged streak of the levin-bolt Lit up the gloomy town:
- The thunder crashed across the heaven, The fatal hour was come; 150 Yet ay broke in with muffled beat
- The 'larum of the drum. There was madness on the earth below. And anger in the sky,
- And young and old, and rich and poor, 155 Came forth to see him die.

14
Ah, God! that ghastly gibbet!
How dismal 'tis to see
The great tall spectral skeleton,
The ladder, and the tree!	160
Hark! hark! it is the clash of arms— The bells begin to toll—
He is coming! he is coming!
God's mercy on his soul!'
One last long peal of thunder—	165
The clouds are cleared away,
And the glorious sun once more looks down	1
Amidst the dazzling day.
15
'He is coming! he is coming!'	150
Like a bridegroom from his room,	170
Came the hero from his prison  To the scaffold and the doom.
There was glory on his forehead,
There was lustre in his eye,
And he never walked to battle	175
More proudly than to die:
There was colour in his visage,
Though the cheeks of all were wan, And they marvelled as they saw him pass,
That great and goodly man!	180
16
He mounted up the scaffold,
And he turned him to the crowd;
But they dared not trust the people,
So he might not speak aloud.
But he looked upon the heavens,	185
And they were clear and blue, And in the liquid ether
The eye of God shone through!
Yet a black and murky battlement
Yet a black and murky battlement Lay resting on the hill,	190
As though the thunder slept within—
All else was calm and still.

The grim Geneva ministers

With anxious scowl drew near,

As you have seen the ravens flock Around the dying deer.

He would not deign them word nor sign,

But alone he bent the knee;

And veiled his face for Christ's dear grace Beneath the gallows-tree.

Then radiant and serene he rose, And cast his cloak away:

For he had ta'en his latest look Of earth and sun and day

18

A beam of light fell o'er him,

Like a glory round the shriven, And he climbed the lofty ladder

As it were the path to heaven.

Then came a flash from out the cloud.

And a stunning thunder-roll; And no man dared to look aloft.

For fear was on every soul.

There was another heavy sound,

A hush and then a groan; And darkness swept across the sky—

The work of death was done !

TUBAL CAIN

Old Tubal Cain was a man of might

In the days when Earth was young;

By the fierce red light of his furnace bright The strokes of his hammer rung;

And he lifted high his brawny hand On the iron glowing clear,

Till the sparks rushed out in scarlet showers, As he fashioned the sword and spear.

And he sang-' Hurra for my handiwork!

Hurra for the spear and sword!  Hurra for the hand that shall wield them wel	10
For he shall be king and lord!'	1,
8
To Tubal Cain came many a one,
As he wrought by his roaring fire,	14
And each one prayed for a strong steel blade As the crown of his desire.
And he made them weapons sharp and strong	7.
Till they shouted loud for glee,	"
And gave him gifts of pearl and gold,
And spoils of the forest free.	20
And they sang—'Hurra for Tubal Cain,
Who hath given us strength anew!
Hurra for the smith, hurra for the fire, And hurra for the metal true!'
And harra for the metal true:
But a sudden change came o'er his heart,	25
Ere the setting of the sun,
And Tubal Cain was filled with pain
For the evil he had done;
He saw that men, with rage and hate,	•
Made war upon their kind,	30
That the land was red with the blood they sh In their lust for carnage, blind.	eu
And he said—'Alas! that ever I made,
Or that skill of mine should plan,
The spear and the sword for men whose joy	35
Is to slay their fellow-man.'
And for many a day old Tubal Cain
And for many a day old Tubal Cain Sat brooding o'er his woe;
And his hand forbore to smite the ore,
And his furnace smouldered low.	40

But he rose at last with a cheerful face, And a bright courageous eye, And bared his strong right arm for work, While the quick flames mounted high.

And he sang—'Hurra for my handicraft!' 45 And the red sparks lit the air;	5
"Not alone for the blade was the bright steel made,"	l
And he fashioned the first ploughshare.
And men, taught wisdom from the past, In friendship joined their hands,	_
Hung the sword in the hall, the spear on the wall And ploughed the willing lands;	,
And sang—' Hurra for Tubal Cain! Our stanch good friend is he;
And for the ploughshare and the plough To him our praise shall be.	5
But while oppression lifts its head, Or a tyrant would be lord,
Though we may thank him for the Plough,	•
We'll not forget the Sword!' C. Mackay.	,

QUA CURSUM VENTUS
As ships, becalmed at eve, that lay With canvas drooping, side by side, Two towers of sail at dawn of day Are scarce long leagues apart descried;
	5
E'en so—but why the tale reveal	9
Of those, whom year by year unchanged, Brief absence joined anew to feel, Astounded, soul from soul estranged?
At dead of night their sails were filled, And onward each rejoicing steered—
Ah, neither blame, for neither willed, 1 Or wist, what first with dawn appeared!	5 or whoe, what must with dawn appeared t

To veer, how vain! On, onward strain,
Brave barks! In light, in darkness too,
Through winds and tides one compass guides—
To that, and your own selves, be true. 20

But O blithe breeze! and O great seas,
Though ne'er, that earliest parting past,
On your wide plain they join again,
Together lead them home at last.

One port, methought, alike they sought, One purpose hold where'er they fare,— O bounding breeze, O rushing seas! At last, at last, unite them there!

Say not, the struggle naught availeth, The labour and the wounds are vain, The enemy faints not, nor faileth, And as things have been they remain.

If hopes were dupes, fears may be liars; It may be, in yon smoke concealed, Your comrades chase e'en now the fliers, And, but for you, possess the field.

For while the tired waves, vainly breaking, Seem here no painful inch to gain, 10 Far back, through creeks, and inlets making, Comes silent, flooding in, the main.

And not by eastern windows only,
When daylight comes, comes in the light,
In front, the sun climbs slow, how slowly,
But westward, look, the land is bright.

A. H. CLOUGH.

Where lies the land to which the ship would go? Far, far ahead, is all her seamen know. And where the land she travels from? Away, Far, far behind, is all that they can say.

On sunny noons upon the deck's smooth face, 5 Linked arm in arm, how pleasant here to pace; Or, o'er the stern reclining, watch below The foaming wake far widening as we go.

On stormy nights when wild north-westers rave, How proud a thing to fight with wind and wave! The dripping sailor on the reeling mast 11 Exults to bear, and scorns to wish it past.

Where lies the land to which the ship would go? Far, far ahead, is all her seamen know. And where the land she travels from? Away, Far, far behind, is all that they can say.

O MAY I JOIN THE CHOIR INVISIBLE'

Longum illud tempus, quum non ero, magis me movet, quam hoc exiguum.—Cicero, ad Att. xii. 18.

O may I join the choir invisible
Of those immortal dead who live again
In minds made better by their presence: live
In pulses stirred to generosity,
In deeds of daring rectitude, in scorn
For miserable aims that end with self,
In thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars,
And with their mild persistence urge man's search
To vaster issues.

So to live is heaven: To make undying music in the world, 10 Breathing as beauteous order that controls With growing sway the growing life of man. So we inherit that sweet purity For which we struggled, failed, and agonized With widening retrospect that bred despair. 15 Rebellious flesh that would not be subdued. A vicious parent shaming still its child Poor anxious penitence, is quick dissolved; Its discords, quenched by meeting harmonies, Die in the large and charitable air. 20 And all our rarer, better, truer self, That sobbed religiously in yearning song, That watched to ease the burthen of the world. Laboriously tracing what must be, And what may yet be better—saw within 25 A worthier image for the sanctuary, And shaped it forth before the multitude Divinely human, raising worship so To higher reverence more mixed with love— That better self shall live till human Time 30 Shall fold its eyelids, and the human sky Be gathered like a scroll within the tomb Unread for ever.

This is life to come,
Which martyred men have made more glorious
For us who strive to follow. May I reach
That purest heaven, be to other souls
The cup of strength in some great agony,
Enkindle generous ardour, feed pure love,
Beget the smiles that have no cruelty—

Be the sweet presence of a good diffused,
And in diffusion ever more intense.
So shall I join the choir invisible
Whose music is the gladness of the world.

GEORGE ELIOT.

AIRLY BEACON

Oh the pleasant sight to see
Shires and towns from Airly Beacon,
While my love climbed up to me!

Oh the happy hours we lay
Deep in fern on Airly Beacon,
Courting through the summer's day!

Oh the weary haunt for me,
All alone on Airly Beacon,
With his baby on my knee!

THE SANDS OF DEE

'O Mary, go and call the cattle home,
And call the cattle home,
And call the cattle home
Across the sands of Dee';
The western wind was wild and dank with

The western wind was wild and dank with foam, 5 And all alone went she.

The western tide crept up along the sand, And o'er and o'er the sand, And round and round the sand,

As far as eye could see.

The rolling mist came down and hid the land:
And never home came she.

Oh! is it weed, or fish, or floating hair— A tress of golden hair, A drownéd maiden's hair

Above the nets at sea? Was never salmon yet that shone so fair Among the stakes on Dee.'

They rowed her in across the rolling foam,
The cruel crawling foam,	20
The cruel hungry foam,
To her grave beside the sea:
But still the boatmen hear her call the cattle h	iome
Across the sands of Dee.

ODE TO THE NORTH-EAST WIND
Welcome, wild North-easter!
Shame it is to see
Odes to every zephyr;
Ne'er a verse to thee.
Welcome, black North-easter!	5
O'er the German foam;
O'er the Danish moorlands,
From thy frozen home.
Tired we are of summer,
Tired of gaudy glare,	10
Showers soft and steaming,
Hot and breathless air.
Tired of listless dreaming,
Through the lazy day:
Jovial wind of winter,	15
Turn us out to play!
Sweep the golden reed-beds;
Crisp the lazy dyke;
Hunger into madness
Every plunging pike.	20
Fill the lake with wild-fowl;
Fill the marsh with snipe;
While on dreary moorlands
Lonely curlew pipe.
Through the black fir-forest	25
Thunder harsh and dry,
Shattering down the snow-flakes
Off the curdled sky.
Hark! The brave North-easter!
Breast-high lies the scent	30

KINGSLEY	405
On by holt and headland, Over heath and bent.
Chime, ye dappled darlings,
Through the sleet and snow, Who can over-ride you?	35
Let the horses go!	55
Chime, ye dappled darlings,
Down the roaring blast;
You shall see a fox die	••
Ere an hour be past.	40
Go! and rest to-morrow, Hunting in your dreams,
While our skates are ringing
O'er the frozen streams.
Let the luscious South-wind	45
Breathe in lovers' sighs,
While the lazy gallants Bask in ladies' eyes.
What does he but soften
Heart alike and pen?	50
'Tis the hard grey weather
Breeds hard English men.
What's the soft South-wester?
'Tis the ladies' breeze,	55
Bringing home their trueloves Out of all the seas:	55
But the black North-easter,
Through the snow-storm hurled,
Drives our English hearts of oak
Seaward round the world.	60
Come, as came our fathers,
Heralded by thee, Conquering from the eastward,
Lords by land and sea.
Come; and strong within us	65
Stir the Vikings' blood;
Bracing brain and sinew;
Blow, thou wind of God!

YOUNG AND OLD

When all the world is young, lad,
And all the trees are green;
And every goose a swan, lad,
And every lass a queen;
Then hey for boot and horse, lad,
And round the world away;
Young blood must have its course, lad,
And every dog his day.

When all the world is old, lad,
And all the trees are brown; 10
And all the sport is stale, lad,
And all the wheels run down;
Creep home, and take your place there,
The spent and maimed among:
God grant you find one face there,
You loved when all was young.

O CAPTAIN! MY CAPTAIN!

O Captain! my Captain! our fearful trip is done, The ship has weather'd every rack, the prize we sought is won,

The port is near, the bells I hear, the people all exulting,

While follow eyes the steady keel, the vessel grim and daring,

But O heart! heart! heart!
O the bleeding drops of red!
Where on the deck my Captain lies,
Fallen cold and dead.

O Captain! my Captain! rise up and hear the bells; Rise up—for you the flag is flung—for you the bugle trills,

110000
For you bouquets and ribbon'd wreaths—for the shores a-crowding,  For you they call, the swaying mass, their efaces turning;  Here Captain! dear father!  This arm beneath your head!  It is some dream that on the deck You've fallen cold and dead.	ager

O love my Willie!  'Like me, love me, girl o' gowd,' Sang he to my nimble strain; Sweet his ruddy lips o'erflowed Till my heartstrings rang again; By the broom, the bonny broom,	10
Kingcup and daffodilly, In my heart I made him room: O love my Willie!	15

'I must go, yet pipe and play;
Soon I'll come and ask of thee For an answer yea or nay;'	20
And I waited till the flocks Panted in you waters stilly,
And the corn stood in the shocks:
O love my Willie!
I thought first when thou didst come I would wear the ring for thee,	25

But the year told out its sum

Ere again thou sat'st by me;
Thou hadst naught to ask that day

By kingcup and daffodilly;
I said neither yea nor nay:

O love my Willie!

THE HIGH TIDE ON THE COAST OF LINCOLNSHIRE (1571)

The old mayor climbed the belfry tower,
The ringers ran by two, by three;
'Pull, if ye never pulled before;
Good ringers, pull your best,' quoth he.
'Play uppe, play uppe, O Boston bells!
Ply all your changes, all your swells,
Play uppe "The Brides of Enderby."'

Men say it was a stolen tyde—
The Lord that sent it, He knows all;
But in myne ears doth still abide 10
The message that the bells let fall:
And there was naught of strange, beside
The flight of mews and peewits pied
By millions crouched on the old sea wall.

I sat and spun within the doore, My thread brake off, I raised myne eyes The level sun, like ruddy ore, Lay sinking in the barren skies; And dark against day's golden death She moved where Lindis wandereth, My sonne's faire wife, Elizabeth.	15 ; 20
'Cusha! Cusha! 'calling, Ere the early dews were falling, Farre away I heard her song, 'Cusha! Cusha!' all along; Where the reedy Lindis floweth, Floweth, floweth, From the meads where melick groweth Faintly came her milking song.	25
<ul> <li>Cusha! Cusha! Cusha! calling,</li> <li>For the dews will soone be falling;</li> <li>Leave your meadow grasses mellow,</li></ul>	30 t,
Hollow, hollow; Come uppe Jetty, rise and follow, From the clovers lift your head; Come uppe Whitefoot, come uppe Lightfoot Come uppe Jetty, rise and follow, Jetty, to the milking shed.
If it be long, aye, long ago, When I beginne to think howe long, Againe I hear the Lindis flow, Swift as an arrowe, sharp and strong; And all the aire, it seemeth mee, Bin full of floating bells (sayth shee), That ring the tune of Enderby.	45
Alle fresh the level pasture lay, And not a shadowe mote be seene,	50

Save where full fyve good miles away The steeple towered from out the greene; And lo! the great bell farre and wide Was heard in all the country side That Saturday at eventide.  55
The swanherds where their sedges are Moved on in sunset's golden breath, The shepherde lads I heard afarre, And my sonne's wife, Elizabeth; Till floating o'er the grassy sea Came downe that kyndly message free, The 'Brides of Mavis Enderby.'
Then some looked uppe into the sky, And all along where Lindis flows To where the goodly vessels lie,
And where the lordly steeple shows.  They sayde, 'And why should this thing be?  What danger lowers by land or sea?  They ring the tune of Enderby!  70
'For evil news from Mablethorpe, Of pyrate galleys warping down; For shippes ashore beyond the scorpe, They have not spared to wake the towne But while the west bin red to see, And storms be none, and pyrates flee, Why ring "The Brides of Enderby"?'
I looked without, and lo! my sonne Came riding downe with might and main: He raised a shout as he drew on, Till all the welkin rang again, 'Elizabeth! Elizabeth!' (A sweeter woman ne'er drew breath Than my sonne's wife, Elizabeth.)
'The olde sea wall (he cried) is downe, The rising tide comes on apace, And boats adrift in yonder towne Go sailing uppe the market-place.'

He shook as one that looks on death: 'God save you, mother!' straight he saith 'Where is my wife, Elizabeth?'	; 91
'Good sonne, where Lindis winds away, 'With her two bairns I marked her long; And ere yon bells beganne to play Afar I heard her milking song.'	95
He looked across the grassy lea, To right, to left, 'Ho Enderby!' They rang 'The Brides of Enderby!'
With that he cried and beat his breast; For, lo! along the river's bed A mighty eygre reared his crest, And uppe the Lindis raging sped. It swept with thunderous noises loud;	100
Shaped like a curling snow-white cloud, Or like a demon in a shroud.	105
And rearing Lindis backward pressed Shook all her trembling bankes amaine Then madly at the eygre's breast Flung uppe her weltering walls again. Then bankes came downe with ruin and rout Then beaten foam flew round about— Then all the mighty floods were out.
So farre, so fast the eygre drave, The heart had hardly time to beat, Before a shallow scething wave Sobbed in the grasses at oure feet: The feet had hardly time to flee Before it brake against the knee, And all the world was in the sea.	115
Upon the roofe we sate that night, The noise of bells went sweeping by: I marked the lofty beacon light	120
Stream from the church tower, red and high	ı—
A lurid mark and dread to see; And awesome bells they were to mee, That in the dark rang 'Enderby.'	125

They rang the sailor lads to guide From roofe to roofe who fearless rowed And I—my sonne was at my side, And yet the ruddy beacon glowed: And yet he moaned beneath his breath, 'O come in life, or come in death! O lost! my love, Elizabeth.'	; 130
And didst thou visit him no more?  Thou didst, thou didst, my daughter dea The waters laid thee at his doore, Ere yet the early dawn was clear. Thy pretty bairns in fast embrace, The lifted sun shone on thy face, Downe drifted to thy dwelling-place.	re ; 136
That flow strewed wrecks about the grass, That ebbe swept out the flocks to sea; A fatal ebbe and flow, alas! To manye more than myne and mee: But each will mourn his own (she saith), And sweeter woman ne'er drew breath Than my sonne's wife, Elizabeth.	145
I shall never hear her more By the reedy Lindis shore, 'Cusha! Cusha! Cusha!' calling, Ere the early dews be falling; I shall never hear her song, 'Cusha! Cusha!' all along Where the sunny Lindis floweth,	150
Goeth, floweth; From the meads where melick groweth, When the water winding down, Onward floweth to the town.	155
I shall never see her more Where the reeds and rushes quiver, Shiver, quiver; Stand beside the sobbing river, Sobbing, throbbing, in its falling To the sandy lonesome shore;	160

I shall never hear her calling, Leave your meadow grasses mellow, Mellow, mellow; Quit your cowslips, cowslips yellow;	165
Come uppe Whitefoot, come uppe Lightfo Quit your pipes of parsley hollow, Hollow, hollow; Come uppe Lightfoot, rise and follow;	ot; 170
Lightfoot, Whitefoot, From your clovers lift the head; Come uppe Jetty, follow, follow, Jetty, to the milking shed.'  JEAN INGELOW	175 7.

THE FORSAKEN MERMAN
Come, dear children, let us away: Down and away below!  Now my brothers call from the bay; Now the great winds shoreward blow Now the salt tides seaward flow; Now the wild white horses play, Champ and chafe and toss in the spray. Children dear, let us away! This way, this way!	5
Call her once before you go.	10
Call once yet.  In a voice that she will know:  'Margaret! Margaret!'  Children's voices should be dear
(Call once more) to a mother's ear: Children's voices, wild with pain— Surely she will come again. Call her once and come away;	15
This way, this way! 'Mother dear, we cannot stay.' The wild white horses foam and fret. Margaret! Margaret!	20

Come, dear children, come away down!
Call no more! One last look at the white-walled town, And the little grey church on the windy shore. Then come down.	25
She will not come though you call all day. Come away, come away!
Children dear, was it yesterday We heard the sweet bells over the bay? In the caverns where we lay, Through the surf and through the swell, The far-off sound of a silver bell?	30
Sand-strewn caverns, cool and deep, Where the winds are all asleep; Where the spent lights quiver and gleam; Where the salt weed sways in the stream; Where the sea-beasts ranged all round	35
Feed in the ooze of their pasture-ground; Where the sea-snakes coil and twine, Dry their mail and bask in the brine; Where great whales come sailing by, Sail and sail, with unshut eye,	40
Round the world for ever and ay? When did music come this way? Children dear, was it yesterday?	45
Children dear, was it yesterday (Call yet once) that she went away? Once she sate with you and me, On a red gold throne in the heart of the sea, And the youngest sate on her knee.	50
She comb'd its bright hair, and she tended it we When down swung the sound of the far-off bell

She smiled, she went up through the surf in the bay. Children dear, was it yesterday?
Children dear, were we long alone? 'The sea grows stormy, the little ones moan. Long prayers,' I said, 'in the world they say. Come!' I said, and we rose through the surf in the bay.
We went up the beach, by the sandy down Where the sea-stocks bloom, to the white-walled town.
Through the narrow paved streets, where all was still, To the little grey church on the windy hill. 71 From the church came a murmur of folk at their prayers,
But we stood without in the cold blowing airs. We climbed on the graves, on the stones, worn with rains,
And we gazed up the aisle through the small-leaded panes.
She sate by the pillar; we saw her clear: 'Margaret, hist! come quick, we are here. Dear heart,' I said, 'we are long alone. The sea grows stormy, the little ones moan.' But, ah, she gave me never a look, For her eyes were sealed to the holy book! Loud prays the priest; shut stands the door. Come away, children, call no more! Come away, come down, call no more!
Down, down, down!  Down to the depths of the sea!  She sits at her wheel in the humming town,
Singing most joyfully.  Hark, what she sings: 'O joy, O joy, 89  For the humming street, and the child with its toy!  For the priest, and the bell, and the holy well—  For the wheel where I spun,  And the blessed light of the sun!'
And so she sings her fill, Singing most joyfully, 95

THE SONG OF CALLICLES ON ETNA
Through the black, rushing smoke-burst Thick breaks the red flame; All Etna heaves fiercely Her forest-clothed frame.	ts,
Not here, O Apollo! Are haunts meet for thee. But, where Helicon breaks down In cliff to the sea,	5
Where the moon-silver'd inlets Send far their light voice Up the still vale of Thisbe, O speed, and rejoice!	10
On the sward at the cliff-top Lie strewn the white flocks; On the cliff-side the pigeons Roost deep in the rocks.	15
In the moonlight the shepherds, Soft lull'd by the rills, Lie wrapt in their blankets, Asleep on the hills.	20

—What forms are these coming So white through the gloom? What garments out-glistening The gold-flower'd broom?
What sweet-breathing presence Out-perfumes the thyme? What voices enrapture The night's balmy prime?—	25
'Tis Apollo comes leading His choir, the Nine. —The leader is fairest, But all are divine.	30
They are lost in the hollows! They stream up again! What seeks on this mountain The glorified train?—	35
They bathe on this mountain, In the spring by their road; Then on to Olympus, Their endless abode!	40
—Whose praise do they mention? Of what is it told?— What will be for ever; What was from of old.
First hymn they the Father Of all things;—and then, The rest of immortals, The action of men.	45
The day in his hotness, The strife with the palm; The night in her silence, The stars in their calm.	50

SHAKESPEARE

Others abide our question—Thou art free!
We ask and ask—Thou smilest and art still,
Out-topping knowledge! So some sovran hill
Who to the stars uncrowns his majesty,
Planting his steadfast footsteps in the sca,
Making the heaven of heavens his dwellingplace,
Spares but the border, often, of his base

To the foil'd searching of mortality;
And thou, whose headdid stars and sunbeams know.

Self-school'd, self-scann'd, self-honour'd, self-secure,

Didst walk on earth unguess'd at.—Better so!
All pains the immortal spirit must endure,
All weakness which impairs, all griefs which bow,
Find their sole voice in that victorious brow.

A SUMMER NIGHT

In the deserted moon-blanch'd street
How lonely rings the echo of my feet!
Those windows, which I gaze at, frown,
Silent and white, unopening down,
Repellent as the world;—but see!
A break between the housetops shows
The moon, and, lost behind her, fading dim
Into the dewy dark obscurity
Down at the far horizon's rim,
Doth a whole tract of heaven disclose,
And to my mind the thought

Is on a sudden brought
Of a past night, and a far different scene.
Headlands stood out into the moon-lit deep
As clearly as at noon;

The spring-tide's brimming flow Heaved dazzlingly between;

The blue haze-cradled mountains spread away.  That night was far more fair— But the same restless pacings to and fro, And the same vainly throbbing heart was there	20 25
And the calm moonlight seems to say:  Hast thou then still the old unquiet breast,  Which never deadens into rest,  Nor ever feels the fiery glow
That whirls the spirit from itself away, But fluctuates to and fro, Never by passion quite possess'd, And never quite benumb'd by the world's sway? And I, I know not if to pray	30
Still to be what I am, or yield, and be Like all the other men I sec.  For most men in a brazen prison live,	35
Dreaming of nought beyond their prison-wall.  And as, year after year,	40
Fresh products of their barren labour fall From their tired hands, and rest Never yet comes more near, Gloom settles slowly down over their breast; And while they try to stem	45
The waves of mournful thought by which they are prest,	re
Death in their prison reaches them, Unfreed, having seen nothing, still unblest.	50
And the rest, a few, Escape their prison, and depart On the wide ocean of life anew.
There the freed prisoner, where'er his heart	55

Nor doth he know how there prevail,
Despotic on that sea,
Trade-winds which cross it from eternity.
Awhile he holds some false way, undebarr'd
By thwarting signs, and braves 60
The freshening wind and blackening waves.
And then the tempest strikes him; and between
The lightning-bursts is seen
Only a driving wreck,
And the pale master on his spar-strewn deck 65
With anguish'd face and flying hair
Grasping the rudder hard,
Still bent to make some port he knows not where,
Still standing for some false impossible shore.
And sterner comes the roar 70
Of sea and wind, and through the deepening gloom
Fainter and fainter wreck and helmsman loom,
And he too disappears, and comes no more.
To these no life but these along 9
Is there no life, but these alone?  Madman or slave, must man be one?

MORALITY
We cannot kindle when we will The fire which in the heart resides, The spirit bloweth and is still, In mystery our soul abides; But tasks in hours of insight will'd Can be through hours of gloom fulfill'd.	5
With aching hands and bleeding feet We dig and heap, lay stone on stone; We bear the burden and the heat Of the long day, and wish 'twere done. Not till the hours of light return All we have built do we discern.	10
Then, when the clouds are off the soul, When thou dost bask in Nature's eye, Ask, how she view'd thy self-control, Thy struggling, task'd morality— Nature, whose free, light, cheerful air, Oft made thee, in thy gloom, despair.	15
And she, whose censure thou dost dread, Whose eye thou wast afraid to seek, See, on her face a glow is spread, A strong emotion on her cheek! 'Ah, child!' she cries, 'that strife diving Whence was it, for it is not mine?	20 ne,
'There is no effort on my brow— I do not strive, I do not weep; I rush with the swift spheres and glow In joy, and, when I will, I sleep! Yet that severe, that earnest air, I saw, I felt it once—but where?	25 30

THE FUTURE

A wanderer is man from his birth.

He was born in a ship
On the breast of the river of Time;
Brimming with wonder and joy
He spreads out his arms to the light,
Rivets his gaze on the banks of the stream.

As what he sees is, so have his thoughts been.

Whether he wakes

Where the snowy mountainous pass,
Echoing the screams of the eagles,
Hems in its gorges the bed
Of the new-born clear-flowing stream;
Whether he first sees light
Where the river in gleaming rings
Sluggishly winds through the plain;
Whether in sound of the swallowing sca—
As is the world on the banks,
So is the mind of the man.

Vainly does each as he glides
Fable and dream
Of the lands which the river of Time
Had left ere he woke on its breast,
Or shall reach when his eyes have been clos'd.
Only the tract where he sails
He wots of; only the thoughts,
25
Raised by the objects he passes, are his.

Who can see the green earth any more As she was by the sources of Time? Who imagines her fields as they lay In the sunshine, unworn by the plough? Who thinks as they thought, The tribes who then roam'd on her breast, Her vigorous primitive sons?	30
What girl Now reads in her bosom as clear As Rebekah read, when she sate At eve by the palm-shaded well? Who guards in her breast As deep, as pellucid a spring Of feeling, as tranquil, as sure?	35 40
What bard, At the height of his vision, can deem Of God, of the world, of the soul, With a plainness as near, As flashing as Moses felt, When he lay in the night by his flock On the starlit Arabian waste? Can rise and obey The beck of the Spirit like him?	45
This tract which the river of Time Now flows through with us, is the plain. Gone is the calm of its earlier shore. Border'd by cities, and hoarse	50
With a thousand cries is its stream.  And we on its breast, our minds  Are confused as the cries which we hear,  Changing and shot as the sights which we see	55 e.

And we say that repose has fled
For ever the course of the river of Time.
That cities will crowd to its edge
In a blacker incessanter line;
That the din will be more on its banks,
Denser the trade on its stream,

A	$\mathbf{r}$	NT	1	1	$\mathbf{D}$
4	л	Ľ	v	ı.	w

Flatter the plain where it flows, Fiercer the sun overhead.  That never will those on its breast See an ennobling sight, Drink of the feeling of quiet again.	5
But what was before us we know not, And we know not what shall succeed.	0
Haply, the river of Time, As it grows, as the towns on its marge Fling their wavering lights On a wider, statelier stream— May acquire, if not the calm Of its early mountainous shore, Yet a solemn peace of its own.	75
Peace to the soul of the man on its breast; As the pale waste widens around him— As the banks fade dimmer away—	81
As the stars come out, and the night-wind 8 Brings up the stream Murmurs and scents of the infinite Sea. M. Arnold.	3€

PHILOMELA

Hark! ah, the nightingale!
The tawny-throated!
Hark! from that moonlit cedar what a burst!
What triumph! hark—what pain!

O wanderer from a Grecian shore,

Still, after many years, in distant lands,
Still nourishing in thy bewilder'd brain
That wild, unquench'd, deep-sunken, old-world pain—

Say, will it never heal?

And can this fragrant lawn	10
With its cool trees, and night,
And the sweet, tranquil Thames,
And moonshine, and the dew,
To thy rack'd heart and brain
Afford no balm?	15
Dost thou to-night behold,
Here, through the moonlight on this English g	rass,
The unfriendly palace in the Thracian wild?
Dost thou again peruse
With hot cheeks and sear'd eyes	20
The too clear web, and thy dumb sister's sha	me?
Dost thou once more assay
Thy flight, and feel come over thee,
Poor fugitive, the feathery change
Once more, and once more seem to make reso	und
With love and hate, triumph and agony,	26
Lone Daulis, and the high Cephissian vale?
Listen, Eugenia—
How thick the bursts come crowding through	ı the leaves!
Again—thou hearest?	30

REQUIESCAT

Strew on her roses, roses, And never a spray of yew. In quiet she reposes; Ah! would that I did too.

Her mirth'the world required; She bathed it in smiles of glee. But her heart was tired, tired, And now they let her be.

Her life was turning, turning,
In mazes of heat and sound;
But for peace her soul was yearning,
And now peace laps her round.

10

Her cabin'd, ample spirit,
It flutter'd and fail'd for breath;
To-night it doth inherit
The vasty hall of death.

THE SCHOLAR GIPSY

'There was very lately a lad in the University of Oxford, who was by his poverty forced to leave his studies there; and at last to join himself to a company of vagabond gipsies. Among these extravagant people, by the insunating subtility of his carriage, he quickly got so much of their love and esteem as that they discovered to him their mystery. After he had been a pretty while well exercised in the trade, there chanced to ride by a couple of scholars, who had formerly been of his acquaintance. They quickly spied out their old friend among the gipsies; and he gave them an account of the necessity which drove him to that kind of life, and told them that the people he went with were not such impostors as they were taken for, but that they had a traditional kind of learning among them, and could do wonders by the power of imagination, their fancy binding that of others: that himself had learned much of their art, and when he had compassed the whole secret, he intended, he said, to leave their company, and give the world an account of what he had learned. —GLANVIL'S Vanity of Dogmatring, 1661.

Go, for they call you, shepherd, from the hill!
Go, shepherd, and untic the wattled cotes!
No longer leave thy wistful flock unfed,
Nor let thy bawling fellows rack their throats,
Nor the cropp'd grasses shoot another head!
But when the fields are still,
And the tired men and dogs all gone to rest,
And only the white sheep are sometimes seen
Cross and recross the strips of moon-blanch'd

green, Come, shepherd, and again begin the quest! 10° Here, where the reaper was at work of late—
In this high field's dark corner, where he leaves
His coat, his basket, and his earthen cruse,
And in the sun all morning binds the sheaves,
Then here, at noon, comes back his stores to

Here will I sit and wait,

While to my ear from uplands far away
The bleating of the folded flocks is borne,
With distant cries of reapers in the corn—
All the live murmur of a summer's day.

Screen'd is this nook o'er the high, half-reap'd field, And here till sun-down, shepherd, will I be! Through the thick corn the scarlet poppies peep, And round green roots and yellowing stalks I see Pale blue convolvulus in tendrils creep; 25 And air-swept lindens yield

Their scent, and rustle down their perfumed showers

Of bloom on the bent grass where I am laid, And bower me from the August sun with shade; And the eye travels down to Oxford's towers.

And near me on the grass lies Glanvil's book—
Come, let me read the oft-read tale again! 32
The story of that Oxford scholar poor,
Of shining parts and quick inventive brain,

Who, tired of knocking at preferment's door,

One summer morn forsook

His friends, and went to learn the gipsy lore,
And roam'd the world with that wild brotherhood,
38

And came, as most men deem'd, to little good, But came to Oxford and his friends no more.

But once, years after, in the country-lanes, Two scholars whom at college erst he knew Met him, and of his way of life inquir'd.

Whereat he answer'd, that the gipsy crew, His mates, had arts to rule as they desired The workings of men's brains; 46 And they can bind them to what thoughts they will. 'And I,' he said, 'the secret of their art, When fully learn'd, will to the world impart; But it needs heaven-sent moments for this skill!'
This said, he left them, and return'd no more.— But rumours hung about the country-side 52 That the lost Scholar long was seen to stray, Seen by rare glimpses, pensive and tongue-tied, In hat of antique shape, and cloak of grey, The same the gipsies wore. 56 Shepherds had met him on the Hurst in spring; At some lone alehouse in the Berkshire moors, On the warm ingle-bench, the smock-frock'd boors
Had found him seated at their entering, 60
But, mid their drink and clatter, he would fly;— And I myself seem half to know thy looks, And put the shepherds, wanderer, on thy trace; And boys who in lone wheatfields scare the rooks I ask if thou hast pass'd their quiet place; Or in my boat I lie 66 Moor'd to the cool bank in the summer heats, Mid wide grass meadows which the sunshine fills, And watch the warm green-muffled Cumner hills,
And wonder if thou haunt'st their shy retreats.
For most, I know, thou lov'st retired ground! 71 Thee, at the ferry, Oxford riders blithe, Returning home on summer nights, have met Crossing the stripling Thames at Bablock-hithe, Trailing in the cool stream thy fingers wet, As the punt's rope chops round; 76 And leaning backward in a pensive dream, And fostering in thy lap a heap of flowers Pluck'd in shy fields and distant Wychwood bowers,
And thine eyes resting on the moonlit stream!

And then they land, and thou art seen no more! Maidens who from the distant hamlets come To dance around the Fyfield elm in May, Oft through the darkening fields have seen thee or cross a stile into the public way.  Of thou hast given them store  Of flowers—the frail-leaf'd, white anemone,
Dark bluebells drench'd with dews of summer eves,  And purple orchises with spotted leaves—
But none has words she can report of thee. 90 And, above Godstow Bridge, when hay-time 's here In June, and many a seythe in sunshine flames,
Men who through those wide fields of breezy grass Where black-wing'dswallows hauntthe glittering Thames, To bathe in the abandon'd lasher pass, Have often pass'd thee near Sitting upon the river bank o'ergrown; Mark'd thine outlandish garb, thy figure spare, Thy dark vague eyes, and soft abstracted air—
But, when they came from bathing, thou wert gone! 100  At some lone homestead in the Cumner hills,
Where at her open door the housewife darns, Thou hast been seen, or hanging on a gate To watch the threshers in the mossy barns.
Children, who early range these slopes and late For cresses from the rills, Have known thee watching, all an April day,
The springing pastures and the feeding kine; And mark'd thee, when the stars come out and shine.
Through the long dewy grass move slow away.
In autumn, on the skirts of Bagley-wood, 111 Where most the gipsies by the turf-edged way Pitchtheirsmokedtents, and every bush you see

With searlet patches tagg'd and shreds of grey,
Above the forest-ground call'd Thessaly—
The blackbird-picking food
116
Sees thee, nor stops his meal, nor fears at all!
So often has he known thee past him stray
Rapt, twirling in thy hand a wither'd spray,
And waiting for the spark from Heaven to fall.

And once, in winter, on the causeway chill 121 Where home through flooded fields foot-travellers go.

Have I not pass'd thee on the wooden bridge Wrapt in thy cloak and battling with the snow Thy face toward Hinksey and its wintry ridge?

And thou hast climb'd the hill

And gain'd the white brow of the Cumner range; Turn'd once to watch, while thick the snowflakes fall,

The line of festal light in Christ-Church hall— Then sought thy straw in some sequester'd grange.

But what—I dream! Two hundred years are flown

Since first thy story ran through Oxford halls, And the grave Glanvil did the tale inscribe

That thou wert wander'd from the studious walls To learn strange arts, and join a gipsy tribe.

And thou from earth art gone 136

Long since, and in some quiet churchyard laid!

Some country nook, where o'er thy unknown grave

Tall grasses and white flowering nettles wave— Under a dark red-fruited yew-tree's shade. 140

—No, no, thou hast not felt the lapse of hours! For what wears out the life of mortal men? 'Tis that from change to change their being rolls:

'Tis that repeated shocks, again, again, Exhaust the energy of strongest souls, And numb the elastic powers.

Till having used our nerves with bliss and teen, And tired upon a thousand schemes our wit, To the just-pausing Genius we remit 149

Our well-worn life, and are—what we have been!

Thou hast not lived, why should'st thou perish, so?
Thou hadst one aim, one business, one desire!
Else wert thou long since number'd with the

Else hadst thou spent, like other men, thy fire!
The generations of thy peers are fled.
And we ourselves shall go:

But thou possessest an immortal lot,

And we imagine thee exempt from age And living as thou liv'st on Glanvil's page, Because thou hadst—what we, alas, have not!

For early didst thou leave the world, with powers

Fresh, undiverted to the world without, 162
Firm to their mark, not spent on other things;

Free from the sick fatigue, the languid doubt,
Which much to have tried, in much been baffled, brings.

O life unlike to ours!

Who fluctuate idly without term or scope, 167 Of whom each strives, nor knows for what he strives.

And each half lives a hundred different lives; Who wait like thee, but not, like thee, in hope. 170

Thou waitest for the spark from Heaven: and we, Light half-believers of our casual creeds,

Who never deeply felt, nor clearly will'd, Whose insight never has borne fruit in deeds, Whose vague resolves never have been

fulfill'd; 175

For whom each year we see Breeds new beginnings, disappointments new; Who hesitate and falter life away,

And lose to-morrow the ground won to-day—Ah, do not we, wanderer, await it too? 180

Yes! we await it, but it still delays,

216

And then we suffer! and amongst us one,
Who most has suffer'd, takes dejectedly
His seat upon the intellectual throne;
And all his store of sad experience he	185
Lays bare of wretched days;
Tells us his misery's birth and growth and si	ane
And how the dwing enough of home was fed	g116,
And how the dying spark of hope was fed	, , , ,
And how the breast was soothed, and how	tne
head,
And all his hourly varied anodynes.	190
Mbin for any minut I and any all any air
This for our wisest! and we others pine,
And wish the long unhappy dream would er	ıa,
And waive all claim to bliss, and try to be
With close-lipp'd patience for our only frien	ıd,
Sad patience, too near neighbour to despa	ir;
But none has hope like thine!	196
Thou through the fields and through the we
dost stray,	JOGES
Roaming the country-side, a truant boy,
Nursing thy project in unclouded joy,
And every doubt long blown by time away.	200
O born in days when wits were fresh and clear
And life man mailer and the smarleting Who man	٠,
And life ran gaily as the sparkling Thames	,
Before this strange disease of modern life	,
With its sick hurry, its divided aims,
Its heads o'ertax'd, its palsied hearts, was r	ife
Fly hence, our contact fear!	206
Still fly, plunge deeper in the bowering woo	$\mathbf{d}$ !
Averse, as Dido did with gesture stern
From her false friend's approach in Hades t	urn.
Wave us away, and keep thy solitude!	210
as a may, and neep ony borroute
Still nursing the unconquerable hope,
Still clutching the inviolable shade.

With a free onward impulse brushing through, By night, the silver'd branches of the glade—
Far on the forest-skirts, where none pursue,

On some mild pastoral slope

Emerge, and resting on the moonlit pales, Freshen thy flowers, as in former years, With dew, or listen with enchanted ears, From the dark dingles, to the nightingales!

But fly our paths, our feverish contact fly! 221
For strong the infection of our mental strife,
Which, though it gives no bliss, yet spoils for rest:

And we should win thee from thy own fair life, Like us distracted, and like us unblest! 225 Soon, soon thy cheer would die,

Thy hopes grow timorous, and unfix'd thy powers,

And thy clear aims be cross and shifting made; And then thy glad perennial youth would fade, Fade, and grow old at last, and die like ours.

Then fly our greetings, fly our speech and smiles!

—As some grave Tyrian trader, from the sea,

Descried at sunrise an emerging prow

Lifting the cool-hair'd creepers stealthily,
The fringes of a southward-facing brow
Among the Aegean isles;
235

And saw the merry Grecian coaster come, Freighted with amber grapes, and Chian wine, Green bursting figs, and tunnies steep'd in brine;

And knew the intruders on his ancient home,

The young light-hearted masters of the waves;
And snatch'd his rudder, and shook out more sail,
And day and night held on indignantly

O'er the blue Midland waters with the gale, Betwixt the Syrtes and soft Sicily, To where the Atlantic rayes

Outside the western straits, and unbent sails There, where down cloudy cliffs, through sheets of foam,

Shy traffickers, the dark Iberians come; And on the beach undid his corded bales. 250 M. Arnold.

RUGBY CHAPEL

November, 1857

Coldly, sadly descends The autumn evening! The field Strewn with its dank yellow drifts Of withered leaves, and the elms, Fade into dimness apace. 5 Silent;—hardly a shout From a few boys late at their play! The lights come out in the street, In the school-room windows; but cold, Solemn, unlighted, austere, 10 Through the gathering darkness, arise The chapel-walls, in whose bound Thou, my father! art laid. There thou dost lie, in the gloom Of the autumn evening. But ah! 15 That word, gloom, to my mind

There thou dost lie, in the gloom
Of the autumn evening. But ah!
That word, gloom, to my mind
Brings thee back in the light
Of thy radiant vigour again!
In the gloom of November we pass'd
Days not of gloom at thy side;
Seasons impair'd not the ray
Of thine even cheerfulness clear.
Such thou wast! and I stand
In the autumn evening, and think
Of bygone autumns with thee.

Fifteen years have gone round
Since thou arosest to tread,
In the summer morning, the road
Of death, at a call unforeseen,
Sudden! For fifteen years,
We who till then in thy shade
Rested as under the boughs
Of a mighty oak, have endured
Sunshine and rain as we might,

Bare, unshaded, alone, Lacking the shelter of thee!	35
O strong soul, by what shore Tarriest thou now? For that force, Surely, has not been left vain! Somewhere, surely, afar, In the sounding labour-house vast Of being, is practised that strength, Zealous, beneficent, firm!	40
Yes, in some far-shining sphere, Conscious or not of the past, Still thou performest the word Of the Spirit in whom thou dost live— Prompt, unwearied, as here!	45
The humble good from the ground, Sternly repressest the bad! Still, like a trumpet, dost rouse Those who with half-open eyes	50
Tread the border-land dim 'Twixt vice and virtue; reviv'st, Succourest!—this was thy work, This was thy life upon earth.	55
What is the course of the life Of mortal men on the earth?— Most men eddy about Here and there—eat and drink, Chatter and love and hate, Gather and squander, are raised	60
Aloft, are hurl'd in the dust, Striving blindly, achieving Nothing; and then they die— Perish! and no one asks Who or what they have been,	65
More than he asks what waves, In the moonlit solitudes mild Of the midmost Ocean, have swell'd, Foam'd for a moment, and gone.	70

And there are some, whom a thirst
Ardent, unquenchable, fires,
Not with the crowd to be spent—	75
Not without aim to go round
In an eddy of purposeless dust,
Effort unmeaning and vain.
Ah yes, some of us strive
Not without action to die	80
Fruitless, but something to snatch
From dull oblivion, nor all
Glut the devouring grave!
We, we have chosen our path—
Path to a clear-purposed goal,	85
Path of advance !—but it leads
A long, steep journey, through sunk
Gorges, o'er mountains in snow!
Cheerful, with friends, we set forth—
Then, on the height, comes the storm!	90
Thunder crashes from rock
To rock, the cataracts reply;
Lightnings dazzle our eyes;
Roaring torrents have breach'd
The track—the stream-bed descends	95
In the place where the wayfarer once
Planted his footstep—the spray
Boils o'er its borders! aloft,
The unseen snow-beds dislodge
Their hanging ruin ;—alas,	100
Havoc is made in our train!
Friends who set forth at our side
Falter, are lost in the storm!
We, we only, are left!
With frowning foreheads, with lips	105
Sternly compress'd, we strain on,	100
On—and at nightfall, at last,
Come to the end of our way,
To the lonely inn 'mid the rocks;
Where the gaunt and taciturn host	110
Stands on the threshold, the wind	110
Shaking his thin white hairs

ARNOLD

Holds his lantern to scan Our storm-beat figures, and asks: Whom in our party we bring? Whom we have left in the snow?	115
Sadly we answer: We bring Only ourselves! we lost Sight of the rest in the storm! Hardly ourselves we fought through, Stripp'd, without friends, as we are! Friends, companions, and train The avalanche swept from our side.	120
But thou would'st not alone Be saved, my father! alone Conquer and come to thy goal, Leaving the rest in the wild.	125
We were weary, and we Fearful, and we, in our march, Fain to drop down and to die. Still thou turnedst, and still Beckonedst the trembler, and still	130
Gavest the weary thy hand! If, in the paths of the world, Stones might have wounded thy feet, Toil or dejection have tried Thy spirit, of that we saw	135
Nothing! to us thou wert still Cheerful, and helpful, and firm. Therefore to thee it was given Many to save with thyself; And, at the end of thy day, O faithful shepherd! to come, Bringing thy sheep in thy hand.	140
And through thee I believe In the noble and great who are gone; Pure souls honour'd and blest By former ages, who else—	145
Such, so soulless, so poor, Is the race of men whom I see—	150

Seem'd but a dream of the heart,
Seem'd but a cry of desire.
Yes! I believe that there lived
Others like thee in the past,
Not like the men of the crowd	155
Who all round me to-day
Bluster or cringe, and make life
Hideous, and arid, and vile;
But souls temper'd with fire,
Fervent, heroic, and good,	160
Helpers and friends of mankind.

Servants of God!—or sons
Shall I not call you? because
Not as servants ye knew
Your Father's innermost mind,
His, who unwillingly sees
One of his little ones lost—
Yours is the praise, if mankind
Hath not as yet in its march
Fainted, and fallen, and died!

170

See! in the rocks of the world Marches the host of mankind. A feeble, wavering line! Where are they tending?—A God Marshall'd them, gave them their goal.-Ah, but the way is so long! 176 Years they have been in the wild! Sore thirst plagues them; the rocks, Rising all round, overawe. Factions divide them—their host 180 Threatens to break, to dissolve.— Ah, keep, keep them combined! Else, of the myriads who fill That army, not one shall arrive! Sole they shall stray; in the rocks 185 Labour for ever in vain, Die one by one in the waste.

Then, in such hour of need Of your fainting, dispirited race, Ye, like angels, appear, 190 Radiant with ardour divine. Beacons of hope, ye appear! Languor is not in your heart, Weakness is not in your word, Weariness not on your brow. 195 Ye alight in our van! at your voice. Panic, despair, flee away. Ye move through the ranks, recall The stragglers, refresh the outworn, Praise, re-inspire the brave ! 200 Order, courage, return. Eyes rekindling, and prayers, Follow your steps as ye go. Ye fill up the gaps in our files. Strengthen the wavering line, 205 Stablish, continue our march, On, to the bound of the waste, On, to the City of God!

M. ARNOLD.

MIMNERMUS IN CHURCH

You promise heavens free from strife,
Pure truth, and perfect change of will;
But sweet, sweet is this human life,
So sweet, I fain would breathe it still;
Your chilly stars I can forgo,
This warm kind world is all I know.

You say there is no substance here,
One great reality above:
Back from that void I shrink in fear,
And childlike hide myself in love:
Show me what angels feel. Till then,
I cling, a mere weak man, to men.

You bid me lift my mean desires
From faltering lips and fitful veins
To sexless souls, ideal quires,
Unwearied voices, wordless strains:
My mind with fonder welcome owns
One dear dead friend's remembered tones.
Forsooth the present we must give
To that which cannot pass away;
All beauteous things for which we live
By laws of time and space decay.
But oh, the very reason why
I clasp them, is because they die.

HERACLITUS

They toldme, Heraclitus, they toldme you were dead, They brought me bitter news to hear and bitter tears to shed.

I wept, as I remembered, how often you and I Had tired the sun with talking and sent him down the sky.

AMATURUS

Somewhere beneath the sun,
These quivering heart-strings prove it,
Somewhere there must be one
Made for this soul, to move it;
Some one that hides her sweetness
From neighbours whom she slights,
Nor can attain completeness,
Nor give her heart its rights;
Some one whom I could court
With no great change of manner,

10

Still holding reason's fort,
Though waving fancy's banner;
A lady, not so queenly
As to disdain my hand,
Yet born to smile serenely	15
Like those that rule the land;
Noble, but not too proud;
With soft hair simply folded,
And bright face crescent-browed,
And throat by Muses moulded;	20
And eyelids lightly falling
On little glistening seas,
Deep-calm, when gales are brawling,
Though stirred by every breeze:
Swift voice, like flight of dove	25
Through minster arches floating,
With sudden turns, when love
Gets overnear to doting;
Keen lips, that shape soft sayings
Like crystals of the snow,	30
With pretty half-betrayings
Of things one may not know;
Fair hand, whose touches thrill,
Like golden rod of wonder,
Which Hermes wields at will	35
Spirit and flesh to sunder;
Light foot, to press the stirrup
In fearlessness and glee,
Or dance, till finches chirrup,
And stars sink to the sea.	40
Forth, Love, and find this maid,
Wherever she be hidden:
Speak, Love, be not afraid,
But plead as thou art bidden;
And say, that he who taught thee	45
His yearning want and pain,
Too dearly, dearly bought thee
To part with thee in vain.
W I CORY

THE MARRIED LOVER

Why, having won her, do I woo?
Because her spirit's vestal grace
Provokes me always to pursue,
But, spirit-like, eludes embrace;
Because her womanhood is such	5
That, as on court-days subjects kiss
The Queen's hand, yet so near a touch
Affirms no mean familiarness;
Nay, rather marks more fair the height
Which can with safety so neglect	10
To dread, as lower ladies might,
That grace could meet with disrespect;
Thus she with happy favour feeds
Allegiance from a love so high
That thence no false conceit proceeds	15
Of difference bridged, or state put by;
Because, although in act and word
As lowly as a wife can be,
Her manners, when they call me lord,
Remind me 'tis by courtesy;	20
Not with her least consent of will,
Which would my proud affection hurt,
But by the noble style that still
Imputes an unattain'd desert;
Because her gay and lofty brows,	25
When all is won which hope can ask,
Reflect a light of hopeless snows
That bright in virgin ether bask;
Because, though free of the outer court
I am, this Temple keeps its shrine	30
Sacred to Heaven; because, in short,
She's not and never can be mine.
C. PATMORE	2.

THE TOYS
My little Son, who look'd from thoughtful eyes And moved and spoke in quiet grown-up wise, Having my law the seventh time disobey'd, I struck him, and dismiss'd
With hard words and unkiss'd, His Mother, who was patient, being dead. Then, fearing lest his grief should hinder sleep,
I visited his bed, But found him slumbering deep,
With darken'd eyelids, and their lashes yet From his late sobbing wet. And I, with moan,
Kissing away his tears, left others of my own; For, on a table drawn beside his head,
He had put, within his reach, A box of counters and a red-vein'd stone,
A piece of glass abraded by the beach, And six or seven shells, A bottle with bluebells,
And two French copper coins, ranged there with careful art,  To comfort his sad heart.
So when that night I pray'd To God, I wept, and said:
Ah, when at last we lie with trancéd breath, Not vexing Thee in death, And Thou rememberest of what toys
We made our joys, How weakly understood Thy great commanded good,
Then, fatherly not less 30 Than I whom Thou hast moulded from the clay, Thou'lt leave Thy wrath, and say,
1 will be sorry for their childishness.  C. Patmore.

KEITH OF RAVELSTON

The murmur of the mourning ghost That keeps the shadowy kine, 'Oh, Keith of Ravelston, The sorrows of thy line!'
Ravelston, Ravelston, The merry path that leads Down the golden morning hill, And thro' the silver meads;	5
Ravelston, Ravelston, The stile beneath the tree, The maid that kept her mother's kine, The song that sang she!	10
She sang her song, she kept her kine, She sat beneath the thorn, When Andrew Keith of Ravelston Rode thro' the Monday morn.	15
His henchmen sing, his hawk-bells ring, His belted jewels shine! Oh, Keith of Ravelston, The sorrows of thy line!	20
Year after year, where Andrew came, Comes evening down the glade, And still there sits a moonshine ghost Where sat the sunshine maid.
Her misty hair is faint and fair, She keeps the shadowy kine; Oh, Keith of Ravelston, The sorrows of thy line!	25
I lay my hand upon the stile, The stile is lone and cold; The burnie that goes babbling by Says naught that can be told.	30

The sorrows of thy line!	35
Step out three steps, where Andrew stood— Why blanch thy cheeks for fear? The ancient stile is not alone, 'Tis not the burn I hear!	40
She makes her immemorial moan, She keeps her shadowy kine; Oh, Keith of Ravelston, The sorrows of thy line! S. DOBELL.

THE BLESSED DAMOZEL
The blesséd damozel leaned out From the gold bar of Heaven; Her eyes were deeper than the depth Of waters stilled at even; She had three lilies in her hand, And the stars in her hair were seven.	5
Her robe, ungirt from clasp to hem, No wrought flowers did adorn, But a white rose of Mary's gift, For service meetly worn; Her hair that lay along her back Was yellow like ripe corn.	10
Herseemed she scarce had been a day One of God's choristers; The wonder was not yet quite gone From that still look of hers; Albeit, to them she left, her day Had counted as ten years.	15
(To one, it is ten years of years Yet now, and in this place	20

D. G. ROSSETTI	447
Surely she leaned o'er me—her hair Fell all about my face  Nothing: the autumn fall of leaves.  The whole year sets apace.)
It was the rampart of God's house That she was standing on; By God built over the sheer depth The which is Space begun; So high, that looking downward thence She scarce could see the sun.	25 30
It lies in Heaven, across the flood Of ether, as a bridge. Beneath, the tides of day and night With flame and darkness ridge The void, as low as where this earth Spins like a fretful midge.	35
Heard hardly, some of her new friends Amid their loving games Spake evermore among themselves Their virginal chaste names; And the souls mounting up to God Went by her like thin flames.	40
And still she bowed herself and stooped Out of the circling charm; Until her bosom must have made The bar she leaned on warm, And the lilies lay as if asleep Along her bended arm.	45
From the fixed place of Heaven she saw Time like a pulse shake fierce Through all the worlds. Her gaze still str Within the gulf to pierce Its path; and now she spoke as when The stars sang in their spheres.	50 ove
The sun was gone now; the curled moon Was like a little feather	55

Fluttering far down the gulf; and now She spoke through the still weather. Her voice was like the voice the stars Had when they sang together.	60
(Ah sweet! Even now, in that bird's song Strove not her accents there, Fain to be hearkened? When those bells Possessed the mid-day air,	•
Strove not her steps to reach my side Down all the echoing stair?)  'I wish that he were come to me,	65
For he will come,' she said.  'Have I not prayed in Heaven?—on earth Lord, Lord, has he not prayed?  Are not two prayers a perfect strength?  And shall I feel afraid?	1 ,
'When round his head the aureole clings, And he is clothed in white, I'll take his hand and go with him To the deep wells of light; We will step down as to a stream,	75
And bathe there in God's sight.  'We two will stand beside that shrine, Occult, withheld, untrod, Whose lamps are stirred continually With prayer sent up to God; And see our old prayers, granted, melt	80
Each like a little cloud.  'We two will lie i' the shadow of That living mystic tree, Within whose secret growth the Dove Is sometimes felt to be,	85
While every leaf that His plumes touch Saith His Name audibly.  And I myself will teach to him,	90
I myself, lying so, The songs I sing here; which his voice Shall pause in, hushed and slow,

D. G. ROSSETTI	449
And find some knowledge at each pause, Or some new thing to know.'	95
(Alas! We two, we two, thou say'st. Yea, one wast thou with me That once of old. But shall God lift To endless unity The soul whose likeness with thy soul Was but its love for thee?)	100
'We two,' she said, 'will seek the groves Where the lady Mary is, With her five handmaidens, whose names Are five sweet symphonies, Cecily, Gertrude, Magdalen, Margaret and Rosalys.	105
'Circlewise sit they, with bound locks And foreheads garlanded; Into the fine cloth white like flame Weaving the golden thread, To fashion the birth-robes for them Who are just born, being dead.	110
'He shall fear, haply, and be dumb: Then will I lay my cheek To his, and tell about our love, Not once abashed or weak: And the dear Mother will approve My pride, and let me speak.'	115 120
'Herself shall bring us, hand in hand, To Him round whom all souls Kneel, the clear-ranged unnumbered head Bowed with their aureoles: And angels meeting us shall sing To their citherns and citoles. 'There will I ask of Christ the Lord	is 125
Thus much for him and me:-

She gazed and listened and then said,
Less sad of speech than mild,—
'All this is when he comes.' She ceased. 135
The light thrilled towards her, filled
With angels in strong level flight.
Her eyes prayed, and she smiled.

Her eyes prayed, and she smiled.

(I saw her smile.) But soon their path
Was vague in distant spheres: 140

And then she cast her arms along
The golden barriers,
And laid her face between her hands,
And wept. (I heard her tears.)

D. G. ROSSETTI.

REST

O Earth, lie heavily upon her eyes; Seal her sweet eyes weary of watching, Earth; Lie close around her; leave no room for mirth With its harsh laughter, nor for sound of sighs. She hath no questions, she hath no replies, Hushed in and curtained with a blesséd dearth Of all that irked her from the hour of birth: With stillness that is almost Paradise. Darkness more clear than noon-day holdeth her, Silence more musical than any song; 10 Even her very heart has ceased to stir: Until the morning of Eternity Her rest shall not begin nor end, but be; And when she wakes she will not think it long. C. G. Rossetti.

381 SONG

When I am dead, my dearest, Sing no sad songs for me; Plant thou no roses at my head, Nor shady cypress tree:

Be the green grass above me
With showers and dewdrops wet;
And if thou wilt, remember,
And if thou wilt, forget.

I shall not see the shadows,
 I shall not feel the rain; 10
I shall not hear the nightingale
 Sing on, as if in pain;
And dreaming through the twilight
 That doth not rise nor set,
Haply I may remember, 15
 And haply may forget.
 C. G. ROSSETTI.

382

REMEMBER

Remember me when I am gone away, Gone far away into the silent land ; When you can no more hold me by the hand, Nor I half turn to go yet turning stay. Remember me when no more day by day 5 You tell me of our future that you planned: Only remember me; you understand It will be late to counsel then or pray. Yet if you should forget me for a while And afterwards remember, do not grieve: 10 For if the darkness and corruption leave A vestige of the thoughts that once I had, Better by far you should forget and smile Than that you should remember and be sad. C. G. Rossetti.

383

UP-HILL

Does the road wind up-hill all the way?
Yes, to the very end.
Will the day's journey take the whole long day?
From morn to night, my friend.

But is there for the night a resting-place? A roof for when the slow dark hours begin. May not the darkness hide it from my face? You cannot miss that inn.

Shall I meet other wayfarers at night? Those who have gone before. 10 Then must I knock, or call when just in sight? They will not keep you standing at that door.

Shall I find comfort, travel-sore and weak? Of labour you shall find the sum. Will there be beds for me and all who seek? 15 Yea, beds for all who come. C. G. Rossetti.

384 SONG

Oh roses for the flush of youth, And laurel for the perfect prime; But pluck an ivy branch for me Grown old before my time.

Oh violets for the grave of youth, And bay for those dead in their prime; Give me the withered leaves I chose Before in the old time.

C. G. Rossetti.

A BIRTHDAY

My heart is like a singing bird Whose nest is in a watered shoot; My heart is like an appletree Whose boughs are bent with thickset fruit; My heart is like a rainbow shell That paddles in a halcyon sea; My heart is gladder than all these Because my love is come to me.

Raise me a dais of silk and down; Hang it with vair and purple dyes;	10
Carve it in doves, and pomegranates,	-
And peacocks with a hundred eyes;
Work it in gold and silver grapes,
In leaves, and silver fleurs-de-lys;
Because the birthday of my life	1:
Is come, my love is come to me.
C. G. Rossetti.

BARBARA

On the Sabbath-day,
Through the churchyard old and grey,
Over the crisp and yellow leaves, I held my rustling way;

And amid the words of mercy, falling on my soul like balms,

'Mid the gorgeous storms of music—in the mellow organ-calms, 5

'Mid the upward-streaming prayers, and the rich and solemn psalms,

I stood careless, Barbara.

My heart was otherwhere

While the organ shook the air,

But, when rising to go homeward, with a mild and saint-like shine

Gleamed a face of airy beauty with its heavenly eyes on mine—

Gleamed and vanished in a moment—O that face was surely thine

Out of heaven, Barbara!

O pallid, pallid face!
O earnest eyes of grace

When last I saw thee, dearest, it was in another place.

You came running forth to meet me with my love-gift on your wrist:
The flutter of a long white dress, then all was lost in mist—
A purple stain of agony was on the mouth I kissed,
That wild morning, Barbara.
I searched, in my despair,
Sunny noon and midnight air;
I could not drive away the thought that you were lingering there.
O many and many a winter night I sat when you were gone, 25
My worn face buried in my hands, beside the fire alone—
Within the dripping churchyard, the rain plashing on your stone,
You were sleeping, Barbara.
'Mong angels, do you think
Of the precious golden link 30
I clasped around your happy arm while sitting by yon brink?
Or when that night of gliding dance, of laughter
and guitars,
Was emptied of its music, and we watched, through latticed bars,
The silent midnight heaven creeping o'er us with its stars,
Till the day broke, Barbara?
In the years I've changed;
Wild and far my heart hath ranged,
And many sins and errors now have been on me
avenged;
But to you I have been faithful, whatsoever good I lacked:
I loved you, and above my life still hangs that love intact— 40
Your love the trembling rainbow, I the reckless cataract—
Still I love you, Barbara.

Yet, love, I am unblest;
With many doubts opprest,	44
I wander like a desert wind, without a place	of rest.
Could I but win you for an hour from off tha	t starry shore,
The hunger of my soul were stilled, for Dea	th hath
2, 1, 1

told you more

Than the melancholy world doth know; things deeper than all lore You could teach me, Barbara.

In vain, in vain, in vain, 50 You will never come again. There droops upon the dreary hills a mournful fringe of rain; The gloaming closes slowly round, loud winds are in the tree. Round selfish shores for ever moans the hurt and wounded sea, There is no rest upon the earth, peace is with Death and thee. Barbara! A. SMITH.

OLD LOVE

'You must be very old, Sir Giles,' I said; he said: 'Yea, very old:' Whereat the mournfullest of smiles Creased his dry skin with many a fold.

'They hammer'd out my basnet point Into a round salade,' he said, 'The basnet being quite out of joint, Natheless the salade rasps my head.'

He gazed at the great fire awhile: And you are getting old, Sir John; 10 (He said this with that cunning smile That was most sad;) 'we both wear on.

THE HAYSTACK IN THE FLOODS

Had she come all the way for this, To part at last without a kiss? Yea, had she borne the dirt and rain That her own eyes might see him slain Beside the haystack in the floods?	5
Along the dripping leafless woods, The stirrup touching either shoe, She rode astride as troopers do; With kirtle kilted to her knee, To which the mud splash'd wretchediy; And the wet dripp'd from every tree Upon her head and heavy hair, And on her eyelids broad and fair; The tears and rain ran down her face.	10
By fits and starts they rode apace, And very often was his place Far off from her; he had to ride Ahead, to see what might betide	15
When the roads cross'd; and sometimes, wh	lon
There rose a murmuring from his men Had to turn back with promises; Ah me! she had but little ease; And often for pure doubt and dread	20
She sobb'd, made giddy in the head By the swift riding; while, for cold, Her slender fingers scarce could hold The wet reins; yea, and scarcely, too, She felt the foot within her shoe	25
Against the stirrup: all for this, To part at last without a kiss Beside the haystack in the floods.	30
For when they near'd that old soak'd hay, They saw across the only way That Judas, Godmar, and the three
Red running lions dismally	35

Grinn'd from his pennon,	under	which,
In one straight line along	the di	tch,
They counted thirty heads	S.

So then,
While Robert turn'd round to his men,
She saw at once the wretched end,
And, stooping down, tried hard to rend
Her coif the wrong way from her head,
And hid her eyes; while Robert said:
'Nay, love, 'tis scarcely two to one,
At Poictiers where we made them run
So fast—why, sweet my love, good cheer,
'The Gascon frontier is so near,
Nought after this.'

But, 'O,' she said,
'My God! my God! I have to tread
The long way back without you; then
The court at Paris; those six men;
The gratings of the Chatelet;
The swift Seine on some rainy day
Like this, and people standing by,
And laughing, while my weak hands try
To recollect how strong men swim.
All this, or else a life with him,
For which I should be damned at last,
Would God that this next hour were past!

60

65

70

He answer'd not, but cried his cry,
'St. George for Marny!' cheerily;
And laid his hand upon her rein.
Alas! no man of all his train
Gave back that cheery cry again;
And, while for rage his thumb beat fast
Upon his sword-hilts, some one cast
About his neck a kerchief long,
And bound him.

Then they went along To Godmar; who said: 'Now, Jehane, Your lover's life is on the wane So fast, that, if this very hour You yield not as my paramour, He will not see the rain leave off— Nay, keep your tongue from gibe and scoff, Sir Robert, or I slay you now.'

She laid her hand upon her brow,
Then gazed upon the palm, as though
She thought her forehead bled, and—'No.'
She said, and turn'd her head away,
As there were nothing else to say,
And everything were settled: red
Grew Godmar's face from chin to head:
'Jehane, on yonder hill there stands
My castle, guarding well my lands:
What hinders me from taking you,
And doing that I list to do
To your fair wilful body, while
Your knight lies dead?'

A wicked smile
Wrinkled her face, her lips grew thin,
A long way out she thrust her chin:
'You know that I should strangle you
While you were sleeping; or bite through
Your throat, by God's help—ah!' she said.
'Lord Jesus, pity your poor maid!
For in such wise they hem me in,
I cannot choose but sin and sin,
Whatever happens: yet I think
They could not make me cat or drink,
And so should I just reach my rest.'

'Nay, if you do not my behest,
O Jehane! though I love you well,'
Said Godmar, 'would I fail to tell
All that I know?' 'Foul lies,' she said.
'Eh? lies, my Jehane? by God's head.
At Paris folks would deem them true!
Do you know, Jehane, they cry for you.

"Jehane the brown! Jehane the brown	!
Give us Jehane to burn or drown!"—
Eh—gag me Robert !—sweet my friend,
This were indeed a piteous end	110
For those long fingers, and long feet,
And long neck, and smooth shoulders sw	eet:
An end that few men would forget
That saw it—So, an hour yet:
Consider, Jehane, which to take	115
Of life or deatn!'

So, scarce awake, Dismounting, did she leave that place, And totter some yards: with her face Turn'd upward to the sky she lay, Her head on a wet heap of hay, 130 And fell asleep: and while she slept, And did not dream, the minutes crept Round to the twelve again; but she, Being waked at last, sigh'd quietly, And strangely childlike came, and said: 'I will not.' Straightway Godmar's head, As though it hung on strong wires, turn'd Most sharply round, and his face burn'd.

For Robert—both his eyes were dry, He could not weep, but gloomily 3.30 He seem'd to watch the rain; yea, too, His lips were firm; he tried once more To touch her lips; she reach'd out, sore And vain desire so tortured them. The poor grey lips, and now the hem 135Of his sleeve brush'd them.

With a start

Up Godmar rose, thrust them apart: From Robert's throat he loosed the bands Of silk and mail; with empty hands Held out, she stood and gazed, and saw The long bright blade without a flaw Glide out from Godmar's sheath, his hand

In Robert's hair; she saw him bend
Back Robert's head; she saw him send
The thin steel down; the blow told well,
Right backward the knight Robert fell,
And moan'd as dogs do, being half dead,
Unwitting, as I deem: so then
Godmar turn'd grinning to his men,
Who ran, some five or six, and beat
His head to pieces at their feet.

Then Godmar turn'd again and said:
'So, Jehane, the first fitte is read!
Take note, my lady, that your way
Lies backward to the Chatelet!'
She shook her head and gazed awhile
At her cold hands with a rueful smile,
As though this thing had made her mad.

This was the parting that they had Beside the haystack in the floods.

SUMMER DAWN

Pray but one prayer for me 'twixt thy closed lips, Think but one thought of me up in the stars. The summer night waneth, the morning light slips, Faint and grey 'twixt the leaves of the aspen, betwixt the cloud-bars,

That are patiently waiting there for the dawn: 5
Patient and colourless, though Heaven's gold
Waits to float through them along with the sun.
Far out in the meadows, above the young corn,

The heavy elms wait, and restless and cold
The uneasy wind rises; the roses are dun; 10
Through the long twilight they pray for the dawn,
Round the lone house in the midst of the corn.
Speak but one word to me over the corn.

Speak but one word to me over the corn, Over the tender, bowed locks of the corn.

W. MORRIS.

As we rush, as we rush in the train,

The trees and the houses go wheeling back,
But the starry heavens above the plain

Come flying on our track.

All the beautiful stars of the sky,
The silver doves of the forest of Night,
Over the dull earth swarm and fly,
Companions of our flight.

We will rush ever on without fear;
Let the goal be far, the flight be fleet!
For we carry the Heavens with us, dear,
While the Earth slips from our feet!

ITYLUS

Swallow, my sister, O sister swallow,
How can thine heart be full of the spring?
A thousand summers are over and dead.
What hast thou found in the spring to follow?
What hast thou found in thine heart to sing?
What wilt thou do when the summer is shed?

O swallow, sister, O fair swift swallow,
Why wilt thou fly after spring to the south,
The soft south whither thine heart is set?
Shall not the grief of the old time follow?
Shall not the song thereof cleave to thy mouth?
Hast thou forgotten ere I forget?

12

Sister, my sister, O fleet sweet swallow,
Thy way is long to the sun and the south;
But I, fulfilled of my heart's desire,
Shedding my song upon height, upon hollow,
From tawny body and sweet small mouth
Feed the heart of the night with fire.

I the nightingale all spring through, O swallow, sister, O changing swallow, All spring through till the spring be done, Clothed with the light of the night on the dew, Sing, while the hours and the wild birds follow Take flight and follow and find the sun.	20 w,
Sister, my sister, O soft light swallow, Though all things feast in the spring's gues chamber, How hast thou heart to be glad thereof yet For where thou fliest I shall not follow, Till life forget and death remember,	t ?
Till thou remember and I forget.  Swallow, my sister, O singing swallow, I know not how thou hast heart to sing. Hast thou the heart? is it all past over?  Thy lord the summer is good to follow, And fair the feet of thy lover the spring: But what wilt thou say to the spring thy love	30 35 er?
O swallow, sister, O fleeting swallow, My heart in me is a molten ember And over my head the waves have met. But thou wouldst tarry or I would follow, Could I forget or thou remember, Couldst thou remember and I forget.	10
O sweet stray sister, O shifting swallow, The heart's division divideth us. Thy heart is light as a leaf of a tree; But mine goes forth among sea-gulfs hollow To the place of the slaying of Itylus, The feast of Daulis, the Thracian sea.	45
O swallow, sister, O rapid swallow, I pray thee sing not a little space. Are not the roofs and the lintels wet? The woven web that was plain to follow, 'The small slain body, the flowerlike face, Can I remember if thou forget?	50

O sister, sister, thy first-begotten! 55 The hands that cling and the feet that follow, The voice of the child's blood crying yet, Who hath remembered me? who hath forgotten? Thou hast forgotten, O summer swallow, But the world shall end when I forget. 60 A. C. SWINBURNE.

THE GARDEN OF PROSERPINE

Here, where the world is quiet; Here, where all trouble seems Dead winds' and spent waves' riot In doubtful dreams of dreams; I watch the green field growing For reaping folk and sowing, For harvest-time and mowing, A sleepy world of streams.

I am tired of tears and laughter. And men that laugh and weep: Of what may come hereafter For men that sow to reap: I am weary of days and hours, Blown buds of barren flowers. Desires and dreams and powers And everything but sleep.

Here life has death for neighbour, And far from eye or ear Wan waves and wet winds labour. Weak ships and spirits steer; They drive adrift, and whither They wot not who make thither; But no such winds blow hither, And no such things grow here.

SWINBURNE	467
No growth of moor or coppice, No heather-flower or vine, But bloomless buds of poppies, Green grapes of Proserpine, Pale beds of blowing rushes, Where no leaf blooms or blushes Save this whereout she crushes For dead men deadly wine.	25 30
Pale, without name or number, In fruitless fields of corn, They bow themselves and slumber All night till light is born; And like a soul belated, In hell and heaven unmated, By cloud and mist abated	35
Comes out of darkness morn.  Though one were strong as seven, He too with death shall dwell, Nor wake with wings in heaven, Nor weep for pains in hell; Though one were fair as roses, His beauty clouds and closes; And well though love reposes, In the end it is not well.	45
Pale, beyond porch and portal, Crowned with calm leaves, she stands Who gathers all things mortal With cold immortal hands; Her languid lips are sweeter Than love's who fears to greet her To men that mix and meet her From many times and lands.	50 55
She waits for each and other, She waits for all men born; Forgets the earth her mother, The life of fruits and corn;	60

And spring and seed and swallow Take wing for her and follow Where summer song rings hollow And flowers are put to scorn.
There go the loves that wither, The old loves with wearier wings; And all dead years draw thither, And all disastrous things; Dead dreams of days forsaken, Blind buds that snows have shaken,	65
Wild leaves that winds have taken, Red strays of ruined springs.	70
We are not sure of sorrow, And joy was never sure; To-day will die to-morrow; Time stoops to no man's lure; And love, grown faint and fretful,	75
With lips but half regretful Sighs, and with eyes forgetful Weeps that no loves endure.	80'
From too much love of living, From hope and fear set free, We thank with brief thanksgiving Whatever gods may be That no life lives for ever; That dead men rise up never; That even the weariest river Winds somewhere safe to sea.	85
Then star nor sun shall waken, Nor any change of light: Nor sound of waters shaken, Nor any sound or sight:	90
Nor wintry leaves nor vernal, Nor days nor things diurnal; Only the sleep eternal In an eternal night. A. C. SWINBURNE.	95

A FORSAKEN GARDEN

In a coign of the cliff between lowland and highland, Atthesea-down's edge between windward and lee, Walled round with rocks as an inland island, The ghost of a garden fronts the sea.

A girdle of brushwood and thorn encloses 5
The steep square slope of the blossomless bed
Where the weeds that grew green from the graves of its roses

Now lie dead.

The fields fall southward, abrupt and broken,
To the low last edge of the long lone land. 10
If a step should sound or a word be spoken,
Would a ghost not rise at the strange guest's hand?

So long have the grey bare walks lain guestless,
Through branches and briers if a man make way
He shall find no life but the sea-wind's, restless
Night and day.

16

The dense hard passage is blind and stifled
That crawls by a track none turn to climb
To the strait waste place that the years have rifled
Of all but the thorns that are touched not of time.

20

The thorns he spares when the rose is taken;
The rocks are left when he wastes the plain.
The wind that wanders, the weeds wind-shaken,
These remain.

Not a flower to be pressed of the foot that falls not; As the heart of a dead man the seed-plots are dry; From the thicket of thorns whence the nightingale calls not.

Could she call, there were never a rose to reply.

Over the meadows that blossom and wither

Rings but the note of a sea-bird's song;

30

Only the sun and the rain come hither All year long.

The sun burns sere and the rain dishevels One gaunt bleak blossom of scentless breath. Only the wind here hovers and revels In a round where life seems barren as death. Here there was laughing of old, there was weeping, Haply, of lovers none ever will know,

Whose eyes went scaward a hundred sleeping Years ago.

Heart handfast in heart as they stood, 'Look thither.' Did he whisper? 'look forth from the flowers to the sea;

For the foam-flowers endure when the roseblossoms wither.

And men that love lightly may die—but we?' And the same wind sang and the same waves whitened.

And or ever the garden's last petals were shed, In the lips that had whispered, the eyes that had lightened,

Love was dead.

Or they loved their life through, and then went whither?

And were one to the end—but what end who knows?

Love deep as the sea as a rose must wither, 51 As the rose-red seaweed that mocks the rose.

Shall the dead take thought for the dead to love them? What love was ever as deep as a grave?

They are loveless now as the grass above them. Or the wave.

All are at one now, roses and lovers.

Not known of the cliffs and the fields and the sea. Not a breath of the time that has been hovers

In the air now soft with a summer to be. Not a breath shall there sweeten the seasons hereafter

Of the flowers or the lovers that laugh now or weep, When as they that are free now of weeping and laughter

We shall sleep.

Here death may deal not again for ever; 65
Here change may come not till all change end.
From the graves they have made they shall rise up never,

Who have left nought living to ravage and rend. Earth, stones, and thorns of the wild ground growing.

While the sun and the rain live, these shall be; Till a last wind's breath upon all these blowing Roll the sea.

Till the slow sea rise and the sheer cliff crumble,
Till terrace and meadow the deep gulfs drink,
Till the strength of the waves of the high tides
humble 75

The fields that lessen, the rocks that shrink; Here now in his triumph where all things falter, Stretched out on the spoils that his own hand spread,

As a god self-slain on his own strange altar, Death lies dead.

A. C. SWINBURNE.

OLIVE

· Addressed to Olive Miranda Watts, aged nine years

Who may praise her?
Eyes where midnight shames the sun,
Hair of night and sunshine spun,
Woven of dawn's or twilight's loom,
Radiant darkness, lustrous gloom,
Godlike childhood's flowerlike bloom,
None may praise aright, nor sing
Half the grace wherewith like spring
Love arrays her.

Love untold
Sings in silence, speaks in light
Shed from each fair feature, bright
Still from heaven, whence toward us, now
Nine years since, she deigned to bow
Down the brightness of her brow,
Deigned to pass through mortal birth:
Reverence calls her, here on earth,
Nine years old.

 $^{3}$

Love's deep duty,

Even when love transfigured grows
Worship, all too surely knows
How, though love may east out fear,
Yet the debt divine and dear
Due to childhood's godhead here
May by love of man be paid
Never; never song be made
Worth its beauty.

Nought is all
Sung or said or dreamed or thought
Ever, set beside it; nought
All the love that man may give—
Love whose prayer should be, 'Forgiva!'
Heaven, we see, on earth may live;
Earth can thank not heaven, we know,
Save with songs that ebb and flow,
Rise and fall.

Hope that smiled, Seeing her new-born beauty, made Out of heaven's own light and shade. Smiled not half so sweetly: love, Seeing the sun, afar above, Warm the nest that rears the dove. Sees, more bright than moon or sun, All the heaven of heavens in one Little child.

50

Who may sing her? Wings of angels when they stir Make no music worthy her: Sweeter sound her shy soft words Here than songs of God's own birds Whom the fire of rapture girds Round with light from love's face lit: Hands of angels find no fit Gifts to bring her.

Quenched as embers
Quenched with flakes of rain or snow
Till the last faint flame burns low,
All those lustrous memories lie

Now they share not heaven, forget:
She remembers.

ODE

We are the music-makers,
And we are the dreamers of dreams,
Wandering by lone sea-breakers,
And sitting by desolate streams;—
World-losers and world-forsakers,
On whom the pale moon gleams:
Yet we are the movers and shakers
Of the world for ever, it seems.

With wonderful deathless ditties
We build up the world's great cities,
And out of a fabulous story
We fashion an empire's glory:
One man with a dream, at pleasure,
Shall go forth and conquer a crown;
And three with a new song's measure
Can trample a kingdom down.

We, in the ages lying
In the buried past of the earth,
Built Nineveh with our sighing,
And Babel itself in our mirth;
And o'erthrew them with prophesying
To the old of the new world's worth;
For each age is a dream that is dying,
Or one that is coming to birth.

A breath of our inspiration	25
	20
Is the life of each generation;
A wondrous thing of our dreaming,
Unearthly, impossible seeming—
The soldier, the king, and the peasant
Are working together in one,	30
Till our dream shall become their prese	nt,
And their work in the world be done

They had no vision amazing
Of the goodly house they are raising;
They had no divine foreshowing
Of the land to which they are going:
But on one man's soul it bath broken,
A light that doth not depart;
And his look, or a word he hath spoken,
Wrought flame in another man's heart.

And therefore to-day is thrilling 41
With a past day's late fulfilling;
And the multitudes are enlisted
In the faith that their fathers resisted,
And, scorning the dream of to-morrow,
Are bringing to pass, as they may,
In the world, for its joy or its sorrow,
The dream that was scorned yesterday.

But we, with our dreaming and singing,
Ceaseless and sorrowless we!

The glory about us clinging
Of the glorious futures we see,
Our souls with high music ringing:
O fine! it must ever be
That we dwell, in our dreaming and singing,
A little apart from ye.

56

For we are afar with the dawning
And the suns that are not yet high,
And out of the infinite morning
Intrepid you hear us cry—

How, spite of your human scorning, Once more God's future draws nigh, And already goes forth the warning That ye of the past must die.

Great hail! we cry to the comers 65
From the dazzling unknown shore;
Bring us hither your sun and your summers,
And renew our world as of yore;
You shall teach us your song's new numbers,
And things that we dreamed not before:
Yea, in spite of a dreamer who slumbers, 71
And a singer who sings no more.

A. W. E. O'SHAUGHNESSY.

897

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud.
Under the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms but the Horror of the shade,
And yet the menace of the years
Finds, and shall find, me unafraid.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate:

15
I am the captain of my soul.

SUMMARY OF BOOK FIRST

THE Elizabethan Poetry, as it is rather vaguely termed, forms the substance of this Book, which contains pieces from Wyatt under Henry VIII to Shakespeare midway through the reign of James I, and Drummond who carried on the early manner to a still later period. There is here a wide range of style;—from simplicity expressed in a language hardly yet broken in to verse,-through the pastoral fancies and Italian conceits of the strictly Elizabethan time,—to the passionate reality of Shakespeare: yet a general uniformity of tone prevails. Few readers can fail to observe the natural sweetness of the verse, the single-hearted straightforwardness of the thoughts:—nor less, the limitation of subject to the many phases of one passion which then characterized our lyrical poetry,—unless when, as with Drummond and Shakespeare, the 'purple light of Love' is tempered by a spirit of sterner reflection.

It should be observed that this and the following Summaries apply in the main to the Collection here presented, in which (besides its restriction to Lyrical Poetry) a strictly representative or historical Anthology has not been aimed at. Great excellence, in human art as in human character, has from the beginning of things been even more uniform than Mediocrity, by virtue of the closeness of its approach to Nature:—and so far as the standard of Excellence kept in view has been attained in this volume, a comparative absence of extreme or temporary phases in style, a similarity of tone and manner, will be found throughout :-- something neither modern nor ancient, but true in all ages, and, like the works of Creation, perfect as on the first day.

Aurora in the old mythology is mother of Memnon (the East), and wife of Tithonus (the appearances of Earth and Sky during the last hours of Night). She leaves him every morning in renewed youth, to prepare the way for Phoebus (the Sun), whilst Tithonus remains in perpetual old age and greyness.

It has been thought worth while to explain these allusions, because they illustrate the character of the Greeian Mythology which arose in the Personification of natural phenomena, and was totally free from those debasing and ludicrous ideas with which, through Roman and later misunderstanding or perversion, it has been associated.

which it would be ludicrous to criticize on the ground of the unshepherdlike or unreal character of some images suggested. Stanza 6 was probably inserted by Izaak Walton.

This Poem, with 25 and 94, is taken from Davison's Rhapsody, first published in 1602. One stanza has been here omitted, in accordance with the principle noticed in the Preface. Similar omissions occur in 45, 87, 100, 128, 160, 165, 227, 235. The more serious abbreviation by which it has been attempted to bring Crashaw's 'Wishes' and Shelley's 'Euganean Hills' within the limits of lyrical unity is commended with much diffidence to the judgement of readers acquainted with the original pieces.

This charming little poem, truly 'old and plain, and dallying with the innocence of love' like that spoken of in Twelfth Night, is taken, with 5, 17, 20, 34, and 40, from the most characteristic collection of Elizabeth's reign, England's Helicon, first published in 1600.

Readers who have visited Italy will be reminded of more than one picture by this gorgeous Vision of Beauty, equally sublime and pure in its Paradisaical naturalness. Lodge wrote it on a voyage to 'the Islands of Terceras and the Canaries'; and he seems to have caught, in those southern seas, no small portion of the qualities which marked the almost contemporary Art of Venice,—the glory and the glow of Veronese, or Titian, or Tintoret when he most resembles Titian, and all but surpasses him.

Wordsworth, thinking probably of the Venus and the Lucrece, said finely of Shake-'Shakespeare could not have speare: written an Epic; he would have died of plethora of thought.' This prodigality of nature is exemplified equally in his Sonnets. The copious selection here given (which, from the wealth of the material, required greater consideration than any portion of the Editor's task) contains many that will not be fully felt and understood without some earnestness of thought on the reader's part. #### SUMMARY OF BOOK SECOND

This division, embracing the latter eighty years of the seventeenth century, contains the close of our Early poetical style and the commencement of the Modern. In Dryden we see the first master of the new: in Milton. whose genius dominates here as Shakespeare's in the former book,-the crown and consummation of the early period. Their splendid Odes are far in advance of any prior attempts, Spenser's excepted: they exhibit the wider and grander range which years and experience and the struggles of the time conferred on Poetry. Our Muses now give expression to political feeling, to religious thought, to a high philosophic statesmanship in writers such as Marvell, Herbert, and Wotton: whilst in Marvell and Milton, again, we find the first noble attempts at pure description of nature, destined in our own ages to be continued and equalled. Meanwhile the poetry of simple passion, although before 1660 often deformed by verbal fancies and conceits of thought, and afterward by levity and an artificial tone, produced in Herrick and Waller some charming pieces of more finished art than the Elizabethan: until in the courtly compliments of Sedley it seems to exhaust itself, and lie almost dormant for the hundred years between the days of Wither and Suckling and the days of Burns and Cowper.-That the change from our early style to the modern brought with it at first a loss of nature and simplicity is undeniable: yet the far bolder and wider scope which Poetry took between 1620 and 1700, and the successful efforts then made to gain greater clearness in expression, in their results have been no slight compensation.

Horus, the son of Osiris, as the New Year, in his turn overcomes Typho.—It suited the genius of Milton's time to regard this primeval poetry and philosophy of the seasons, which has a further reference to the contest of Good and Evil in Creation, as a malignant idolatry. Shellev's Chorus in Hellas, 'Worlds on worlds,' treats the subject in a larger and sweeter spirit.

This Ode, beyond doubt one of the finest in our language, and more in Milton's style than has been reached by any other poet, is occasionally obscure from imitation of the condensed Latin syntax. The meaning of st. 5 is 'rivalry or hostility are the same to a lofty spirit, and limitation more hateful than opposition.' The allusion in st. 11 is to the old physical doctrines of the nonexistence of a vacuum and the impenetrability of matter: - in st. 18 to the omen traditionally connected with the foundation of the Capitol at Rome. The ancient belief that certain years in life complete natural periods and are hence peculiarly exposed to death, is introduced in st. 26 by the word climacteric.

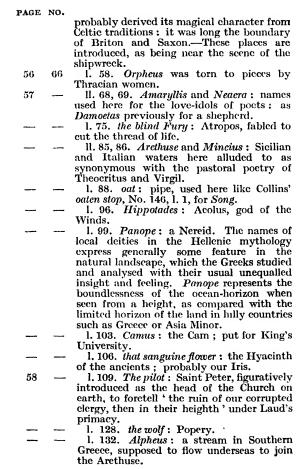

Lucidas. The person lamented is Milton's college friend Edward King, drowned in 1637 whilst crossing from Chester to Ireland.

Strict Pastoral Poetry was first written or perfected by the Dorian Greeks settled in Sicily: but the conventional use of it. exhibited more magnificently in Lycidas than in any other pastoral, is apparently of Roman origin. Milton, employing the noble freedom of a great artist, has here united ancient mythology with what may be called the modern mythology of Camus and Saint Peter,-to direct Christian images. -The metrical structure of this glorious poem is partly derived from Italian models.

Finisterre being the land due south of Marazion, two places in that district (then by our trade with Corunna probably less unfamiliar to English cars) are named.— Namancos now Mujio in Galicia, Bayona north of the Minho, or perhaps a fortified rock (one of the Cies Islands) not unlike Saint Michael's Mount, at the entrance of Vigo Bav.

The remark quoted in the note to No. 47 applies equally to these truly wonderful verses, which, like Lycidas, may be regarded as a test of any reader's insight into the most poetical aspects of Poetry. general differences between them are vast: but in imaginative intensity Marvell and Shelley are closely related.—This poem is printed as a translation in Marvell's works: but the original Latin is obviously his own. The most striking verses in it, here quoted as the book is rare, answer more or less to stanzas 2 and 6 :---

SUMMARY OF BOOK THIRD

It is more difficult to characterize the English Poetry of the eighteenth century than that of any other. For it was an age not only of spontaneous transition, but of bold experiment: it includes not only such divergences of thought as distinguish the Rape of the Lock from the Parish Register, but such vast contemporaneous differences as lie between Pope and Collins, Burns and Cowper. Yet we may clearly trace three leading moods or tendencies:—the aspects of courtly or educated life represented by Pope and carried to exhaustion by his followers; the poetry of Nature and of Man, viewed through a cultivated, and at the same time an impassioned frame of mind by Collins and Gray:—lastly, the study of vivid and simple narrative, including natural description, begun by Gay and Thomson. pursued by Burns and others in the north, and established in England by Goldsmith, Percy, Crabbe, and Great varieties in style accompanied these diversities in aim: poets could not always distinguish the manner suitable for subjects so far apart: and the union of the language of courtly and of common life, exhibited most conspicuously by Burns, has given a tone to the poetry of that century which is better explained by reference to its historical origin than by naming it, in the common criticism of our day, artificial. There is, again, a nobleness of thought, a courageous aim at high and, in a strict sense, manly excellence in many of the writers:-nor can that period be justly termed tame and wanting in originality, which produced poems such as Pope's Satires, Gray's Odes and Elegu. the ballads of Gay and Carey, the songs of Burns and Cowper. In truth Poetry at this as at all times was a more or less unconscious mirror of the genius of the age: and the brave and admirable spirit of inquiry which made the eighteenth century the turning-time in European civilization is reflected faithfully in its verse. An intelligent reader will find the influence of Newton as markedly in the poems of Pope, as of Elizabeth in the plays of Shakespeare. On this great subject, however, these indications must here be sufficient.

The Editor knows no Sonnet more remarkable than this, which, with 162, records Cowper's gratitude to the lady whose affectionate care for many years gave what sweetness he could enjoy to a life radically wretched. Petrarch's sonnets have a more ethereal grace and a more perfect finish: Shakespeare's more passion: stand supreme in stateliness, Wordsworth's in depth and delicacy. But Cowper's unites with an exquisiteness in the turn of thought which the Ancients would have called Irony, an intensity of pathetic tenderness peculiar to his loving and ingenuous nature.—There is much mannerism, much that is unimportant or of now exhausted interest in his poems: but where he is great, it is with that elementary greatness which rests on the most universal human feelings. Cowper is our highest master in simple pathos.

1. 19. fancied green: cherished garden. 166 163 164

Little more than his name appears recoverable with regard to the author of this truly noble poem. It should be noted as exhibiting a rare excellence—the climax of simple sublimity.

It is a lesson of high instructiveness to examine the essential qualities which give first-rate poetical rank to lyrics such as 'To-morrow' or 'Sally in our Alley,' when compared with poems written (if the phrase may be allowed) in keys so different as the subtle sweetness of Shelley, the grandeur of Gray and Milton, or the delightful Pastoralism of the Elizabethan verse. Intelligent readers will gam hence a clear understanding of the vast imaginative range of Poetry;—through what wide oscillations the mind and the taste of a nation may pass;—how many are the roads which Truth and Nature open to Excellence.

SUMMARY OF BOOK FOURTH

It proves sufficiently the lavish wealth of our own age in Poetry, that the pieces which, without conscious departure from the standard of Excellence, render this Book by far the longest, were with very few exceptions composed during the first thirty years of the nineteenth century. Exhaustive reasons can hardly be given for the strangely sudden appearance of individual genius: but none, in the Editor's judgen ent, can le less adequate than that which assigns the splendid national achievements of our recent poetry to an impulse from the follies and wars that at the time discraced our foreign neighbours. The first French Revolution was rather, in his opinion, one result, and in itself by no means the most important, of that far wider and greater spirit which through inquiry and doubt, through pain and triumph, sweeps mankind round the circles of its gradual development: and it is to this that we must trace the literature of modern Europe. But, without more detailed discussion on the motive causes of Scott, Wordsworth, Campbell, Keats, and Shelley, we may observe that these Poets, with others, carried to further perfection the later tendencies of the century preceding, in simplicity of narrative, reverence for human Passion and Character in every sphere, and impassioned love of Nature:—that, whilst maintaining on the whole the advances in art made since the Restoration, they renewed the half-forgotten melody and depth of tone which marked the best Elizabethan writers:-that, lastly, to what was thus inherited they added a richness in language and a variety in metre, a force and fire in narrative, a tenderness and bloom in feeling, an insight into the finer passages of the Soul and the inner meanings of the landscape, a larger and wiser Humanity,-hitherto hardly attained, and perhaps unattainable even by predecessors of not inferior individual genius. In a word, the nation which, after the Greeks in their glory, has been the most gifted of all nations for Poetry, expressed in these men the highest strength and prodigality of its nature. interpreted the age to itself—hence the many phases of thought and style they present:—to sympathize with each, fervently and impartially, without fear and without fancifulness, is no doubtful step in the higher education of the Soul. For, as with the Affections and the Conscience, Purity in Taste is absolutely proportionate to Strength:—and when once the mind has raised itself to grasp and to delight in Excellence, those who love most will be found to love most wisely.

It may be noticed that to find in Chapman's Homer the 'pure serene' of the original, the reader must bring with him the imagination of the youthful poet :-- he must be 'a Greek himself,' as Shelley finely said of Keats. 173 169 The most tender and true of Byron's smaller poems.

This Poem, with 236, exemplifies the 174 170 peculiar skill with which Scott employs proper names :- nor is there a surer sign of high poetical genius.

191 191 The Editor in this and in other instances has risked the addition (or the change) of a Title, that the aim of the verses following may be grasped more clearly and immediately.

1. 4. nature's Eremite: like a solitary 197 198 thing in Nature.—This beautiful Sonnet was the last word of a poet deserving the title 'marvellous boy' in a much higher If the fulfilment sense than Chatterton. may ever safely be prophesied from the promise, England appears to have lost in Keats one whose gifts in Poetry have rarely been surpassed. Shakespeare, Milton, and Wordsworth, had their lives been closed at twenty-five, would (so far as we know) have left poems of less excellence and hope than the youth who, from the petty school and the London surgery, passed at once to a place with them of 'high glory.

199 201 It is impossible not to regret that Moore has written so little in this sweet and genuinely national style.

— 202 A masterly example of Byron's command of strong thought and close reasoning in verse:—as the next is equally characteristic of Shelley's wayward intensity, and 204 of the dramatic power, the vital identification of the poet with other times and characters, in which Scott is second only to Shakespeare.

209 209 Bonnivard, a Genevese, was imprisoned by the Duke of Savoy in Chillon on the lake of Geneva for his courageous defence of his country against the tyranny with which Piedmont threatened it during the first half of the seventeenth century.— This noble Sonnet is worthy to stand near Milton's on the Vaudois massacre.

209 210 Switzerland was usurped by the French under Napoleon in 1800: Venice in 1797 (211).

212 215 This battle was fought Dec. 2, 1800. between the Austrians under Archduke John and the French under Moreau, in a forest near Munich. Hohen Linden means High Limetrees.

216 218

After the capture of Madrid by Napoleon, Sir J. Moore retreated before Soult and Ney to Corunna, and was killed whilst covering the embarkation of his troops. His tomb, built by Ney, bears this inscription—'John Moore, leader of the English armies, slain in battle, 1809.'

229 - 229

The Mermaid was the club-house of Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, and other choice spirits of that age.

__ 230

Maisie: Mary. Scott has given us nothing more complete and lovely than this little Song, which unites simplicity and dramatic power to a wildwood music of the rarest quality. No moral is drawn, far less any conscious analysis of feeling attempted: the pathetic meaning is left to be suggested by the mere presentment of the situation. Inexperienced critics have often named this, which may be called the Homeric manner, superficial, from its apparent simple facility: but first-rate excellence in it (as shown here, in 196, 156, and 129) is in truth one of the least common triumphs of Poetry.-This style should be compared with what is not less perfect in its way, the searching out of inner feeling, the expression of hidden meanings, the revelation of the heart of Nature and of the Soul within the Soul,-the Analytical method, in short,-most completely represented by Wordsworth and by Shelley.

235 234

correi: covert on a hillside; cumber: trouble.

- 235

Two intermediate stanzas have been here omitted. They are very ingenious, but, of all poetical qualities, ingenuity is least in accordance with pathos.

247 243

This Poem has an exaltation and a glory, joined with an exquisiteness of expression, which place it in the highest rank amongst

PAGE NO. the many masterpieces of its illustrious Author. 257 252 1. 24. interlunar swoon: interval of the Moon's invisibility. 263256 1.11. Calpe: Gibraltar. 1. 21. Lofoden: the Maelstrom whirlpool off the N.W. coast of Norway. 264 257 This lovely Poem refers here and there to a ballad by Hamilton on the subject better treated in 127 and 128. 277 268 I. 10. Arcturi: seemingly used for northern stars. 1. 21. And wild roses, etc. Our language has no line modulated with more subtle sweetness. A good poet might have written And roses wild,-yet this slight change would disenchant the verse of its peculiar beauty. 280 1. 81. Ceres' daughter: Proserpine. 270 1. 82. God of Torment: Pluto. 271 281 This impassioned Address expresses Shelley's most rapt imaginations, and is the direct modern representative of the feeling which led the Greeks to the worship of Nature. 290 274 The leading idea of this beautiful description of a day's landscape in Italy is expressed with an obscurity not unfrequent with its author. It appears to be,-On the voyage of life are many moments of pleasure, given by the sight of Nature, who has power to heal even the worldliness and the uncharity of man. 291 1. 58. Amphitrite was daughter to Ocean. 292 1. 76. Sun-girt City: It is difficult not to believe that the correct reading is Seagirt. Many of Shelley's poems appear to have been printed in England during his residence abroad: others were from his manuscripts after his death. Hence probably the text of no English Poet after 1600 contains so many errors. See the Note on No. 9.

l. 39. Plants under water sympathize with the seasons of the land, and hence with the winds which affect them.

298 276 Wr. wreck This Shelle compl of his that I Paint

Written soon after the death, by ship-wreck, of Wordsworth's brother John. This Poem should be compared with Shelley's following it. Each is the most complete expression of the innermost spirit of his art given by these great Poets:—of that Idea which, as in the case of the true Painter (to quote the words of Reynolds), 'subsists only in the mind: The sight never beheld it, nor has the hand expressed it; it is an idea residing in the breast of the artist, which he is always labouring to impart, and which he dies at last without imparting.'

1. 50. the Kind: the human race.

THE WORLD'S CLASSICS

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS

The World's Classics

HE We the

HE best recommendation of The World's Classics is the books themselves, which have earned unstinted praise from critics and all classes of the public. Some two million copies have been sold, and of the volumes already published very many have gone into a second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, or later impression. is only possible to give so much for the money when large sales are certain. clearness of the type, the quality of the paper, the size of the page, the printing, and the binding-from the cheapest to the bestcannot fail to commend themselves to all who love good literature presented in worthy form. That a high standard is insisted upon is proved by the list of books already published and of those on the eve of publication. A great feature is the brief critical introductions written by leading authorities of the day.

A NUMBER of the volumes are issued in the Oxford Library of Standard Works, the size and type as The World's Classics, but bound in Italian, thin boards, gilt designs, gilt top, and in Suède, yapp edges, gilt top, both with bookmarker. These are specially recommended for presentation. (The volumes are obtainable only through the booksellers.)

Pocket size, 6 × 4 inches. Large type, on thin opaque paper. Obtainable either in supersine art cloth or sultan-red leather.
